Milk-Pricing Conspiracy Case Is Dismissed

Producers' Group And Area Dairies Found Not Guilty; U. S. Plans Appeal

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

All charges of a milk marketing conspiracy here were thrown out of District Court yesterday by Justice Richmond B. Keech.

In dismissing the broad-scale indictment which charged a conspiracy has existed in the Washington area since 1930 to control the sale and price of milk, Justice Keech declared:

"From my interpretation of the statutes I find this indictment is insufficient."

Government to Appeal

Cleared by the ruling were the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and its secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick; Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, Thompson's, Richfield, Wakefield, Harvey's and Alexandria dairies, and Safeway Stores, which operates the Lucerne Milk Co.

John F. Sonnett, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Anti-trust Division, later said the Government will "take an immediate appeal . . . to the highest appropriate court." The case may go direct to Supreme Court.

Greatest single factor in dismissal of the charges apparently was the defense contention that the producers' association, as a cooperative, has authority under the Capper-Volstead Act and the Clayton Act to enter into broad agreements with dairies, even if some restraint of trade indirectly results.

Ruling Not Amplified

Sonnett said in a brief statement:

"The Government contends that the provisions of the Capper-Volstead law and of the Clayton Act do not legalize the defendants' acts, and that they are prohibited by the antitrust laws."

Justice Keech did not materially amplify his decision beyond stating that the facts presented did not add up to a conspiracy indictment. His bench announcement came suddenly, on the third day of legal motions to dismiss the case.

Portly, white-haired Bruce Derrick, only individual defendant in the case, broke into a broad smile at the decision. "We have felt from the beginning," he told reporters, "that the indictment was unjust."

The producers' association, which represents 1500 farmers supplying about 80 per cent of this area's milk, successfully weathered congressional investigations in 1931, 1933 and 1939.

Union Rule Bars Marine's Buddies As Pallbearers

Jersey City, N. J., April 27 (AP).—A ruling which a union official said was made for safety reasons prevented an escort of eight Marines from carrying the body of a comrade in the funeral home where it had awaited services.

The detachment of Marines arrived from the Bayonne Naval Depot to act as honorary pallbearers for the caket of Marine Pfc. James J. Donnelly, jr., returned recently from a military cemetery at IWO Jima where he had fallen in battle.

A spokesman for the United Funeral Chauffeurs and Helpers Union (AFL) said a union ruling required that professional bearers handle caskets inside buildings. He said the ruling was adopted because several nonprofessionals had been injured while making turns inside a building with the heavy caskets or while going through narrow passageway.

The Marine detachment participated in the funeral at Holy Cross Cemetery, North Arlington, where they held a United States flag taut over the casket as it was lowered into the grave.

GAO, Courts Buildings Advanced

Hill Moves Make Measures Ready For Final Action On Senate Floor

Bills authorizing a 19-million-dollar Federal Courts Building and a 23-million-dollar General Accounting Office Building here were moved yesterday into position for quick congressional approval.

The Courts bill was passed by the House with a unanimous voice vote.

Earlier in the day the Senate Public Works committee approved a bill identical to the one passed by the House. The two actions place the measure before the Senate, where unanimous consent could send it to the White House today.

The General Accounting Office bill, passed by the House last year, was approved without change by the Senate Public Works Committee. The measure now goes to the Senate for final action.

Each bill authorizes a later appropriation for actual construction. The appropriations would have to be made in separate legislation.

World Bank's Bonds Indorsed

Both branches of the Rhode Island Legislature have voted to make bonds of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development legal investment for savings banks in the State.

The World Bank, announcing word of this action yesterday, said there are nine mutual savings banks in Rhode Island carrying deposits in excess of 262 million dollars, "in addition to the substantial savings deposits of the large commercial banking institutions of the State."

It added that mutual savings banks are located in 17 State, and of these, 11 holding 77.23 per cent of all mutual savings deposits now permit investment in International Bank obligations.

Tokyo Police Arrest 15 Korean School Teachers

Tokyo, April 27 (AP).—Fifteen Korean school teachers were arrested in Tokyo today, and a police official promised "drastic measures" if there were Korean disorders such as occurred in the Osaka-Kobe area.

The trouble at Osaka and Kobe over the weekend arose from Korean protests against laws requiring the teaching of the Japanese language in their schools. Approximately 1100 Koreans and a dozen Japanese Communists were arrested. All was reported quiet there today.

Canadian House Beats No-Confidence Motion

Ottawa, April 27 (AP).—The Canadian House of Commons voted, 110 to 78, today against a motion of nonconfidence in Canada's Liberal government.

The vote was the second test of strength which the government has faced on the railway freight-rate issue. Last week members voted, 110 to 89, against a Progressive Conservative Party nonconfidence motion.

Area May Get Daylight Time Next Sunday

No Hearing Planned, Commissioners Say; Senate Speed Sought

The Commissioners announced yesterday they will proclaim daylight saving time here without a public hearing, effective at 2 a. m. Sunday, if the President signs a District DST bill by that time.

The action, taken at a meeting between John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, and Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young yesterday, was made public to "give citizens notice" of their intent, they said.

Officials in nearby Virginia and Maryland counties said they would go on daylight saving time whenever it was adopted by the District.

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.), chairman of the Senate District Committee, said he had asked Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), a member of the committee, to handle the DST measure on the Senate floor today.

The House voted Monday to permit daylight saving time for this summer only, while the Senate previously had voted permission for the Commissioners to order DST every summer. Neither bill requires a public hearing.

Senator Cain said he would ask the Senate to accept the House version "not because we think it's proper but because sending the bill to conference might further jeopardize its chances and restrict the right of the District to act as it sees fit on this matter."

"It's silly to go through this procedure every year," he said, "but

U. N. Unit to Discuss Trusteeship Proposal

Egyptian Invasion Of Holy Land Denied in Cairo

Jerusalem, April 27 (AP).—An Arab source said troops of an Egyptian armored division invaded Palestine today in a dawn crossing of the southern frontier, but the report was denied by Egyptian officials in Cairo.

Officials in Cairo said no regular armed forces had entered the Holy Land. Some Egyptians close to the army command said an invasion had occurred with the troops involved probably going as volunteers.

A British Foreign Office spokesman in London declared Britain would resist any Arab expeditions into the Holy Land before the British yield their mandate on May 15.

A Damascus dispatch said Syrian officials were expressing chagrin over the role taken by King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, who has declared himself ready to lead his Trans-Jordan Arab legion into Palestine immediately. They viewed Abdullah's move as preliminary to proclaiming himself King of the Arab part of Palestine, and said he had British support in that ambition.

A Jewish agency spokesman said the Trans-Jordan Parliament had acceded to King Abdullah's demands for sending his crack Arab legion into Palestine immediately and had proclaimed a general mobilization.

"It looks, therefore, as if the threats and warnings and boasts that have been coming from Amman (capital of Trans-Jordan) these days are on the verge of

Russian Group Fails to Block Palestine Plan

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, April 27 (NYHT). Over the objection of the Russian bloc, Haiti and Guatemala, the political committee of the United Nations General Assembly decided today to discuss a United States working paper setting forth an outline for a U. N. trusteeship over Palestine.

The vote, coming at the end of a day of impotent and desultory debate, was 38 to 7, with 7 abstentions, and before it was taken, a number of countries insisted that their willingness to discuss the American outline would in no way commit them to support of trusteeship.

While these developments in the political committee today indicated tough sledding ahead for the American trusteeship proposal, the 12-nation U. N. Trusteeship Council attacked another aspect of the Holy Land problem and appeared tonight to have at least some chance of registering the first, small but positive U. N. achievement on the Palestine question.

This would be a temporary military truce in the small area of the old walled city of Jerusalem, but the chances of achieving it still depended upon Arab and Jewish attitudes which may be stated tomorrow afternoon when the Trusteeship Council resumes its discussion of the temporary security of Jerusalem—an item raised by the French delegation.

There appeared to be little likelihood of a truc in modern Jeru-

Knudsen Dies At 69; Wizard At Production

Auto Pioneer Headed General Motors, Was Defense Output Chief

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

"Big Bill" Knudsen, America's first World War II production boss and its industrial super-troubleshooter, died early yesterday morning in Detroit.

The "Great Dane" was 69. He had been seriously ill for 16 months. Even before that, since the end of the war, his health declined from the robust vigor that carried him through the period of hostilities.

Formerly president of General Motors, Mr. Knudsen gained national and international fame first as defense production chief—from May, 1940, to January, 1942—and then, as a lieutenant general, production director for the War Department.

The towering industrialist—he was 6 feet, 3 inches and weighed 235 pounds—was the focus of a furious controversy over defense production policy, particularly during 1941. But for all the criticism against him, it is probable that no man in recent history enjoyed as much respect and admiration, even love, from those who criticized him most severely.

He came to America as Signius Wilhelm Poul Knudsen, a 20-year-old Danish immigrant, with a technical education, a proficiency in building bicycles and no English. His Old World trappings, including the long name, were rubbed off quickly in two rough-and-tumble years as a shipyard and railroad roundhouse worker.

Vandenberg And Marshall Confer on U. N.

Talk for Three Hours On Suggestions for Strengthening Charter

By John L. Steele
United Press Reporter

Secretary of State George C. Marshall conferred secretly with Senate President Artur H. Vandenberg for more than three hours last night on proposals to strengthen the veto-bound United Nations.

Also present at the conference were Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett and John Foster Dulles, Republican foreign policy spokesman and a member of the United States delegation to the U. N.

After the conference, Marshall said:

"We were discussing various resolutions submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and just what to do about them."

No Comment on Veto

The State Secretary made it clear he was referring to some half-dozen resolutions which have been introduced in the Senate calling for revisions of the United Nations Charter.

Marshall declined to reveal if he would back any of the specific proposals which have been submitted in Congress for overcoming what this Nation regards as excessive use of the Soviet veto power.

But the holding of the conference appeared to indicate a change in thinking by the Administration. Heretofore Marshall has vigorously opposed efforts in Congress to revise the U. N. Charter and as recently as three weeks ago told Senate committee that a mov

Business Prosperity Darkens Unless World Pi[ct]

[A]merica's businessmen w[e]re told yesterday that business [sh]ould prosper in the next several years if the international situat[ion] does not darken.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, [pre]sidential economic adviser of Com[mit]tee for Business Out[lo]ok" met at the Mayflower Ho[tel] this country's defense [an]d foreign-aid programs prob[ably] saved us from a "mild reces[sion]" this year.

Earlier, convention delegates at a general morning session at the Hotel Statler had heard Secretary of State George C. Marshall declare America must develop a consistent and united foreign policy if it wishes to be a world leader.

Nourse, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, coupled his prosperity prediction with a warning of continued high prices, a possible "disturbing" tax increase and the likelihood of over-employment.

He said that foreign aid and defense spending had wiped out the likelihood of a "sagging tendency" in business during 1948.

He said: ". . . if we could assume that the diplomatic and military situation did not get worse and perhaps might grow better, it would seem reasonable to expect that business prosperity might be well sustained for several years ahead."

Noting that present prospects for halting inflation are "a little brighter," Nourse nevertheless cautioned:

"Thoughtful persons still fear that, as expenditures increase in 1949, 1950 and 1951, inflationary pressures may revive in menacing form and we might be thrust back into a deficit position and/or disturbing increases of taxation."

Speaking of the danger of high prices continuing, he said, "We can't eat our cake and have it, too. Five, four, 15 billion dollars worth of goods and services a year cannot be withdrawn from our economy during the next few years and still leave the real income of consumers as high as it would otherwise be during this period . . .

Nourse said employment probably will be well sustained" during the life of defense and foreign aid programs with a probability of over-employment "rather than desirably full employment."

Nourse is one of three speakers at a special discussion on economic questions. Other speakers were Mitchell Temple, vice president of the National City Bank of New York, and Leo Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America.

1-Yr. Atom Appointment Plan Assailed

Senator McMahon Says Move Would Destroy Confidence Of U. S. Public

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) yesterday denounced a current proposal to reappoint the five Atomic Energy Commissioners for only 1-year terms.

He implied that the plan was part of Republican politics. He said it would "destroy confidence and shock the conscience of the American public."

The proposal for limiting the reappointments to one-year terms was fathered by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

He said last week he was considering offering an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act to provide for the one-year terms. The law at present calls for staggered appointments of from one to five years.

Compromise Possible

President Truman sent the nominations to the Senate last week. They provide a five-year term for Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal, four years for Sumner Pike, three for Lewis L. Strauss, two for W. W. Waymack and one for Robert F. Bacher.

Yesterday, however, there were reports that Hickenlooper might propose a bill giving uniform terms of about 20 months, to expire about March, 1950. This would be, it appeared, an attempt at a compromise and a settlement of the controversy which Mr. Truman's reappointments touched off.

The reaction was immediate and hot. It threatens a repetition of the bitter fight over the original appointments a year ago.

GOP Policy Chief Senator Taft (Ohio) announced his opposition at once and was promptly called to task by rival Presidential Aspirant Harold E. Stassen. Yesterday, speaking in Dayton, Taft said he would not oppose reappointment to one-year terms. But he repeated his unwillingness to see Lilienthal confirmed for as long as five years.

Floor Fight Feared

Hickenlooper's reported 20-months appointment proposal would be offered, it was thought, if it could serve to prevent a bitter floor fight on confirmation.

He is said to feel:

1. A floor fight is inevitable if the Senate considers the nominations for the terms proposed by the President.

2. In such a fight, the tactics will be rough, much dirty linen will be aired and a Roman holiday of "smearing" will take place.

3. The nominations will probably be defeated.

4. The result, both of the defeat and the smear, will be extremely adverse to the Nation's atomic energy program.

Fight Seems Inevitable

But in view of McMahon's statement yesterday, a fight seemed inevitable in any event. He indicated that no compromise was acceptable.

"If the one-year plan is adopted," he said, "this means in effect that the composition of the commission must wait upon the results of [a] fall's presidential election mem-

"It is as unthinkable [to] Comthe test of political [be to apply bers of the Atomic [Com]mission as [the] Army . . . the test [as] national security is [to] of [no] partisan considerations [what]ever way."

He argued that the commission had performed a "splendid public service" during a trial period of more than a year, and that this formed a basis for confirming them to longer terms as provided in the law of which he was the author.

If Hickenlooper offered this bill, however, he could be expected to argue that the trial period had not been long enough to warrant making the semipermanent reappointments.

Information reaching The Washington Post indicated that McMahon's position would be vigorously backed by the White House

Time Is Short To Build Planes, Says Symington

Stassen Leads Pennsylvania Primary Vote

Philadelphia, April 27 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota forged ahead tonight in early returns from Pennsylvania's presidential preference primary.

The former Governor, candidate for the Republican nomination, received 3021 on the GOP ticket votes in the first 543 precincts to report of the State's 8262.

Senator Edward Martin, Pennsylvania favorite son, was in second place with 2435 and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York was third with 1886.

Other votes, all written in on Republican ballots which did not list any candidate, were Senator Robert A. Taft, 554; Senator Arthur Vandenberg, 326; Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 214; Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, 136, and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, 13; Gov. Earl Warren of California 8; Henry Wallace, 6, and John L. Lewis, 2.

The report included 390 precincts out of 1353 in Philadelphia.

Democrats voters in 479 precincts gave President Truman 1387 votes. Three write-ins were recorded for Henry Wallace, and one for Eisenhower.

Senator Martin, who has not campaigned for the nomination, piled up a big vote in early returns from upstate communities, including Luzerne County (Wilkes-Barre). His friends had launched a last-minute drive for votes.

Belated campaigning of Stassen's backers to pile up write-in votes for the former Minnesota governor enlivened the preferential contest.

The drive centered at Pittsburgh, with prospects that it would boost the steel city vote. Elsewhere, only a few sectional fights attracted more than passing at-

U. S. Must Hurry Before Russians Get Atom Bomb, Senators Told

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington warned Congress yesterday that we must start building a modern, 70-group Air Force this year if it is to be ready "by the time the Russians get the A-bomb."

His strong new plea for greater air power followed presentation of a new training plan for teen-age youths, which virtually scraps the old UMT program.

Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee enthusiastically accepted the plan—reported yesterday in The Washington Post—and directed its staff to cooperate with defense chiefs in preparing a new 18-through-25 draft-training bill.

Security Held at Stake

Symington argued his case for a great air force before a crucial congressional jury—the Senate Appropriations Committee. And hen he and USAF generals had finished their testimony late yesterday, they appeared to be winning their battle.

Under questioning by the Senators, the youthful Air Force Secretary said that failure to vote the full sum for airplanes approved by the House would jeopardize American security. That amount is 822 million dollars above President Truman's budget estimates.

Only the day before Defense Secretary James Forrestal had told the committee that launching the bigger air program might endanger the national economy. He urged that the Air Force be kept in "balance" with the Army and Navy to enable it to operate effectively.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) quizzed Symington on this point yesterday. He declared the "real issue" before the committee is whether if they vote the additional money for the Air Force, they must increase the Army and Navy to keep the forces in balance.

"That's not the issue," said Symington. "It is secondary to the question of what is the best balance we should maintain against the only enemy we have today."

The Russian army, the air chief went on, is far larger than ours already, while we have the greatest Navy in the world. He added:

"The only thing the Russians are afraid of is a great air force. They are building it as fast as they can. That is the only way they can get at us and the only way we can get at them today."

Training Plan Outlined

Symington cited the conclusions of the Finletter and Brewster-Hinshaw air policy committees that Russia may have the atomic bomb by 1952-3.

"I think time is rapidly running out," he said.

"If you don't start building this year, you will never have a modern air force by the time the Russians get the 'bomb.'"

The new draft-training plan was outlined to the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday morning by Army Secretary Kenneth Royall behind closed doors. Afterward, Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) explained it to reporters and said the committeemen present were unanimously in favor of the idea.

It would draft 161,000 youths between the ages of 18 and 19 next year for 12 months' training and service in the regular forces. They would be taken in simultaneously with older draftees—aged 19 through 25—take basic training

District Native Named Assistant To President

President Truman yesterday appointed Frederick J. Lawton, 47-year-old native of 1816 Varnum st. ne., as a $10,000-a-year administrative assistant.

The appointment of Lawton, an official of the budget bureau since 1935, brings the number of administrative assistants to four. Mr. Truman has never had the full quota of six allowed by law.

Lawton now is executive assistant to Budget Director James E. Webb.

He began his government career in 1920. Before going to the budget bureau, he was an employee of the Treasury Department for 15 years.

Capital Transit Rejects Order For 3c Maryland School Fare

The Capital Transit Co. yesterday notified the Maryland Public Service Commission it "cannot accept and abide by" all provisions in a recent PSC order involving higher fares for the company's operations in nearby Maryland.

The PSC last week granted the company's request for a new 5-cent per 1½ mile zone fare in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties and for elimination of ticket and pass fares.

However, the PSC made the order contingent on the company's agreement to sell 3-cent-a-zone tickets or tokens to school children.

Yesterday E. D. Merrill, Capital Transit president, advised the PSC his company would put the new fare into effect May 9 "in accordance with the Maryland statutes" by that school children would have to pay the full rate.

The PSC later announced in Baltimore it will confer today with its general counsel, S. Ralph Warnken, to consider what further steps may be taken.

The fare and increase affects bus and stretcar transportation between the District and many communities in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Capital Transit originally filed the higher fare schedule to become effective last December 11. The PSC postponed the effective date of the new tariff for 120 days until April 8 to permit a hearing to be held on the matter.

On April 8, the hearing was still in progress so the PSC de-

School Board Plea Sidestepped

Corning Omitted From Unit To Study D. C. Loyalty Check

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The Commissioners yesterday sidestepped a Board of Education request that School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning be named member of a committee to consider a loyalty program for 17,000 District employes.

They failed to add Dr. Corning's name to a list of seven officials formally appointed to the committee. Instead, they referred the board's request and a letter opposing Corning's appointment to the committee for consideration.

Commissioner John Russell Young indicated the action was taken because the Commissioners have "no authority to fire" school employes.

Young, who announced Thursday he would recommend Corning's appointment, said he still thought "It would be fit it was a him sit in on it," but committee dematter to "let the cide."

The committee as instructed to "investigate, study and consider all phases of loyalty program" and report findings to the Commissioners. Presumably this will include whether school employes should be part of any proposed probe.

A letter opposing the appointment, written by Miss Esther Linkins, 3615 Newark st. nw., had no bearing on the decision, Young said.

Miss Linkins said she had been working on the sidelines with a

Truman's New Administrative Assistant Began as Treasury Stenographer in 1920

Frederick J. Lawton, 47-year-old Washingtonian, appears to have just that passion for anonymity which his new job as administrative assistant to the President will require.

A career civil servant since 1920, tall, barrel-chested Lawton has earned a reputation for being bright but modest, efficient but quiet.

As an administrative reporter and trouble-shooter for the President, he will have to be reliably quick and steady but obscure.

Blessed with an exceptional memory, Lawton, now executive assistant to the Budget Bureau director, is said to be a walking compendium of the whys, wherefores and don't of Government expenditures.

His experience in the Budget Bureau should prove valuable in his new post. As day-to-day manager of the bureau he has developed an intimacy with the organization and operation of the vast network of agencies, bureaus and departments of the Federal Government. Invariably he can relate any instant problem to a past, now-solved Government difficulty.

For a man who has seen Government financial outlays soar from seven to eight billions in 1935 when he joined the Budget Bureau to upwards of 100 billions during the war, he has surprisingly few strands of silver streaking his black hair.

But colleagues report one of his great fortes has been his ability to go through trying times, budget-wise, with unruffled calm and clear perspective. Hard working, he often carries stacks of work home. His humor, like everything else about him, is of the quiet type.

The story of Lawton's steady advancement should be a strong incentive to young men contemplating Government service as a career. His first full-time job in Government back in 1920 was as a stenographer in the Treasury Department.

Rising through the ranks he did accounting, auditing and administrative investigation work in the undersecretary's office. For a while he was also in the Census Bureau and in the office of the Postoffice auditor.

From 1929 to 1933 he was special assistant to Treasurer Walter O. Woods, as general trouble shooter. The next two years he was an administrative assistant to the chief disbursing officer.

2 More Big Steel Firms Reduce Prices

New York, April 27 (AP).—Two of the Nation's largest steel companies—Bethlehem and Jones & Laughlin—today joined the industry's announced campaign to combat inflation. They announced they were cutting prices and refusing wage increases.

A third member of steel's "Big Five"—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.—indicated it probably will follow suit.

The other two, United States Steel and Republic, previously refused wage boosts asked by the CIO Steelworkers Union. United States Steel also cut prices, and Republic is studying such a step.

The five firms employ a total of 334,000 steelworkers. The union has asked a "substantial wage increase." The present average hourly wage is $1.55.

$10,000,000 Reduction

Bethlehem Steel Co., in a statement issued here, said that in addition to refusing pay boosts, it soon will cut the prices of some of its products a total of 10 million dollars annually. It is the second-ranking steel firm.

E. G. Grace, Bethlehem chairman, said "a general increase in wages at this time is unwarranted by either cost of living increases or profits . . . We need decreased costs today; not another round of wage increases."

In Pittsburgh, President Ben Moreell of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., announced similar steps to shareholders and called the experiment "of vital importance." The company, fourth largest steel firm, did not indicate what its price reductions will total. They still are being studied.

Youngstown Still Bargaining

In Youngstown, President Frank Purnell indicated at a shareholders' meeting of Youngstown Sheet & Tube that the firm probably will be forced to cut some prices and turn down the wage demands.

He said, however, that his firm, fifth largest steelmaker, still is engaged in bargaining regarding the union's demand for a wage increase.

United States Steel, top-ranking corporation, recently refused union wage demands and said it would cut prices a total of 25 million dollars a year.

Republic Steel Corp., third largest, rejected wage increases and announced it is studying the price situation.

Railroad Wage Talks Enter Night Session to Avert Strike

Chicago, April 27 (U.P.).—Negotiators for the Nation's railroads and three operating brotherhoods went into night sessions tonight in an 11th-hour attempt to avert a rail strike.

Neither side commented on the progress of negotiations after a recess for dinner.

The railroads earlier had expected to announce that negotiations were broken off, but the announcement did not develop. Observers believed the prospect of further talks tonight indicated some progress was being made on a wage issue.

The Brotherhoods of Engineers, Firemе nand Switchmen earlier had warned that today's negotiations would be the last before the unions acted to set a strike date.

The warning was coupled with a prediction from another high-ranking union official that there would be no national strike because the brotherhoods "learned their lesson" in the 1946 walkout.

The unions asked a 30 per cent wage boost, while the carriers offered 15½ cents an hour.

Brotherhoods representing 150,000 engineers, firemen and switchmen were free to set a strike date after expiration of a 30-day cooling off period tonight. Their walkout could halt almost all freight and passenger traffic in the country.

Fight in Meat Strike; Production Gaining

Chicago, April 27 (U.P.).—Fists swing today in the national meat packing strike. At the same time, the Government reported meat production gaining despite the walkout.

The United States Department of Agriculture said meat produced in federally-inspected plants increased from 192,400,000 pounds for the week ended March 20 to 273 million pounds for the week ended April 24. The strike began March 16.

A department spokesman, however, said much of the meat probably was produced in plants not affected by the strike and that the figures could not be used as a yardstick of the walkout's effectiveness.

In Washington, the Government abruptly recessed negotiations between the striking CIO Packinghouse Workers Union and Armour & Co. A company official said no progress was made.

The union is scheduled to meet later with the three other major packers, Swift, Cudhay & Wilson, in the Government's new attempt to end the 42-day walkout.

Violence flared briefly in Chicago when production employes entered the Wilson plant by crouching in the rear of automobiles driven by company supervisors.

Union Delegates Agree To Ask GM Strike Vote

Detroit, April 27 (AP).—United Auto Workers delegates from 100 General Motors plants agreed unanimously today to ask for a strike vote among the big corporation's employes.

The decision was made at a national UAW-CIO General Motors conference called to study the union's present wage talks with GM.

It came in the form of a recommendation that GM locals should take a strike vote to be completed by midnight May 23.

committee of the VFW to have "all communistic books" banned from public schools.

"As you know," she wrote, "Superintendent Corning and all the Board of Education except Adelbert W. Lee have put up a strong fight to retain such books."

Corning's name, she said, "should head the list of those to be examined (in the loyalty check), followed by all the Board of Education except Mr. Lee."

Maher Is Chairman

Dr. Corning said, "I think I'd be ready to be examined along with everybody else."

Both he and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said they thought "if there is to be a loyalty check and if the schools are to be included, the schools should have a representative on the committee."

Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel nominated by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, was designated chairman of the committee. He said the first meeting probably will be held Thursday, but declined to comment on what will be the first order of business.

Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, became the seventh member of the committee as representative of Commissioner Guy Mason. Others formally appointed yesterday: Victor Howard, secretary of the D. C. Personnel Board; Assistant Engineer Commissioner Col. K. E. Madsen; Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young; Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, assistant superintendent of police, and Geoffrey Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners.

Police Direction Protested

The Commissioners also referred to the committee a letter from Mrs. Grace H. Thomas, president of the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters, which expressed "concern" over Commissioner John Russell Young's recent proposal that "initial" loyalty investigations be handled by the Police Department.

"It is doubtful that there are more than a few District agencies in which infiltration of disloyal persons is of major concern," she wrote. "Certainly the Police Department itself should be considered one of these 'sensitive' agencies."

If a loyalty program is adopted, she said, the league recommends:

1. That investigations be limited to employes in "sensitive agencies."

3. That initial investigatory work be handled "by some agency other than the police, preferably the Federal Government."

3. That definite procedure providing for review and appeal be adopted in order to guard against the stigmatization of innocent persons is of major concern," she sons."

Need of Planes Urgent, Warns Symington

with them, but not be sent overseas.

After a year in regular units in the United States they would be released to civilian life, but have to enroll in the National Guard or a Class A, drilling, reserve for four years.

Outline of Plan

The older draftees would have to serve two years under the plan—and large numbers would go overseas. After release, they would be in the inactive reserves for three years, but not be required to take any more training.

About one youth in four probably would be picked by lot by Selective Service boards for the one year "hitches," Gurney said. The remainder would be subject to call for the the two-year draft when they reached 19½. Some 190,000 men are expected to be inducted for 24 months service in the army next year, he said. The other services expect to fill up their ranks—aside from one year trainees—by volunteers.

This would seem drafting about 350,000 young men next year, according to estimates presented the committee.

Reaction in House

While Senate committeemen forecast approval of the modified draft-training plan, House members either were noncommittal or opposed.

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the House Armed Services Committee termed it "ridiculous." He said it is impracticable to combine the draft and UMT. Instead, he favors putting the latter into effect two years hence—after a temporary draft.

Symington told the Senate deficiency appropriations subcommittee that a modern, 70-group Air Force could be started with an overall outlay of five billion dollars for the Air Force in 1949. This includes the original $3,054,000,000 USAF budget estimate, plus its share of the Administration's supplemental defense proposal ($1,133,000,000), and the 822 millions voted by the House.

Jet Fighters Needed

He said the latter sum would provide 804 jet fighters, 17 jet bombers, 28 B-50C bombers (greatly improved B-29s) and 207 miscellaneous craft.

"We're very badly short of jet fighters," Symington stated, adding that about half of the new 804 craft would be assigned to the National Guard for the air defense of Continental United States.

The craft to be ordered, he said, are P-84s and P-80Cs, "as good as any in the world, except a few advanced Russian types." The United States, Symington added, has photographed in the air several late model USSR warplanes, includnig four-engined jet bombers and other jet craft with high-speed swept-back wings.

Under questioning both the Air Force Secretary and Gen. Carl Spaatz testified they believed the full sum for aircraft procurement voted by the House was the "minimum" required for national security.

O'Mahoney Chides Cordon

Senator Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.) quizzed both officials as to why they were supporting larger funds for air power than had been approved by "their commander in chief."

simpington insisted they were the commwering questions put by fense Secretaryen. He said Dethem specific perstal had given what they thought was to tell tarily.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mah (D., Wyo.) broke in to chied Cordon for "harassing" America's defense chiews when outlining our security needs. He declared it a "disgraceful performance" to be carried on "at a bublic hearing where the press, including Tass (Russian news agency) is present."

Plans Are Compared

The new training plan for teenagers proposed yesterday, differs from the original Administration UMT plan in many respects. The latter would be more costly, and youths would serve only six months and not in the regular armed services.

Gurney said the 161,000 youths which the plan would draft for 12 months next year would be divided as follows: 110,000 in the Army; 15,000 in the Air Force; 6000 in the Marines, and 30,000 in the Navy. The "hitch" in the sea service would vary from 10 to 14 months, as many men would be serving in the fleet.

The trainees would boost Army strength to 900,000 men, the Air Force to 468,000, and the Navy and Marine Corps to 588,000—a total of 1,956,000 in the armed services.

Navy chiefs also testified on the aircraft spending bill. Admiral Louis E. Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations, told the group that from th emilitary point of view he considered a larger Navy is necessary for the security of the United States.

Navy Secretay John L. Sullivan told the committee the Navy would have to have another two billion dollars next year and 113,000 more men to stay in balance with a 70-group Air Force.

But he said the Navy "htas no intention" of asking additional money or men at this time beyond what has bee napproved by the resident.

Truman Is Assured Support; GOP Will Back Favorite Son

Boston, April 27 (AP).—Massachusetts voters elected Republican and Democratic delegates in today's presidential primary—but there are few straws to indicate how the wind blows.

The State's 35 Republican delegates will go to the National Convention unpledged. President Truman is assured strong support from the 36-delegate Democratic slate.

The Republican delegation will support a Bay State man as long as one has a chance of landing on the presidentail ticket.

State GOP leaders see Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., as a potentian dark horse in the presidential race.

They consider Senators Leverett Saltonstall and Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., as possibilities for the Vive Presidency.

Several GOP prospective delegates rank Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York as their second choice if their "favorite son" is not in the running. A few favor Harold E. Stassen. Aides of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio also count on some support from Massachusetts.

Less than 10 per cent of the State's two million voters were expected to go to the polls.

Three factions are involved in the Democratic battle for delegate votes.

One group is led by the veterans, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston and United States Representative John W. McCormack, minority whip in Congress.

State Representative Thomas P. O'Neill heads a second faction made up of State legislators. State Chairman John F. Cahill leads a third slate.

The outcome of this factional battle will be one of the most important tests of the day as Curley has indicated he may not be with President Truman.

O'Neill's group has campaigned vigorously in an effort to wrest control from older party leaders.

tention, since statewide contests are lacking.

The vote was not expected to exceed 30 per cent of the 2,676,973 registered Republicans and 1,779,096 Democrats.

Popularity Contest

The preferential balloting actually is only a popularity contest. A blank space for presidential write-ins on the Republican ballot allows a sampling of sentiment on the party's top candidates. But the 78-member convention delegation also elected today will be unpleged.

Democrats also elected their 74-member convention delegation which has been pledged to President Truman. Only the President's name was entered on the Democratic ballot, but backers of General Eisenhower and Henry Wallace expected write-ins for them.

Governor Dewey topped the preferential vote four years ago with 146,706 and went on to claim the GOP nomination. Stassen drew 1502 at that time. Both Dewey and Senator Taft claim support in Pennsylvania.

nomination, asked him a point-blank question from the floor.

Sullivan made no attempt to deny tha the was a Douglas man. He answered by saying that there were two Gael Sullivans, one in a personal capacity and the other in an official capacity. He said he had talked to Douglas and that the jurist told him he wanted to remain on the High Court. Sullivan said he agreed that he probably would be happier there.

Sullivan then went on to pledge his allegiance to Mr. Truman and he predicted that the Chief Executive would be nominated on the first ballot at Philadelphia in July.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was said last night to be regretful over Sullivan's imminent departure.

Sullivan is expected to call on President Truman in the next day or so.

rewrite the Charter might lead to "the breakup" of the U. N. organization.

Deep Secret Meeting

So secret was the meeting that it was shifted from Marshall's State Department office to Blair House, the Government's official residence for distinguished visitors. State Department spokesmen told reporters they did not know of any scheduled conference.

Observers attached special importance to the presence of Dulles who is the United States representative on the "interim assembly" of the U. N. That group now is studying an American proposal to curb the big powers Security Council veto power.

Vandenberg declined to reveal whether his Senate Foreign Relations Committee would open hearings at an early date on any of about a half-dozen proposals for U. N. reform now before the committee.

Some observers believed, however, that the meeting yesterday indicated either that foreign policy leaders believe congressional pressure for U. N. strengthening has become too strong to resist, or that United States policy makers are convinced the U. N. cannot continue much longer on its present structural basis and that the American drive for reform must be stepped up.

and by the commission members themselves.

Bad as the floor fight on confirmation might be, the Administration is said to feel that acceptance of the "political considerations implied in Hickenlooper's proposal would be worse.

McMahon seemed to express the Administration argument in saying:

"If the Senate is not justified in confirming these nominees for longer terms, it certainly is not justified in confirming them for another year . . . There is no place for politics in atomic energy."

Stassen Doesn't Know Much Of Issues, Taft Tells Ohioans

Dayton, Ohio, April 27 (AP).—Senator Taft came out swinging at challenger Harold Stassen today in their battle for 23 of Ohio's 53 Republican presidential delegates.

In speeches at Hamilton and this industrial city of 300,000—the big industrial centers of the Third Congressional District—Taft virtually accused Stassen of knowing little about campaign issues. Two delegates are at stake in the Third District.

"He has taken no part in the development of the Republican program which has already been adopted (by Congress)," Taft said, "and he does not seem familiar with the measures which are now being worked out in many specific fields."

Taft said it is on the Republican Party's record that appeal must be made to the voters next fall and "we had better choose one of those who have made the record to make the fight."

Stassen, said Taft, "tries to present his campaign in Ohio as a crusade for something. After reading all his general statements last week, I don't understand what that something is."

Taft particularly stressed features of the Taft-Hartley law in his noon speech in Hamilton. He said the provisions requiring non-Communist affidavits by officials of labor unions has done more than any other thing to place an effective control over communism in this country.

Taft noted Stassen proposed modifying that provision of the law whereby only those accused of communism would be required to take the oath. Then he said: "It is easy to talk. In one voice he talks about outlawing communism. In the other he opposes the practical method of doing the job."

Taft agreed today that Stassen is more liberal in one respect than Taft himself. That, he said, was "in spending of money."

"I fail to find any point where he seems to realize the crushing burden which taxes are likely to be when they take 28 per cent of the national income as they do at this time," Taft said. "We have never had any support from him in our efforts to reduce the expenses in Congress.

"I suggest that Mr. Stassen has no experience or knowledge about the subject of international currencies and foreign trade, and is swayed too easily by his laudable desire to bring health and prosperity to the entire world."

Taft made this observation in answer to Stassen's proposal that 10 per cent of our national production of tangible goods and foods be set aside to feed the rest of the world.

Stassen Men Are Hopeful In Washington

By the Associated Press

Growing signs of a stop-Stassen movement were countered yesterday by claims that Harold E. Stassen may grab a share of Washington State's 19 GOP presidential nominating votes.

Stassen spokesmen here said supporters of the former Minnesota Governor, by working down into the precincts, have put themselves in position to challenge Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's men for control of the State's May 15 GOP party meeting.

That gathering will name the 19 Washington delegates to the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia this summer.

Dewey Men Discount Claim

The story told by Stassen's backers is that his workers showed up in force at precinct meetings and succeeded in naming many delegates of their choosing to several county conventions, including the one in Spokane.

With this as a starter, the Stassen supporters contend they are certain to break into the national convention delegate line-up. That group had been generally regarded as likely to shift largely to Dewey after possible early ballots for Senator Harry Cain (Wash.) and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Dewey backers retorted, however, that Stassen is only whistling to keep up his courage in Washington. They said control of Seattle and Tacoma delegations will freeze the Minnesotan out at the State convention.

Cain Is Keynoter

Cain is keynote speaker for that meeting and is in line to head the Washington delegation to Philadelphia. He is generally looked on as favoring Senator Arthur Vandenberg in a nominating deadlock. Formation of some Vandenberg clubs is reported under way in Washington.

Republicans will name delegates today in Delaware and New Mexico. Excluding these, they have now picked 606 of their 1094 delegates. First ballot pledges and uncontested candidates claims of support line up this way:

Dewey	125
Senator Martin	73
Stassen	59
Governor Green	52
Vandenberg	41
Governor Driscoll	35
MacArthur	8
Uncommitted	213
Total	606

Truman has 339

The Democrats have named delegates with 478 votes in their 1234-vote convention. The line up:

President Truman	339
Uncommitted	139
Total	478

Chairman to Quit

State GOP Post May Go To Beall

Baltimore, April 27 (AP).—Representative J. Glenn Beall, veteran Republican congressman from the Sixth District, found himself talked about today as a possible Republican State chairman.

Beall

There will be a new chairman after the State convention in Baltimore May 20, when the veteran Galen L. Tait has said he will relinquish the chairmanship he has held for a quarter of a century.

Beall, whose home is in Frostburg, has served three terms from the strongly Republican Sixth and is unopposed for renomination next Monday.

There also has been discussion of Russell E. McCain of Frederick, minority member of the State Roads Commission, to succeed Tait. However, it was pointed out he probably would not be interested in leaving his $5000-a-year position to take an unpaid job.

Arlington GOP Would Back Nonpartisan Election in Fall

Arlington Republicans will keep out of next fall's Arlington County board election if Democrats will do likewise, County GOP Chairman Edgar Pumphrey indicated yesterday.

Pumphrey said Republican committee action setting August 3 as date for the Arlington Republican primary was entative and "depends on what the Democrats do."

Several Arlington groups have sought both this year and last to keep county and school board elections nonpartisan. In last fall's election, both major parties agreed not to nominate candidates for the two boards.

This year Democrats still have not taken a stand on the nonpartisan issue. The only office open this fall is the one county board seat.

Committee Slashes FSA $20,673,000

Overhauling of Social Security Agency Ordered; Mental Health Funds Increased

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday cut the Federal Security Agency $20,673,000 below budget in a bill ordering "top to bottom" overhaul of the Social Security Agency and other major FSA shifts.

A broad mental health program under the Public Health Service was approved, however, including an unbudgeted $2,720,000 in contract authorizations for "forward financing" of mental health research and training.

New Bureau Recommended

The committee not only shook up the Social Security Administration, it recommended an entirely new "Bureau of Employment Security" outside SSA to consolidate work of the United States Employment Service and the Unemployment Compensation Division under one head.

For this merger, speeding up scheduled return of the employment service to the Federal Security Agency, the committee claimed its biggest saving—$22,650,000 overall. The House group said 123 million dollars, instead of the budgeted $145,650,000, would suffice to run both the USES and unemployment compensation programs under the consolidated setup.

In approving a $10,278,000 mental health program, approximately $2,467,000 more than last year, the committee pared back budget estimates $1,123,460 but met the request of mental hygienists for assurances of "continuity" in the program.

Personnel Assurance

This was done by contract authority, over and above the regular appropriations, permitting the Surgeon General to make commitments beyond the 1949 fiscal year. The commitments would assure promising researchers and other scientific personnel, hesitant to train for an inadequately financed field, that Federal support will go on.

"I look forward to the day when every school in the country will have a technician or a teacher trained in the field of psychiatrics," Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.), subcommittee chairman, told reporters.

Citing the 150,000-a-year increase in mental cases admitted for hospital treatment, to a point where half the hospital beds in the country are now occupied by mental patients, Keefe said the committee is more convinced than ever that the program should be 'adequately supported."

Research Cut Back

The committee cut back the $3,750,000 budgeted for research grants, fellowships and training to $3,250,000, however, noting the amount granted was more than double last year's allocation. Lesser reductions were ordered in direct research and training, consultative services and general administrative projects. Hospitals for treatment of narcotics at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex., were alloted only $2,400,000 instead of the $2,816,000 asked.

For two other public health service programs, the committee provided (1) One million dollars to train dentists and dental technicians in the new use of sodium fluoride to check tooth decay and (2) $700,000 for emergency survey and control of disease and sanitation conditions in Alaska.

The proposed "far-reaching overhaul of the Social Security management superstructure" involved, among many shifts in functions, transfer of the Social Security regional offices to the office of the Federal Security Administrator.

Administration Criticized

Over-all appropriations for the Social Security agency were cut back from $903,458,000 in the budget to $825,123,000 in the bill. The office of the Social Security commissioner alone was reduced from $3,131,165 to $221,000.

Rapping the Social Security Administration's own recommended economies as inadequate, the committee said these "seem to have been prepared by those completely lacking in the fortitude necessary to elimination of jobs and retained, only rearranged, all of the duplications, top-heavy superstructure, and the positions of all the positions of all the surplus 'functionaries and satellites' of which the committee complained a year ago."

House Declares Davis Winner of Georgia Seat

The House yesterday declared Representative James C. Davis, a Democrat, is entitled to the Fifth Georgia District's seat in Congress.

By its action, taken on a voice vote, the House rejected two contests of Davis' election in 1946. These were brought by former Representative Helen Douglas Mankin, whom Davis succeeded, and Wyman C. Lowe, Atlanta professor.

Mrs. Mankin and Lowe contended there were irregularities in the 1946 Democratic primary and general election in the Fifth District.

Findlay Lake, N. Y., April 27 (U.P.). A crowd of several hundred residents of nearby Mina was dispersed by sheriff's deputies today as it apparently was preparing to tar and feather the Rev. Harold T. Grover, a town official.

Sheriff Clarence Bell said the townspeople were angry because a tenant had been evicted from an apartment building operated by the minister.

Committee Approves Woods as Rent Chief

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Without a dissenting vote, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Tighe Woods as housing expediter and rent control chief.

Woods' nomination, which has been bottled up in committe for four months, now goes to the floor with every expectation of rapid confirmation.

Woods' name was submitted by President Truman last December 15. The committee took no action on it during the 1947 special session and Mr. Truman resubmitted the name January 9.

The committee delayed a vote until the rent extension bill became law. Members said they wanted to be sure woods interpreted the law as Congress intended it.

Confirmation of woods was opposed by the Congress for Industrial Organizations

TROOPS ARRIVE—Arrow locates Jericho, Palestine, into which one company of the Arab Legion entered "under British orders," according to an official British Army spokesman in Jerusalem being fulfilled," the spokesman added.

Some Jewish officials were hopeful that a truce could be reached by direct negotiation with Abdullah. He reiterated an offer to lay down arms "if the Jews halt their attacks on the Arabs."

Invasion jitters which swept Palestine were common to both Jews and Arabs. To Palestine Arab leaders invasion would mean cutting the thin string by which they held political control over the Holy Land's 1,250,000 Arabs.

Unconfirmed reports came from the north that Lebanese and Syrian armies were on the move toward Palestine.

A report from Damascus said Abdullah's Arab Legion had already occupied Jericho, north of the Dead Sea, and was moving into the Dead Sea Valley that joins Trans-Jordan on the east.

This was discounted by British military authorities. The British said units of the legion have been in Jericho for several months as security forces on loan to the British. The legion is supplied and trained by the British, under terms of a British-Trans-Jordan treaty.

A British spokesman said one company of the legion had entered Jericho under specific British orders, but would be withdrawn when its duties were completed.

Richard Stubbs, Palestine government spokesman, said any Trans-Jordan troops now in the Holy Land are under British command "and their conduct is not in question."

An invasion of Palestine while the British still hold the mandate could be regarded as an act of war.

In the political commitee of the U. N. General Assembly, the States had a rough day although in the end it won the right for discussion at least of its truseeship ouline.

The Russian bloc challenged the United States to introduce a resolution revoking the partition decision as a prelude to discussion of trusteeship. The United States was unwilling to do this. Sweden and New Zealand said that trusteeship discussion at the level of detail was impractical unless first there were guaranties of trusteeship enforcement.

So far, the United States is the only country which has offered troops for trusteeship

Berlin Police Coup Held Aim of Reds

Socialists' Leader Nips Rebel Move

Rome, April 27 (U.P.).—Pietro Nenni and his lieutenants in the Left-wing Socialist Party stalled a move by Giuseppe Romita, dissident socialist, to call a national convention immediately to break off the Communist-Socialist pact.

Romita led his delegation of rebal Socialists into a party executive commtitee meeting to call for resignation of the committee and convening of a national party congress as a result of the disastrous Left-wing Socialist showing in the April 18-19 election.

Nenni's supporters were in the majority, and it was decided that only the national directing council of the party, which is scheduled to meet May 14, can rule on resignations of the executive committee and calling of a national congress.

Nenni insisted the executive committee is not trying to avoid judgment from the rank and file, but that he wanted things done in the regular way through party machinery. Romita had no comment.

Fugitive Chief Says Terror Campaign Is Part of Scheme

Berlin, April 27 (AP).—Hans Kanig, Berlin police chief who says he is a fugitive from the Soviet sector, charged in an interview today that German Communists are trying to seize control of the city's police by creating terror and panic.

Kanig said he took flight from the Soviet sector yesterday when the Russians began questioning him and threatening his arrest because he had punished a policeman. The policeman lured a German civilian into the Russian Zone, where the civilian was kidnaped.

His story is being investigated by American authorities, who said they would demand an official Soviet explanation. Four-power agreement provides that Berlin city officials can be arrested only on orders of the Allied kommandantur, four-power governing body.

The Social Democratic press meanwhile published safety rules on "how to guard yourself against kidnaping." The people were advised to "be careful, distrustful of strangers and defend yourself with all means."

Kanig's home in the American sector, where he gave the interview, was under guard today. He declared German Communists were responsible for recent kidnapings in the western sections of the city "because they want to create a panic after their propaganda has failed to win the people."

He declared Communists were attempting to grab all key police controls in Berlin and were using their influence with Soviet officials to that end.

Berlin's police president, Paul Markgraf, who is backed by the Russians and Communists, insisted that Kanig was not threatened with arrest by the Russians.

U. S.-Born Baroness Fined as Nazi Disciple

Munich, Germany, April 27 (AP). A bavarian denazification court has convicted Baroness Erna von Redwitz, a native American citizen, of being a follower of nazism and charges have been filed against a second United States citizen. Both actions were taken in the absence of the defendants.

Baroness von Redwitz, now presumed to be living in Chicago, was fined 2000 marks. In order to regain property she left in Germany she must come here and present a claim.

Greeks Attack Rebel Hideouts

ATHENS, April 27 (AP).—A general staff communique said today Greek army troops were rooting out Communist-led guerillas from their last hideouts in the rugged Mornos River valley 90 miles northwest of Athens.

An estimated 1500 to 2000 guerillas were trapped in the valley north of the Gulf of Corinth. Heavy fighting continued, the communique said.

Press reports said the destroyers Hastings and Themistocles bombarded guerilla positions for several hours.

All vessels, including rowboats, were banned from the Gulf of Corinth to guard against any guerillas escaping into the Peloponnesus.

Observation planes said the guerillas were still moving about in a limited area.

The Albanian Telegraph Agency reported a day-long gun battle between Albanian border guards and Greek troops on April 18, with two Albanian sergeants killed and five guardsmen wounded.

U. S. Loses Bogota Trade Bloc Fight

Latin-American Preference Combines Carry Conference by Vote of 13 to 6

Bogota, Colombia, April 27 (AP).—Thirteen Latin-American nations joined today to defeat the United States on a proposal that American nations be allowed to join blocs in order to grant each other trade preferences.

The United States delegation at the ninth Inter-American Conference obtained the support of only five nations in the vote on the proposal. It was sponsored by Bolivia in the economic committee.

The United States delegation opposed it as contrary to the United States policy that trade preferences be eliminated as much as possible as a means of increasing world trade.

However, the Bolivian proposal was approved as a part of the treaty for economic cooperation among the American nations. Uruguay, the Dominican Republic, Cuba and Brazil were the only nations supporting the United States request for later consideration of the matter.

The debate indicated that Latin-American countries want freedom to enter into trade preference agreements among themselves.

It was disclosed, meantime, that four Latin-American countries will hold a special meeting in Quito May 24 to discuss creation of a tariff union and kindred subjects. They are Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela and Panama. Representatives of Venezuela and Panama said there was no plan to form a political bloc.

Colombia President Says Danger Persists

Bogota, Colombia, April 27 (U.P.) President Mariano Ospina Perez, in a broadcast message to the nation, today blamed "international influences" for the bloody April 9 riots here and warned that "the danger is not yet over."

Conservative leaders in Ospina Perez's government urged a break in relations with Russia as a result of the riots. They were overruled by Liberal Party leaders in the cabinet.

Nicaraguan Charge Reds Plan Invasion

New York, April 27 (AP).—The consul general of Nicaragua said today his country is making military preparations to meet an expected "Communist invasion" from Costa Rica.

The consul, Dr. Jose M. Moncada, said the forces were being organized at Puerto Limon, Costa Rica.

At a news conference, Moncada said the Costa Rican military activities were planned in an effort to "oust the Nicaraguan govement and to subject Nicaragua to a Communist regime."

In Costa Rcia, however, Gonzalo Facio, undersecretary of foreign relations, said last night that conditions were "virtually normal again" and that there were no army movements toward the Nicaraguan border.

Milk Case Dismissed

turned March 8 following a Justice Department investigation last fall, alleged acts to eliminate milk-sale competition by forcing price-cutting dairies out of business and other efforts.

Dismissal of the indictment came on motions of Attorneys William E. Leahy, counsel for Derrick, and John Hillyard, representing Wakefield Dairy. Leahy, who addressed the court for more than seven hours on Monday and yesterday in comparison to less than an hour's argument by prosecution, declared yesterday:

"The Capper-Volstead Act is a price-fixing statute per se, to give the farmer enough of a share of the consumers' dollar that he can exist . . . we have a right to eliminate competition to the point of monopoly . . .

"It is far better that the public should know it can always get milk at a reasonable price than to sometimes get milk through ruinous price competition at a lesser price, but with no assurance of regular supply . . ."

Both Robert H. Winn, special assistant to the Attorney General, and Justice Department Special Attorney John A. Skiles, contended that the defendants had stepped outside the zone of "self-interest" laid down for cooperatives.

Capital Transit Rejects Order

layed the new artes for another 30 days, or until May 9.

Last Thursday the PSC approved the fare boost with the school fare proviso. At the same time the PSC refused to allow the company to abandon trolley service on the Beltsville-Branchville line in Prince Georges County.

In its letter to the PSC yesterday, the company declared, "We believe that special school fares should await a time when Maryland operations at least equal the expenses of such operations."

Merrill said in his letter the PSC had found as a result of the hearing that Capital Transit lost $588,154 on its Maryland operations for the 12-month period ended September 30, 1947.

He wrote that inasmuch as the period allowable under the law, 150 days, for which the PSC can defer the effective date of a new tariff has expired, the company will put the new fare into operation May 9.

National Academy Here Awards Medal To Paleontologist; 30 Members Elected

A Russian scientist, Dr. Alexander G. VoVlogdin, was awarded a medal in absentia last night by the National Academy of Sciences here.

Two other awards, to Dr. Felix A. V. Meinesz, of The Netherlands, and Alsatian-born Dr. Hans Albrecht Bethe, Cornell University physicist, also were made in absence of the recipients at the academy's annual award dinner at the Hotel Statler.

The dinner followed executive sessions yesterday at which 30 scientists were voted members of the academy; two foreign associate memberships were added, and a new treasurer and two council members were chosen.

Dr. Vologdin, corresponding member of the Academy of Sciences of the U. S. S. R. and a scientist of the Paleontological Institute in Moscow, wrote academy members he would be unable to come to this country to accept his award because of a bronchial ailment.

He was chosen winner of the Charles Doolittle Walcott bronze medal and award for 1947 for his research on Cambrian organisms, animal life of the early Paleozoic age. The fund was set aside "to encourage and reward individual achievement in advancing our knowledge if Pre-Cambrian and Cambrian life in any part of the world."

Dr. Meinesz, president of The Netherlands Geodetic Commission and professor of geodesy and geophysics at the University of Utrecht, was selected as recipient of the Alexander Agassiz gold medal for "original contribution in the science of oceanography. He invented a gravity measuring device which led to discovery of "ocean deeps," tremendous valleys in the sea floor.

Bethe's Contribution

Dr. Bethe, nuclear physicist, was awarded the Henry Draper gold medal for his contributions to astronomical physics. Specifically, he was cited for his research on generation of energy in the sun and stars.

Elected foreign associates of the Academy were Dr. Ronald Aylmer Fisher, statistician and professor of genetics at Cambridge University, England, and Prince Louis de Broglie, professor of theoretical physics at the University of Paris (Sorbonne).

William J. Robbins, director of the New York Botanical Garden, the Bronx, N. Y., was elected treasurer for a four-year term beginning July 1. He succeeds Dr. J. C. Hunsaker, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who held the post for eight years.

New members of the academy council, elected for three-year terms, are Cal R. Moore, professor of zoology, University of Chicago, and J. Robert Oppenheimer, director of the Institute for Advanced Study, of Princeton, N. J.

One scientist each from the District, Maryland and Virginia weer among 30 new members voted into the academy. Included are Lloyd V. Bertkner, chairman of the section of exploratory geophysics of the atmosphere, Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C.; Curt P. Richater, associate professor of psychobiology, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and Edward J. McShane, professor of mathematics, University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.

Tick Fever Case Reported In Arlington

A 44-year-old Arlington woman yesterday was believed to be the first Rocky Mountain s potted fever victim of the season in Greater Washington.

Mrs. Baldwin

Under treatment at her home, 1708 S. Randolph st., pending completion of laboratory tests to confirm an early diagnosis, is Mrs. Ruth A. Baldwin.

A report on the tests, made yesterday at the Arlington Health Department laboratory, is expected today.

According to her husband, Samuel O. Baldwin, a War Department clerk, Mrs. Baldwin first was stricken about 10 days ago, when she developed chills and fever. Her physician, Dr. William J. White, he said, diagnosed her illness as spotted fever after she developed a pronounced body rash.

A few days before she was stricken, her husband said she found a tick in her bed but did not realize at the time she had been bitten. The Baldwin home is in a wooded area, described as a "natural habitat" for the tick, only known carrier of spotted fever.

Dr. James G. Cumming, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases for the District Health Department, said no cases of the fever have been reported to his office so far this year. Prince Georges County Hospital authorities said several cases which "suspiciously resembled" the disease had been treated there, but the diagnoses were not confirmed by laboratory tests.

Occupational Cancer to Be Studied Here

A new section to increase and systematize study in occupational cancer hazards has been set up at National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md.

Disclosing the project, Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, announced yesterday it would be headed by Dr. W. C. Hueper, cancer pathologist, of New York. The program includes setting up an occupational cancer laboratory at Georgetown University Medical School, Ewing said.

Doctor Hueper comes to NCI from the Warner Institute for Therapeutic Research in New York City, where he was assistant director and principal pathologist. He is present president of the American Society for the Study of Arteriosclerosis.

The new division chief said special studies would be conducted for workers handling radioactive materials, X-ray equipment and "certain carcinogenic chemicals."

"Once a cancer causing factor has been definitely established, it will be possible to find ways of protecting workers in affected industries," declared Dr. Hueper.

Gambling Ships Banned

Indigents to Be Hospitalized on Cost Basis

Montgomery County indigents will be hospitalized at Suburban Hospital on an individual cost basis instead of at a flat rate of $14.16 per day, it was decided yesterday.

Disagreement over the method by which Montgomery County will be billed for indigent patients arose a week ago when hospital officials notified the County Commissioners that average cost per patient day for the last six months of 1947 was $14.16.

Unwilling to agree to the flat rate system, the Commissioners yesterday conferred with hospital officials and agreed to pay $14.16 per day for indigents hospitalized between January 1, 1948, through April 30. For the six months beginning May 1, payment on a basis of individual costs will be followed on a trial basis.

In the throes of a financial crisis last year due largely to below-cost payment by the county for indigent patients, the hospital appealed for and received a $50,000 grant in county funds.

Former Nazi Polls Highest Vote for Mayor

Frankfurt, Germany, April 27 (AP).—A former Nazi official got the largest vote for mayor of Bad Brueckenau, although he still is a prisoner and was not a nominee, the Frankfurt radio said today. Local elections in the United States zone of Germany were held Sunday.

The man was once a Nazi Kreisleiter, or county leader, in the Bavarian village. He is being held in a German internment camp for Nazis. At his trial even Jews testified in his favor. A new election probably will be held.

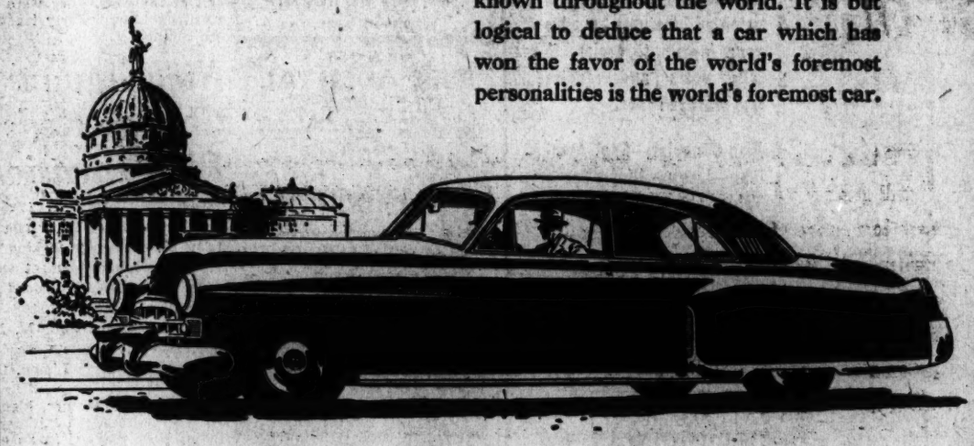
RESPECT

The extraordinary respect in which Cadillac is held, is due in great measure, to the respect in which its owners are held. Relatively few people have had the opportunity to know Cadillac at first-hand—but the men and women who own and drive these wonderful cars are, known throughout the world. It is but logical to deduce that a car which has won the favor of the world's foremost personalities is the world's foremost car.



If you are waiting for a new Cadillac—please be assured that every effort is being made to further production. Demand is so great, however, that some delay in delivery is still inevitable. But hold to your purpose! There is no substitute for a Cadillac.

Soaring Meat Prices

Despite the month-old strike of the United Packing House Workers, the country's meat output is not much below the level of a year ago. There is as yet no sign of the predicted spring meat famine, although zooming retail meat prices in the District and elsewhere spell individual meat famines for many low-income families. However, the high level of meat prices cannot be dismissed as a temporary squeeze; it may well be a forerunner of worse to come. For the American people have for a long time been consuming more meat than was currently being produced—living off capital, so to speak, without making adequate provision for replacement.

Progressive depletion of livestock numbers has been encouraged by the sustained high level of demand, supported by high wages and full employment, as well as by high prices for grain that have made the feeding of meat animals unprofitable. The shrinkage in livestock numbers since wartime peaks were attained is alarming in its implications. Cattle numbers, for instance, dropped from 85.5 million at the beginning of 1945 to 76.6 million at the beginning of this year; hogs declined from 83.7 million in 1944 to 55 million; stock sheep from 49.3 million in 1942 to 30.5 million. Last January the number of stock sheep was actually the smallest since records began, in 1867.

Obviously if we were to continue indefinitely to eat into our livestock reserves, a meat famine of appalling proportions would be the penalty for such improvidence. Some time—and it should be soon—herds will have to be built up. That process will itself reduce consumable meat supplies, since it necessitates withholding breeding stock from the market. Department of Agriculture experts fear that it will be a good many years before this rebuilding process will reach the stage at which demands for meat can be satisfied. Meantime, the natural increase in population is steadily augmenting the number of would-be future meat consumers. Barring an industrial recession that would curtail effective demand for meat, meat prices will probably be high and may go higher in the months to come. For the indefinite future the outlook is distinctly gloomy.

Margarine Tax

A stinging and well-deserved rebuke has been administered to the House Agriculture Committee by the vote to discharge that committee from further consideration of the bill repealing Federal taxes on margarine. Its passage is virtually assured as a result, and the chances of Senate approval are believed to be reasonably good. The arguments in favor of abolishment of the discriminatory margarine taxes have been stated so often in these columns that repetition seems superfluous. The novel feature of the House debate this week was the bitter clash between representatives of the dairy interests and legislators hailing from farming regions where soybeans and cottonseed are produced. Any pretense that the margarine taxes are imposed as a revenue measure or a protection against fraudulent substitution of margarine for butter has been shown to be utterly unfounded. The debate made it evident that the dairy interests are simply fearful of losing what amounts to an indirect butter subsidy, while spokesmen for rival farm producers of margarine ingredients emphasize their resentment of that subsidy.

Glad as we are of this initial progress, it should not be forgotten that abolition of the 10-cent-per-pound Federal tax on colored margarine will confer no benefits whatever on the great majority of consumers. For nearly two thirds of the entire population live in States—more than 20 of them—that prohibit the manufacture and sale of colored margarine. A number of States impose taxes of 10 cents per pound on colored margarine and others levy taxes of from 5 to 15 cents per pound on the uncolored product. Various State governments also levy license fees on manufacturers of margarine and on wholesalers and retailers handling it. In some cases the fees are so high as to be prohibitive, to say nothing of the vexatious regulations that discourage would-be handlers. Finally, a long list of States prohibit use of margarine in public institutions, although recently there has been some progress made toward abolition of this restriction. So it is evident that, even if the Federal margarine taxes are repealed, the fight for establishment of competitive equality, legislatively speaking, between margarine and butter has just begun.

Moreover, in this period of scarcity and abnormally high butter prices there is a real danger that elimination of the 10-cent Federal tax on colored margarine may not have the desired effect of reducing margarine prices even in the areas where it can be freely sold. For, as noted in course of the House debate, margarine producers would probably sell the colored product exclusively if relieved from payment of extra taxes on it. And it might well be that they would take advantage of the opportunity to boost prices above those previously charged for the uncolored products. As the present spread between prices of the colored and uncolored product in some places, Washington, for instance, exceeds the amount of the 10-cent tax, the danger is by no means imaginary. While the possibility that the consumer may be exploited does not in the least afford an argument against repeal of economically indefensible taxes of this kind, it does emphasize the desirability of acquainting the consumer with the dangers that may lie ahead.

Star Chamber Methods

The merits of the case for extending the Trade Agreements Act are overshadowed for the moment by the decision of a Ways and Means Subcommittee to conduct hearings on this issue in secret. The present plan is to allow proponents of the trade agreements extension bill three days beginning next Monday. Then the opponents will have three days to present their views. The press and the public are to be excluded from all these sessions. We think that Congressman Doughton is justified in complaining that such procedure, in consideration of so vital an aspect of our national policy, "borders on star chamber methods."

Members of the subcommittee say that this procedure is a matter of expediency. Last year they held seven weeks of hearings on the subject of tariff policy. All they wish to hear now, they say, is a brief summary of the arguments "pro" and "con," and this can be more readily kept on a factual, nonpartisan basis in executive sessions. From the narrow viewpoint of expediting legislation on this controversial subject these arguments carry a good deal of weight. But mere expedition of the bill is a minor consideration. The type of bill that is to emerge is the most important factor. A determined effort is being made by some groups to discard the trade agreements program or limit extension of the act to one year at a time when the United States is imposing a policy of economic cooperation and reduction of trade barriers upon other countries through the European Recovery Program. To foster such a purpose behind closed doors would be a strange perversion of democratic principles.

The argument for closed hearings and nonpartisan testimony proves too much. It indicates a desire to avoid controversy on a subject on which public opinion is likely to run strongly against what a majority of the committee apparently wishes to do. In other words, the secret hearings appear to be a device for minimizing criticism. Not only is this a reversal of the democratic process by which public issues are brought out into the light of day for full and free discussion. It also flies into the face of the Congressional Reorganization Act which contemplated that committee hearings should be open to the public. To be sure, the act allows exceptions by majority vote of the committee concerned, but we can see no legitimate excuse whatever for making an exception in the present case.

The subcommittee has succeeded only in putting itself on the defensive from the very beginning. Its secrecy leads inevitably to the assumption that what is contemplated can best be done in the dark. If anything less than a full extension of the Trade Agreements Act, in conformity with our bipartisan foreign policy, should come out of the committee in these circumstances, it would be properly subjected to double suspicion and attack.

Minimum Wage

So swift has been the sweep of inflation that the minimum wage bill passed by the Senate in 1946, providing for a floor of 65 cents an hour, is now quite inadequate. The 40-cent rate which is still all that the law requires is, of course, altogether obsolete. As Dr. Isador Lubin, former Commissioner of Labor Statistics, observed the other day in testimony before a House Education and Labor Subcommittee, "For all practical purposes, we have now no minimum wage legislation, and large numbers of workers are again lagging far behind the rest of the country with respect to living standards."

The 75-cent minimum now proposed in a bill sponsored by Senator Elbert Thomas and Representative John McCormack would enable a man who worked a 40-hour week to bring home to his wife and children a pay envelope containing only $30—painfully little when one considers that in January of this year the consumers' price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics was 68.8 per cent over the 1935-9 level for all items in a moderate-income family budget. A 75-cent rate today would affect fewer than 10 per cent of the American workers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act and would require, according to Dr. Lubin, an estimated additional wage bill of about 1 per cent of total manufacturing payrolls, or about 325 million dollars a year.

In contrast, Senator Ball has introduced a bill which would fix the minimum wage at 60 cents an hour with provision for lifting it to 70 cents or lowering it to 50 at the discretion of industry committees. What is even more serious, perhaps, is that the Ball bill would narrow the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act at a time when it ought to be expanded and would permit the industry committees to introduce regional differentials in arriving at minimum rates.

The Ball bill would limit the Act's definition of interstate commerce and would continue or expand existing exemptions of workers in retail and service establishments, food processing plants, seamen and others peculiarly in need of the Act's protection. Probably more than a million workers now covered would be removed from the scope of the act, although it is impossible to foresee the number with any certainty before the end of years of litigation invited by the changes Senator Ball suggests.

The permission of regional differentials runs counter to the central concept of wage-hour legislation. It is permission, in effect, to operate sweatshops and to encourage substandard conditions of employment. It is intended, of course, to benefit the industries of the South where the cost of living appears to be lower, principally because the standard of living is lower. But that depressed standard is a burden to the South, not a boon. A decent minimum wage is designed to promote minimum conditions of decency. They should prevail in all parts of the country, and no employers anywhere should be allowed to undermine or undercut them.

William S. Knudsen

William S. Knudsen's deserved reputation as a production genius would have caused his name to be long remembered, even if the fortunes of war had not given him the opportunity of putting his talents at the service of his adopted country. As it is, his death will be deeply regretted by millions of his fellow citizens who gratefully remember the contributions he made to speeding up our war production efforts during the critical period preceding our entry into the war and the even greater services he rendered during the war years in an advisory capacity to the War Department.

It is fortunate for the country that Mr. Knudsen was released very soon from the uncongenial duties that devolved upon him as head of the prewar OPM. For he did not have the qualities required of an administrative official called upon to supervise a complicated, loose-jointed governmental agency charged with the over-all conduct of our defense and war production efforts. Mr. Knudsen's ability to get things done lay in the direct approach that makes a man impatient of bureaucratic red tape. As a production engineer, he was accustomed to giving orders and expecting that they would be obeyed. It soon became obvious that his special talents were wasted in a governmental job calling for tact and skill in coordinating the efforts of warring elements as well as adroitness in forestalling or overcoming politically inspired criticism.

Mr. Knudsen's stature as a public-spirited citizen was enhanced by the cheerful readiness with which he retired from his conspicuous position as head of OPM to become the Army's production chief, with the rank of lieutenant general. In that capacity he inspected munitions plants in all parts of the country, helped to standardize manufacturing processes and suggested ways and means of increasing the output of war materiel. No doubt his untiring labors helped to bring on the ill-health that led to his untimely death.

When Mr. Knudsen gave up the presidency of General Motors in 1940 to enter the Government service, he said, "This country . . . has been pretty good to me . . . I felt that if I could do something, I'd like to do it." That simple declaration is a reminder that the country as well as the man who spoke has cause to be thankful that it has opened the doors of opportunity to aliens who, like Mr. Knudsen, know how to give as well as receive benefits.

Radio Critic

Although the radio industry may not recognize it, the expiration of Clifford J. Durr's term on the Federal Communications Commission at the end of June will deprive it of one of its best friends as well as of one of its severest critics. Mr. Durr has done a great deal to help radio grow up. He has encouraged broadcasters to emancipate themselves from their advertisers. He has fostered a measure of independence on the part of network affiliates. He has fought consistently for freedom of the air—viewing freedom always as the interest of the listener and insisting that radio make itself a medium for the conflict of ideas which is the essence of the democratic process. He has had faith in the tremendous potentialities of radio and an understanding of its great social impact.

In asking Mr. Durr to accept renomination, President Truman paid tribute to the quality of his service and made amends, at least in part, for certain past failures to reappoint other men who had served his Administration faithfully and well. The request was the more commendable in this case because Mr. Durr has been a vigorous critic of the President's loyalty investigation program. There ought to be room in the Government for rebels of such courage; they relieve the conformity which is too often the curse of bureaucracy. It is a public misfortune that Clifford Durr can no longer afford the luxury of public service.

MAEVE THE WARRIOR

Maeve tossed her bright hair
And tall she stood,
Taller than sacred oaks
In the Druid wood.
Maeve spoke, and her voice rang
Over the Irish land,
And her words were wiser than secret runes
Carved in the sand.
Maeve held her shield aloft
And caught the sun,
And the sun leapt from the queen's shield
And blinded the foe in the battle field,
And Maeve won.

Utilising Our Resources

Impartial observers have noted that one of the most persistent shortcomings of American foreign policy is its failure to adequately utilize all of the potential facilities which it possesses, and which it might actually employ in the world-wide struggle against communism. Two such instances in which America has failed to make best possible use of its facilities are:

The failure to draw from the tremendous reserve of able talent consisting of Americans of Greek descent who could prove of invaluable aid in the American-Greek program.

The failure to supply an adequate number of radio sets to actually receive the increasing number of United States overseas programs beamed to Greece and other lands.

Taking up the first item, American and foreign diplomats know that one of the greatest weapons in the American arsenal is the number of Americans of foreign descent who could be used as leaders in the reconstruction of their former homeland, or the land of their fathers. Nowhere is this better illustrated than in the case of Greece, with many loyal Greco-Americans available for diplomatic, economic and political service. For some strange reason, however, State Department officials have shown a complete reluctance to draw upon this incomparable supply of talent—men who know the language, who know the economic, political and social problems at first hand, who understand its people, whose allegiance to America is absolutely unquestioned, and whose interest in securing a peaceful reconstructed Greece is equal to or greater than that of many other groups of Americans.

On the second front, it seems foolishly shortsighted to be increasing appropriations for the State Department Overseas Information Program and at the same time to do nothing to overcome the grave shortage of radio sets. Surely American diplomats have noted the woefully inadequate number of individual receiving sets in a land such as Greece, and of public sets in which communities can receive messages. At the same time, American radio production here at home is soaring to new heights and has adequately taken care of the initial post-war demand for sets. Thus, America's incomparable facilities for radio production might well be utilized to turn out sets by the thousands with receiving bands so arranged as to be capable of picking up clearly and distinctly American overseas broadcasts.

D. A. R. And Immigration

I notice with some concern Herblock's April 24 cartoon. This cartoon shows a rotund old lady, who I suppose represents the DAR, waving away a boat coming in labeled "Refugees," while she herself carries a picture of the Mayflower. She also wears a ribbon with "Anti-immigration."

Let's take a look at the situation in another light: When her people and the early Americans came over in boats similar to the Mayflower they came to a new country to build a new nation by their sweat and toil; to clear the great forests and at the same time fight off the savage Indian. They landed in no land of wealth and gravy already built into the greatest and wealthiest country in the world.

I for one am ever ready to come to the defense of the Daughters of the American Revolution. They stand for the solid stock that built and made America great, and see no good from any further dilution by an influx from Europe who look toward America as the land of plenty—for them.

Caring For Our Own

Why not do something useful and help a lot of people who can't help themselves but need help badly here in the United States? I mean the indigent, the aged, the sick, and young and old inmates who are confined to the different institutions for public care or correction.

Disgraceful conditions exist in these matters that every person in the United States should certainly be very much ashamed of.

It is my own opinion that if one half of the money wasted in the Marshall Plan were spent to help our own people, who need it, or spent in research to prevent sickness and crime, democracy would be a permanent fact here in the United States and not something we would worry about losing.

Blind Obedience

The first paragraph of an Associated Press article in The Washington Post of April 9 states:

"Any soldier who murders innocent civilians is just as guilty as his superior who ordered him to do it, a United States War Crimes tribunal ruled today."

The ruling shows the absurdity of trying to apply principles of justice and decency to acts of war. For would it not apply as well to our soldiers who, under orders dropped bombs—even atom bombs—on innocent civilians, or torpedoed boats, or shelled cities?

The oath required of a soldier compels him to renounce his conscience and accept the dictates of others. Morality and decency break down because the individual is taught that he is not responsible for his acts. On what other basis would a rational human being stick another with a bayonet, or burst him into pieces with a hand grenade, or torture him with a flame thrower?

The ruling stated that the soldier "is bound only to obey the lawful orders of his superior." The tribunal should ask any GI what would have happened if he told his sergeant, or captain, that an order was unlawful.

Mrs. Meyer On The Kinsey Report

Mrs. Eugene Meyer has denounced the Kinsey report (Sexual Behavior in the Human Male) as a "flagrant misuse of scientific method" (Washington Post, 15 April). "The Kinsey Report," she says, "is another proof that neither public nor private research in sociology is close enough to the field of political and social action. Facts have no importance except as they can be interpreted into a philosophy of life and into policies, practices and administrative procedures."

This statement betrays a serious misunderstanding of the function of science. As any reputable scientist will tell Mrs. Meyer, scientific method does not seek to impose the desires and hopes of men upon the data it studies. While the findings of science can and should be used in such a way as to contribute to the achievement of social objectives, scientific method consists in seeking—in a disinterested manner and irrespective of men's desires—to understand the nature of things. What Mrs. Meyer does not appreciate is that disinterested scientific investigation must precede the understanding of fact, and that only if scientists are free to examine all aspects of human experience, and are able to publish their results for all the world to see, can valid information be obtained.

Yet Mrs. Meyer predicts that "unless our scientists establish their own professional ethics as to the dissemination of their publications and exhibit a sensitivity as to the meaning and social influence of the work they produce, the popular reaction may become so violent that it will hamper the free development and the free publication of scientific research." The fact is, except under dictatorships, where free expressions cannot be permitted, there is no justification whatever for the restraint of scientific research.

Society is continually faced with a welter of competing philosophies of life. Since under Mrs. Meyer's theory a scientist is obligated to consider only such facts as can be fitted into one of these philosophies, and to "exhibit a sensitivity" to the "popular" taste in so doing, the question arises as to which of these prejudices must be considered the accepted philosophy. I imagine most of us would assume that competing philosophies of life would be continually subjected to the critical eye of scientific analysis with a view to determining which of them best harmonizes with our increasing knowledge of the nature of things. But since to Mrs. Meyer, mere preoccupation with the nature of things is a "purposeless amassing of facts" and of "no importance," we face the dilemma of having to select a philosophy of life without any rational criterion for the selection. Recent history does, however, provide us with an example of how a society which adopted Mrs. Meyer's intellectual position did in fact resolve this dilemma: "Out of the host of sometimes millions of people, who individually more or less clearly and distinctly guess the truth, partly perhaps understand it, one man must step forward in order to form, with apodictic force, out of the wavering world of imagination of the great masses, granite principles, and to take up the fight for their sole correctness, until out of the playing waves of a free world of thought a brazen rock of uniform combination of form and will arises." These are the words of Adolf Hitler in Mein Kampf!

Now anyone familiar with the broad social interests and good works of Mrs. Meyer knows it would be monstrous to suggest that she approves the Nazi ideology. But the fact remains she exhibits the same intellectual fallacy which in Germany created a social climate receptive to Hitler. It was Alfred Rosenberg, official Nazi philosopher, who said: "We renounce research for its own sake." It was Hitler's Educational Minister who said: "All education must today be political education, in order to safeguard the life of the community and therewith the life of the individual. And all learning must fulfill the unqualified goal of education in cooperation with the political function."

The Kinsey report contains a number of facts that have shocked and startled many people. It is the duty of persons in positions of influence to see to it that this state of shock does not lead to hysteria and thus play into the hands of the forces of obscurantism and reaction which are constantly alert to any failure of nerve in the body politic.

DAVID K. EICHLER.
Chevy Chase.

[Editor's Note: Mrs. Meyer did not say that scientific facts should support some particular philosophy of life, but that they should not be aimlessly gathered. She quoted Whitehead as follows: "Insofar as philosophers have failed, scientists do not know what they are talking about when they pursue their own methods; and insofar as philosophers have succeeded, to that extent scientists can attain an understanding of science."]

"Me and Mine" Tariff Threat

By Malvina Lindsay

Footing The Bill

ANOTHER DROP in the American standard of living, already falling through inflated prices, is threatened by efforts in Congress of high tariff exponents to weaken if not end the reciprocal trade agreements program, authority for which expires in June.

Opponents of the program are said now to favor a slow death, or a delayed execution for it rather than an outright killing. Thus openly, at least, this country would not pull the economic cornerstone out from under its whole foreign program, including ERP. It would let the termites of restriction do the job.

Aside from the effect of this on future American trade, employment, prosperity, even on war and peace, is the way it would hit the family dinner table, clothes closet, budget. Economic isolationists when they paid their bills might find their tough policy toward "foreigners'" products had backfired. They probably would find themselves paying a little more for more and more kinds of goods—all because duties were being raised or placed on the innumerable foreign products that enter into daily living.

ONE OF the first results of a weakening of the tariff agreements would be a field day in Washington for the strong lobbies for industries whose products enter materially into the cost of living. The consumer would realize that another trade war was beginning when he found himself paying not only the cost of duties on products he needed but also the higher cost of the "protected" articles produced in the United States.

Clothes prices would soon reflect what was going on. Domestic wool producers, who are most vocal for protection for their relatively small industry, were able to get through the present Congress a bill providing for imposition of wool import quotas. The bill was stopped by a presidential veto.

Silk prices would no doubt reflect rising tariffs levied in protection of rayon and nylon. Gloves and shoes also would be affected. Hide production in this country is inadequate to meet needs and the customer would have the choice of paying the tariff on imported leather products or higher prices for domestic ones.

Lobbies of the meat packers, the sugar industry of the makers of watches, guns, chinaware, pottery, carpets, lace, naturally would press for more protection from foreign products if the country started to go nationalist again in trade. The consumer would foot the bill whether he bought foreign or American.

WHILE THE tendency at first is to put tariffs only on foreign goods with which an American industry—usually called "infant" and frequently not especially suited to this country since it seldom grows up on its own momentum—is competing, yet as trade war increases, more and more foreign products are put under duties, even those without American competition. This was what happened after passage of the Smoot-Hawley Act. Americans were paying tariff costs on innumerable articles just because these were foreign.

This country has now become so dependent on foreign products that their variations in cost quickly affect consumers' pocketbooks. If tariffs got out of hand, the consumer might eventually be paying a tariff that hurt every time he ate a banana, pineapple, olive; every time he took an ice cream soda flavored with chocolate, vanilla or coffee, or a cup of tea or coffee, or a soft drink whose basis was cocoa leaves or kola nuts; every time he spread his bread with oleomargarine (because of cocoanut oil); every time he ate a piece of bacon from a hog fattened on feeds containing foreign elements.

He might pay still more for his sugar, half of which he gets from Cuba. It has been estimated that the cost to consumers of the Cuban sugar agreements is around 300 million dollars annually. Hidden costs of tariffs would also get into farm prices as farmers paid duties on fertilizer, seeds, breeds of livestock, or farm machinery that requires imports for its making.

No one knows how much American consumers pay out of their pockets each year because of tariffs. But this will run a lot higher if it's every man for himself again in international trade.

"On Insubordination"

Your April 22 editorial "On Insubordination" has aroused amazed indignation among admirers of The Washington Post.

The obvious reference to differences of opinion on air power as a form of "fifth column activity at cocktail parties" is bad enough—but quoting Secretary Stimson's book in support of an implication that the cause of these differences is personal advancement, and the cure court-martial, brings bad taste to the verge of libel, with no redress for the unnamed victim.

Many of us remember that what you describe as "one highly effective remedy for insubordination" was applied in the case of Billy Mitchell.

Congress has recently made all possible amends to his memory, and it ill becomes any responsible newspaper to impugn the motives of those who are still fighting his fight with the same fearless patriotism.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Stassen Vs. Taft In Ohio Primary

THE TWO contestants in the Republican presidential primary in Ohio are really warming up. Harold Stassen and Senator Robert A. Taft are throwing assorted crockery at each other as the campaign goes into the final week.

Childs

Stassen intimates that Taft is the archenemy of labor. And Taft comes back with the most lurid of all charges. Stassen, he says, is a New Dealer.

The Senator's ire is rising. If it had not been for this brazen upstart from Minnesota, he would not have had to go barnstorming through his own State appealing for votes at hamlets and crossroads.

One thing this contest demonstrates, and that is how little meaning political labels really have. Taft is aggrieved that Stassen should be considered a liberal and that, by contrast, he himself is made to seem a conservative or even a reactionary.

LOOKING AT the record, one must admit that he has reason to feel he is being treated unjustly. What has just happened here in Washington underwrites Taft's claim that he has just as much right to the "liberal" label as the ambitious young man from Minnesota.

The Senate has passed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. Taft can rightly claim credit for its passage. It was his persistence and his parliamentary resourcefulness that put it through in spite of all the obstacles set in its path.

As adopted by the Senate, the heart of the measure is the provision for slum clearance with Federal funds. The Government will put in 160 million dollars over a period of five years to help build 500,00 low-rental units. In spite of screams of socialism and communism from the building and real estate lobbies, Taft has stuck by this public housing provision. He has stuck by it with the stubbornness of a man who has the courage to be right once he has made up his mind.

Interestingly enough, the chief opponent of this public housing provision in the Senate was Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin. McCarthy is Stassen's chief senatorial supporter. He campaigned for him in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

STASSEN CANNOT, of course, be held accountable for the things his friends say and do. He himself has urged that the Federal Government use a billion dollars a year "for a major large-scale construction effort."

Not only on housing but on health and education Taft has fought for the minimum of Federal aid which he believes essential to raise the lowest income families to a decent standard. He has fought McCarthy and other conservatives in the Senate and the Tory band in the House that has held the fort against any constructive legislation. This gives point to Taft's accusation that Stassen deliberately stayed out of the Senate in order to run for President and thereby avoided the day-to-day struggle to shape Republican policy.

Primarily it is on foreign policy that Stassen is judged a liberal, and Taft a conservative. Repeatedly Stassen has spoken his approval of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and the European Recovery Program. Taft tried to reduce the recovery appropriation by a billion dollars—which would have made it a futile breadline operation.

Even here, however, the labels will not stay put. Stassen advocated a provision denying any recovery funds to countries that proposed further nationalization or socialization. Such a provision would have been regarded in Europe as an attempt to dictate internal policy and, if it had been included, most nations would have been unable to cooperate in the program. Taft was against the provision, saying he believed it to be unworkable.

When you get away from principles and into personalities, then the difference between the two battlers in Ohio is really striking. Taft is plain-spoken to the point of bluntness, and his speeches are never spiced with fine phrases. Stassen impressed the voters with his sincere eloquence, his hopeful generalities about America and the world.

The Stassen formula has worked wonders in Nebraska and Wisconsin. Behind the eloquence is skillful political organization. Taft managers have conceded up to 9 delegates for Stassen out of the 23 he is seeking in Ohio, and his total is likely to be larger. The moral seems to be that most people never bother to look behind the label once it has been fixed.

The Gallup Poll

Public Sentiment Increases For Aid to Chiang's Regime

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., April 27.—Moves in Congress during recent months to supply more money and military aid to Nationalist China find considerable backing from American public opinion.

While the average voter has not followed events in China closely and is not well-informed about the intricate and complex situation there, the general impression of the public appears to be favorable toward the Chiang Kai-shek government. A coast-to-coast poll finds that the predominant sentiment is for giving the Nationalist forces greater aid.

Shortly after Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg had described the China situation as "touch and go" in its seriousness, Congress passed a China aid bill of $463,000,000, including a $100,000,000 grant which the Chinese Central Government may use to obtain military supplies for its civil war against Communist forces.

To sound out public opinion on the whole situation the Institute polled voters from coast to coast on the question:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the United States giving the Chiank Ka-shek (Nationalist) government more military supplies, goods and money?"

The vote:

Approve	55%
Disapprove	32
No opinion	13

Veterans of World War II expressed approval by a considerably higher majority than the country as a whole. The veterans voted 64 per cent in favor, 27 per cent opposed and 9 per cent no opinion.

The poll found no substantial differences of opinion by geographical sections, although the East Central area voted less in favor than other sections. The vote follows:

	Approve	Disapprove	No opin.
New Eng. & Mid. Atl.	57%	31%	12%
East Central	51	35	14
West Central	55	32	13
South	57	26	17
Far West	52	33	15

May and June Grain Exports To Be Boosted

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

Government exports of grain will be stepped up in May and June to meet the new goal set by the Cabinet Food Committee Monday.

The revised figures will call for shipments of 80 million bushels in May and June—or 40 million a month. This is close to an all-time high.

The committee, in setting the new figure of 577 million bushels of grain to be sent to hungry countries abroad, set a new all-time record for such exports by any country. It is five million bushels above last year's stupendous total of 572 million.

The announcement of the new goals brought a sharp upturn in grain prices yesterday. Wheat jumped 3 cents a bushel, but tapered off at the close to 1½ to 2½ cents.

The new goals are more than 100 million bushels above the goal of 470 million originally set by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson last fall. It even exceeds the 570 million President Truman set as a goal when he set up the Luckman Citizens Food Committee in October.

It is greater than the total American production in both 1933 and 1934, when 552 million and 526 million bushels, respectively, were harvested. It just about equals the average American production for the four years 1933-1936. The average for the four years was 583 million bushels.

Key Shantung City Falls to Communists

Nanking, April 27 (AP).—The government lost flaming Weihsien to Communist assault today and with it control of strategic north central Shantung Province.

Reports reaching Nanking said the city fell when governments reinforcements failed to reach the outnumbered garrison. Some pro-government dispatches insisted the garrison held out in part of the city.

Chinese air force pilots returning to Tsingtao, Shantung port used as an anchorage by the United States western Pacific fleet, confirmed the city's fall. They said the garrison was retreating to Changlo, 15 miles west.

Weihsien was one of the major prizes won by the government in last year's offensive in central and northern Shantung. The Communists now have recaptured most of the ground they lost then.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Getting Down To Business

THE NUMEROUS and as yet ill-founded rumors of such dramatic events as a Washington meeting between Messrs. Marshall, Bevin and Bidault are froth on the surface of a vitally important tide. The crucial stage has been reached, in fact, in the efforts to work out an enduring political and strategic relationship between Europe and this hemisphere.

As usual, the facts are considerably less stirring than the rumors they generate. Two main efforts are now going on. The first effort is to find out what the western Europeans can do to help themselves. The second effort is to find out what Congress will do to help the western Europeans.

THE FIRST PROBLEM is being tackled in London by the Permanent Military Committee of the Western European Union, comprising representatives of the staffs of Britain, France and Benelux countries. From earlier talks it is already clear that their planning will be aimed at making it eventually possible to hold the line of the Rhine against Soviet attack. But the staffs must now decide which country is to contribute how many divisions; how the equipment is to be standardized; how command is to be unified, and what minimum of aid they will need from the United States.

The second problem, of what Congress can be induced to do at this time, has been and is being urgently tackled in talks between representatives of the Administration and the congressional leaders. The chief men involved are Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Senator Vandenberg and Under Secretary Lovett constitute one of the most collaborative teams the Capital has seen for a long time. It is symptomatic of the way they think alike that they had both reached the same conclusion before their first meeting. Independently and without consultation, each had formed the opinion that what they call the "E. R. P. pattern" ought to be followed. The Europeans have therefore been asked to be pretty precise about their plans for helping themselves, before starting any discussion of American help in this new political-strategic sphere. What is done here is thus partly dependent on the outcome in London.

There are several issues which could cause really violent disagreement in London. For example, Britain and the Benelux countries have already intimated that France should provide the manpower for more than two-thirds of the 45 to 50 divisions thought necessary to hold the Rhine line. It is hard to see how any but French divisions could be in position on the Rhine in time to repel an attack. The British consequently argue that their contribution should be chiefly in the form of air and naval power. But several factors, such as the corporate interests of the French air force and navy, and French memories of limited R. A. F. participation in the Battle of France, are going to make the French fight very hard against acceptance of the British-Benelux concept.

The perils ahead in London are fairly obvious. The desire of the western Europeans for American military guaranties is so strong, however, that the permanent military committee of the Western Union is expected to reach rather early agreement, at least in principle. If this agreement is not utterly hollow, the time for American action will then have come.

ONE POINT is already clear about our action. The western Europeans have said frankly that in view of the political situation in this country, they would place no reliance on any mere presidential or executive declaration. The State Department sympathizes with this position. The President will therefore probably announce the American guaranty of Europe against aggression. But what the President says will be confirmed, at a minimum, by a bipartisan resolution in the Senate.

This is the least that can be done if the western Europeans are not to conclude that American foreign policy is empty and meaningless. The other alternative being discussed is more elaborate. Under this alternative, the President would probably still issue a declaration committing this country to go to war if western Europe is attacked. The Senate, and perhaps the Congress as a whole, would still be asked to pass a confirming resolution. But it would also be announced, concurrently, that the United States Government wished ultimately to negotiate a formal treaty with Europe. The spadework on such a treaty would then be begun at once; and the treaty would be offered to the next session of Congress.

Neither an early meeting between Marshall, Bevin and Bidault, nor immediate [illegible] of lend-lease for Europe, is [illegible] likely. A Bevin-Bidault-Marshall meeting can hardly take place until decisions have been taken which will assure the meeting's success. Military lend-lease cannot be launched until military plans are formulated and agreed upon. But the main thing is that the grand design—the preliminary organization of the non-Soviet world—is already in hand.

'Search' Focuses On GI and Waif

By Richard L. Coe

LAST NIGHT was cause for rejoicing—the opening of a beautiful new theater with a fine, stirring film. The Playhouse, at 727 15th st., is the theater. "The Search," an American film made in Germany, is the picture.

The picture's forthright honesty finds heartening hope in unlikely material. Its story is of a little Czech boy, his mother, and their search for each other in the displaced persons camps of a shattered continent.

How they do find each other, through the helping hands of an international relief organization, and how the compassion of a young American in uniform guides the child from his terrible loneliness, form a story of telling drama. The picture was filmed in the stark ruins of Germany through the resources of Hollywood's Metro. The acting, topped by the remarkable performance of the child, Ivan Jandl, has the easy naturalness that only inspired players can bring to their art.

More than the story, however, is the unstated theme—the role our own Nation is beginning to play throughout the world. This vision of the helping hand stretched from a land of staggering natural riches toward a shattered world will stir the imagination of all Americans. That a picture of so potentially somber a nature can become a statement of hopeful courage is a triumph of film-making.

One can't help, to be sure, feeling wistful that it has taken so long for so natural a film drama to reach a vast public which knows too little about the work international organizations have been doing. The UNRRA which inspired the story is no more, but the International Refugee Organization and the American Military Government have taken over its duties and one must stop to admire some of our people who have been giving their years to these groups.

"The Search" begins with a peaceful view of a Czech family at home. The father is an "intellectual," and soon father, daughter, mother and son are scattered by the winds of the conquering Nazis. The coming of peace finds the mother alone, searching for her 10-year-old son.

By now he has become a silent little waif, haunted by memories he doesn't quite recall, living with hundreds like him and differing from them only in the extent of his speechlessness. When a likeable young soldier comes across him, ravenously hungry, this Yank takes him to his billet — as so many Yanks did with the children they came across in their remarkable journeys — and patiently breaks down his frightened reserve.

The scenes between these two are the most warming in the film — two decent persons of vastly different backgrounds discovering the human understanding that is the secret of world peace. The quick mind of the 10-year-old and the kindly patience of the young man build between them a new life for the child and a fruitful growth for his friend.

As the youngster, 10-year-old Ivan Jandl gives a remarkable performance. Director Fred Zinnemann happened on him in a Prague radio station after months of fruitless efforts to find a child capable of playing that demanding role. The child, who had had infantile paralysis as a baby, was singing in a boys' choir and had played small parts in several Czech films. Here, certainly, is one of the fine film performances of the year.

The other roles are eloquently played, highlighted by a splendid performance from the young American actor, Montgomery Clift. Clift makes the Yank both virile and sensitive, a shrewd, winning achievement. Then, too, there is a moving portrayal of the lost mother by Jarmila Novotna, the Metropolitan Opera soprano who took on this particular assignment as a tribute to her country. Aline MacMahon epitomizes the efficient kindliness that was the core of the UNRRA ideal.

Produced by Lazar Wechsler, who gave us "The Last Chance," and directed by Hollywood's Zinnemann, "The Search" is a film Metro can be proud of.

"THE SEARCH." M-G-M release produced by Lazar Wechsler. Screen play by Richard Schweizer and David Wechsler with additional dialogue by Paul Jarrico. Emil Berna, photography director. Music by Robert Blum. Technical adviser, Therese Bonney. Directed by Fred Zinnemann. At the Playhouse.

A Best-Seller Gone Wrong

Screen 'Miracle' Is Challenge To Faith—Faith in Hollywood

"THE Miracle of the Bells," at Keith's, is a crashing bore of monumental pretentions.

I don't know when I've seen so deadly, stultifying a movie. This is the film version of Russell Janney's best-selling novel about a dead Polish-American actress whose only film is released after a series of incidents which give the appearance of the miraculous.

The point of Janny's well-intended novel was that the faith of a young girl, transmitted to the people of a Pennsylvania mining town, reformed them from their greedy ways. The advantage of the Janney novel was that its peculiar story ripped along at a good, lovely pace.

Both these virtues have been ignored in the picture Irving Nichols has directed for Jesse Lasky and Walter McEwen. The characters who changed their ways under the spell of the girl's faith are either watered down or entirely omitted. The pace of the picture—a series of lugubrious flashbacks—is a most self-conscious parading of "faith" that defies description.

The screen play was adapted, according to the credits, by Ben Hecht and Quentin Reynolds. Not long ago Reynolds was quoted—no doubt by his friends—as having remarked that his job on the picture was to read the book, tell Hecht about it and that Hecht wrote the screen play. Whether this is true or not, it has the appearance of truth and suggests a good out for Reynolds, though whether he and Hecht are still speaking I wouldn't even guess, though, no doubt, both were handsomely rewarded for their roles in this boob-catcher.

Fred MacMurray plays the press agent who never got around to discovering his love for the dead girl until too late. Such a role would baffle anyone and Fred does what he can by furrowing his brow. Valli, an Italian star in her first American film, makes precious little of the ghostly Olga. Frank Sinatra plays the . le of the understanding, shy little Father Paul with obvious sincerity. And Lee J. Cobb is ably forceful as the reluctant producer of the girl's "Joan of Arc."

But the tasteless, phony piety of the film's entire atmosphere is against all the players. The handling of the greedy Father Spinsky as though he were a china doll, the omission of his bitter sister and the worldly bishop remove all point of Olga's posthumous influence. For all the picture tells us, the people of Coaltown are as bad and ignorant as she had left them four years before—except that a grateful motion picture mogul is going to build them a hospital.

The picture gives you the feeling that since this was a big best-seller and its theme is faith, it will clean up at the boxoffice.

Take it away, take it away, take it away.—R. L. C.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

NOTHING HURTS BEVERLY—Beverly Smith, a 1-year-old who cries only when hungry or angry, feels no pain as Nurse Helen Zimmerman pricks the baby's arm with a pin in Children's Hospital, Akron, Ohio. Beverly has never felt a hurt and never is likely to, according to doctors who described her condition as a "developmental defect, not a disease." It has no remedy. "Once she laid her hand on a hot stove," said the child's mother, "and she just looked at me and laughed"

8 Protestant Church Councils Agree to Unification Program

Chicago, April 27 (U.P.).—Eight inter-church groups representing 45 million Protestants throughout the country have agreed tentatively to join forces in a new National Council of Churches of Christ in America, it was announced today.

An administrative committee representing the organization, which includes the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, said the proposed merger now is being submitted to member churches for ratification.

Heads of the eight groups met in Chicago recently and formulated a two-year plan for putting the unification plan into effect. The new council would bring "a unity of action and avoid duplication of effort," a spokesman said.

The groups are, in addition to the Federal Council: The International Council of Religious Education, Home Missions Council of North America, Foreign Missions Conference of North America, Missionary Movement of the United States and Canada, United Council of Churchwomen, National Protestant Council of Higher Education and the United Stewardship Council.

Other issues include church union and ministers' salaries and pensions.

The decisions by the body will set the laws and policy for four years, until the next general conference.

Methodist Conference To Discuss World Peace

Boston, April 27 (AP).—Questions ranging from world peace to liquor and gambling will face the top law-making body of the Methodist Church when it opens a 10-day session Wednesday.

More than 1000 petitions for legislative action have been submitted to the general conference for consideration by 800 delegates representing 8,500,000 church members.

Bradley Hills Group Protests Sharp Rise in Assessments

Increased land assessments ranging from 100 to 700 per cent which become effective Saturday were protested before the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday by a group of Bradley Hills, Md., property owners.

Seven from Bradley Boulevard Citizens Association termed the increased assessments "unfair and discriminatory" and Association President Jack Irwin warned the higher taxes may force county residents to move elsewhere.

Reassessment of one lot resulted in a jump from $400 valuation to $2820, delegation members complained, and other increases cited were from $1000 to $2240 and $2500 to $4400.

Chairman Ralph D. Boyd, of the Civic Planning Committee, reported to the board an estimate that the county population is currently about 140,000. He said the committee estimated that in 1960 there will be a population of 180,000 and in 1990, 230,000.

Anders R. Lofstrand, jr. complained of the smoke and odor from a dump near Rockville operated by Blake D. Merson. He said fires have broken out in the dump adjoining his property.

Merson told the board he had been unable to operate a sanitary fill because of rocks in the soil and the fires resulted from spontaneous combustion. He said he didn't want to operate the dump but "so one will take care of trash disposal in Rockville but me."

Lawson

Other nominations included Stephen O. Porter of Riggs National Bank to first vice president; Samuel C. Redman, jr., of Lincoln National Bank to second vice president, and Ralph H. Senate Probe Of K-F Stock Fiasco Hinted

By the Associated Press

The Senate Banking Committee may step into the investigation of the collapse of a deal to sell Kaiser-Frazer stock.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H., chairman of the committee, asked the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday for a full report on its own actions in the case.

The SEC is investigating the Feb. 9 withdrawal by Otis and Co. of Cleveland and the First California Co. of San Francisco from a contract to sell 900,000 shares of Kaiser-Frazer stock for $13 a share.

Tobey said yesterday he is considering a recommendation to the Banking Committee that it makes a complete inquiry of its own, saying there is a "strong possibility" that the commission may not be free of responsibility in the case.

He said he wants to know what part the SEC had in approving the issue.

Tobey said he had seen "disturbing statements" that the proposed Kaiser-Frazer stock deal was to raise funds "to be used in whole or in large part, not to increase production, but to reimburse the corporation for about $10,000,000 which had been used to pay off a loan to the Bank of America upon which various insiders of the Kaiser-Frazer corporation were liable, individually or through companies that they owned."

Tobey made his announcement after two witnesses yesterday denied before the SEC several points of testimony given yesterday by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier connected with Otis and Co.

They were W. T. Birr, president of First California, and that company's attorney, Roy A. Bronson.

Eaton, who along with his family holds the majority of Otis stock, was on the stand Monday.

His testimony clashed with that of Henry J. Kaiser, who had testified before the SEC earlier.

PAA Revenues Top 120 Million; Nets $2,960,000

New York, April 27 (AP).—Pan American Airways Corp. in 1947 became the first airline in the world to exceed 100 million dollars in annual passenger and air freight revenues, Juan T. Trippe, president, told stockholders in the annual report today.

Gross commercial revenues, excluding United States mail pay, totaled $120,827,000, a 33 per cent increase over $91,049,000 in 1946.

The report estimated net income at $2,960,000, equal to 48 cents a share. This compared with $2,983,328, or 49 cents a share, in 1946.

Passenger miles increased during 1947 to 1,258,175,000 from 849,022,000, up 48 per cent. Air freight ton miles stepped up to 28,940,000 from 12,799,000.

Trippe predicted that in 1948 the system's passenger capacity will be expanded 45 per cent by the addition of 20 70-ton Clippers, built by Boeing, and 20 40-passenger twin-engine Clippers, built by Consolidated Vultee.

THE Shoreham Blue Room has an act that is different this week, the Peruvian Inka Tika Trio .... This group, presented at the Pan American Union two years ago, dresses in authentic Inca costumes and sings authentic Inca songs. Star of the act is Cholita Rivero, a shapely, exotic looking girl whose voice seems to have had some operatic training and is very easy to listen to. One man opening night said Cholita can reach a note high enough to be heard by only an animal's ears, a fairly safe statement to make, since few people take their pets night clubbing with them.

Cholita Rivero

At the Shoreham

The dancing half of the bill in the Blue Room is handled by Beatrice and Gomez, a dance team that is a vast improvement over the team of St. Clair and Day who followed the De Marcos. Beatrice and Gomez go through a dizzying routine that keeps the audience's attention very nicely.

Surprise of the evening came from what might be called a dark horse. Someone neglected to give Singer Bob Edwards billing in the room, possibly with the thought that he wasn't good enough or big enough to deserve it. He received as large a hand as anyone in the show and certainly did as good a job. Bob did a solo in the Hollander Hotel in Cleveland and the Wedgwood Room of the Waldorf Astoria before the war. He did 2½ years in the Navy during the war and after his discharge went with Vincent Lopez's orchestra for a while. Bob has talent and should go places. A tip for 10 percenters is that Bob is looking for a good (not fair) manager.

THE Mayflower Town and Country Room has been getting a play from the cocktail hour folks in town and is rapidly developing into a "meet me somewhere for a drink and talk" place. The service is wonderful.

After a spell of inactivity, Name-Bands Inc. is resuming the booking of name bands into the armory. Reason for the temporary shutdown was that they couldn't get big enough bands to keep the customers happy, so instead of booking in lesser talent they simply laid off. Next attraction is Tommy Dorsey who will work one night, May 7.

Coming attractions. Keep your eye on the Colony restaurant, which is opening soon across from the Mayflower.

"Why is there always plenty of Electricity for everyone, Pop?"

Good question. Did you ever stop to figure out why there is always plenty of electricity in your home, store or office? . . . Or, why there's an ample supply always at hand to serve new homes, new government projects or increased demand for electric service?

Pepco carefully plans it that way.

Pepco has a System Planning Division where specially trained engineers are constantly testing future plans with a miniature electric system. They set up plans for new circuits, new power plants, new distributing points years in advance.

No, electric service doesn't "just happen". It's planned by these experts. ("Crystal gazers" their fellow Pepconians call them.) But big system-planning allows no guesswork. It is a thoroughly skilled job—to assure you of constant improvement in your low-cost Electric Service!

Providing you with Electric Service is a very human job accomplished by our 2500 skilled men and women.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Commissioner John Russell Young said the Commissioners had decided no public hearing would be necessary because local residents were "so unanimous" in favoring DST last year. "And we've received practically no complaints against it since," he added.

President Brooke Johns of the Montgomery County Commissioners said the county "will definitely go along with the District."

A. T. Lundberg, Arlington County Manager, said the County Board last Saturday authorized action to follow the District on fast time.

Judge Enters Plea In Slaying for Sobbing Woman

Baltimore, April 27 (AP).—A 28-year-old mother, too incoherent to enter a plea, was held without bail today in a charge she fatally stabbed her second husband.

Mrs. Rita Zegzdryn, mother of three chaildren by her first marriage, sobbed so much at her arraignment before Magistrate Frank J. Schap that he said, "I'll enter a plea of not guilty for you."

He directed that she be held without bond pending a hearing to be arranged later by the State's attorney.

William C. Zegzdryn, 29, was stabbed with a carving knife in his home last night. He was pronounced dead at a hospital, where his wife also was taken for treatment of a knife wound in her shoulder.

Danville, Va., April 27 (AP).—Police today detained a carnival hand for questioning in connection with the shooting of William H. Osterberg and his fortune-telling wife, Ruth Osterberg, who were found slain in a trailer near the city Sunday.

The one-eyed man, whose name was withheld, was arrested in Asheville, N. C., on a charge of intoxication. He agreed, police said, to come here without extradition and is in the city jail.

J. Wallace Bryan was renamed to the board of examiners of public accountants for a three-year term and Irene Duffy to the board of examiners of nurses for a similar term. Eva M. Bradley was appointed for the first time to the nurses' board. All are Baltimoreans.

To county boards of education, the Governor made these six-year appointments:

Truman Speeds Athletic Plant At Maryland U.

Start of the University of Maryland's projected $2,500,000 athletic plant was cleared yesterday with signing by President Truman of a bill returning seven acres of land to the university.

The land is part of a tract of 20 acres donated by the university to the Federal Government in 1933 as site for a Bureau of Mines building. At that time the land was believed necessary for an access highway but since then a highway has been built without use of the seven acres.

Work on the athletic plant probably will begin this summer, Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, said. The new stadium will seat 32,235. Improved playing fields and better parking facilities also are planned.

School Conversion Opposed

Representatives of two Arlington groups last night told the county school board they objected to possible conversion of two local elementary schools to junior high schools.

The move is being considered to relieve critical overcrowding at the Washington-Lee High School, to save the school's accredited standing.

Sheldon F. Dean of Thomas Nelson Page School Parent-Teacher Association, said his organization objected to use of the school for a junior high school by a 115-to-15 vote.

Fred Bach, president of the Ballston Citizens Association, declared that his group opposed the conversion of the Ballston Elementary School to a similar junior high status.

The board, meeting at the James Munroe School, agreed to hold a spring inspection tour of the 31 Arlington schools sometime early in May. The survey would cover 10 schools while classes actually are in session.

A recommendation by Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, school board member, for organization of three-member "citizens" advisory committees" in each school was heard but no action was taken. Mrs. Campbell said the committees would serve as clearing houses for criticism and recommendations from parents.

The board set June 21 for opening of summer school and agrede to pay the tuition of more Arlington Negro student in Washington schools bringing to 34 the number of pupils so covered.

Joe Page Again Saves Decision for Yankees, 4-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GOLF'S POOR RICH boy is one of the attractions in the Prince Georges Open that starts tomorrow. Frank Stranahan is the most-publicized amateur to hit the golf scene since Bobby Jones retired and, he complains, the worst publicized. A lot of the latter may be his own fault, he concedes, but he says he's not really a bad guy.

POVICH

At any rate, young Stranahan is getting to be as much a gate attraction as the Hogans, Nelsons and Lockes in the big tournament fields. The P. G. A. people love to have him travel with their tournament troupes. He means dough at the gate, and as an amateur he takes no prize money out of their mouths. Not only that, but they like him anyway.

The peepul have been hearing about Stranahan for a couple of years now—the rich kid who is a good golfer and gets into trouble that makes the headlines. In the tournament fields, he draws a gallery that compares with those of the better pros.

"WHICH ONE is Stranahan?" the peepul ask, and want a look at the scion of the Champion sparkplug millions who can play such good golf and get such a bad press.

They've read all about him—how he bawls his caddies out, how he threw the British amateur championship into an uproar. His recent ejection from the Masters' tournament at August and what an impulsive and explosive kid he's supposed to be. When they threw him out of the Masters' a couple of weeks ago after what they said was an argument with the greenskeeper, an Atlanta paper headlined typically:

"Sparkplug heir blows gasket."

He got a bad deal in that one, he says, and there is evidence that he did. The pros were on his side and there was a movement to get him vindication before he called 'em off. It was a high-handed piece of business by the Augusta tournament committee that barred Stranahan for a brush with the greenskeeper during a practice round.

"I had permission to shoot a practice round and play only one ball to the green and I was doing that," said Stranahan, "when this greenskeeper piped up: 'I don't want any trouble from you this year.' We had words the year before, and I told him I wanted no trouble from him, either. The next thing I knew they barred me from the tournament without a hearing."

YOU HEAR all about how his dad spent $50,000 to make a golfer out of Stranahan, and how Byron Nelson was hired to take him in tow for a full year, but to that Stranahan says "nuts." He says, "I took a few lessons from Nelson, but I was a good golfer before that, and those stories are all part of that rich-kid routine I hear all the time. Like the story I'm going to inherit eight million dollars from my grandmother."

He's getting tired of being unpopular, he says.

"I blow up once in a while, and it's big news. Other guys do the same thing, and it's never printed. The gallery is always willing to believe the bad things. Somebody wrote a fiction story last year called 'The Bad Boy of Golf' for a national magazine and I was supposed to be the subject. It was voted one of the best fiction stories of the year, and that didn't help me."

It's so rough he says he is on the point of trying to give up being a nice guy . . . "It's no fun being booed, like I've been in tournaments. They said I had a feud with Smiley Quick, the national public links champion, and that was nonsense. "We're good friends, but everybody wanted to believe that I was a spoiled rich kid snubbing a public links player."

HE ADMITS to having rabbit-ears for the gallery's comments when he's playing in tournaments. "I can hear 'em whisper about me. It's easy to see they aren't rooting for me. Sure, they applaud me sometimes. When my opponent holes a long putt, they applaud him. That's all right, but when I miss a short putt, I've heard 'em applaud that, too, if you want to call it applause."

He doesn't want to turn pro because he's good enough to take some of the prize money away from the pros, and he doesn't need it. He won the $20,000 Kansas City Open, and his share was the $100 trophy to which amateurs are limited.

He's a strapping 178-pounder now, 25 years old, blond and kind of handsome. The pros call him "Muscles" Stranahan. He wasn't always healthy. Had rickets when he was a kid, and was pretty sickly. Built himself up with weight-lifting exercises. Carries barbells in the back of his car and works out with 'em every day. During a golf tournament in New Orleans last year he went from the links to the gym every day and won the weight-lifting titles in three different divisions of competition.

Giants Slug Phillies for Sixth in Row

New York, April 27 (AP).—New York Giant power asserted itself again today as the Polo Grounds belting crew pasted young Curt Simmons for two doubles, a triple and a home run and went on to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-1. It was the National League leaders' sixth straight win.

Larry Jansen, who failed in two previous starts after a fine 21-5 freshman season, hurled three-hit ball for his first victory. After Bert Haas homered in the first inning, he blanked the Philsthe rest of the way. He retired 25 of the last 26 men he faced.

Walker Cooper put the Giants out front to stay with his three-run homer in the third after Sid Gordon walked and ohnny Mize singled to center. It was Cooper's fourth homer and No. 11 for the Giants.

Jack Lohrke's triple over Harry Walker's head in left center was converted into a run in the sixth on ansen's squeeze bunt.

It was the second straight loss for the 18-year-old Simmons from Egypt, Pa., who was given a bonus of $60,000 for signing last June.

Braves Beat Bums, 3-2, Sweep Series

Boston, April 27 (AP).—Charlie (Red) Barrett's steady six-hit pitching and Bob Elliott's hitting combined to give the Boston Braves a 3-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today. The win gave the Braves a sweep of the two-game series.

Elliott drove in all of Boston's runs with a single and home run. He also singled in the sixth for the Braves' third of four hits off Rex Barney, the loser.

Kuhel Okays Kids' Schools

Nat Manager Joe Kuhel gave the Walter Johnson Memorial baseball schools his indorsement yesterday and said his ballplayers are more tha neager to lend a hand.

"We're all glad to take part in these schools," Kuhel said. "There wasn't anything like this when I was a kid and I can understand every youngster's eagerness to attend the classes."

Kuhel said he hoped to be able to get out for a couple of the sessions himself. He'll make out the assignments for his Nats, guest instructors, this morning.

School opens Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at 22 District of Columbia school diamonds and playgrounds with the Nats as guest instructors.

Skee Riegel Enters 'Tourney of Champs'

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Reigning titleholders of the royal order of golf have converged on the Prince Georges Country Club in such numbers that the National Capital Open has become the greatest gathering of champions in years.

As the 119-man field wasn't already loaded with crown wearers, National Amateur Champion Skee Riegel added his name to the glittering cast yesterday.

With Riegel in the field which opens play Thursday, not only will the three major championships be represented, but also the winners of most of the big money tournaments played since January.

Riegel joins National Open Champ Lew Worsham and P. G. A. King Jim Ferrier to complete the trio of major titleholders here.

Hogan, Mangrum, Others

In supporting roles will be Ben Hogan, winner of the Los 9ngeles Open; Lloyd Mangrum, defending Capital Open champ, leading money winner for 1948, and winner of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am, Rio Grande Valley Open and Greensboro Open.

Also Dutch Harrison, Richmond, Calif., open champ; Bobby Locke, Phoenix open titlist; Skip Alexander, Tucson Open winner; Bob Hamilton, New Orleans Open winner, and Cary Middlecoff, co-winner of the Miami four-ball championship and runnerup in the Augusta Masters.

Engel Appeals To His Fans

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 27 (AP).—Want to make $1000?

Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association, says he will give that amount to any fan "who will tell me of a pitcher I can buy who will win more games than he'll lose for us."

Engel has taken lots of raising from fans about his Lookouts, now tied with Little Rock for last place. Chattanooga is a farm club of the Washington Senators.

Hamilton Named Playing Pro at Prince Georges

Seeking to make a name for itself in golf circles, Prince George Golf and Country Club yesterday hired a playing professional.

The Landover, Md., Club's representative in the summer and winter golf tours will be Bob Hamilton, 33-year-old Evansville, Ind., shotmaker.

Hamilton, won the National PGA championship in 1944, defeating Byron Nelson, 1 up. His most recent victory came in the $10,000 New Orleans Open where he beat out the home town pro, Freddie Haas, jr.

Nats Rained Out, Move on To New York

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats, if all went right in the past few hours, awoke in New York today to find themselves matched with the champs at Yankee Stadium this afternoon. At least they piled into New York-bound Pullmans late last night.

They're meeting the Yankees, after being shut out and rained out on consecutive nights. Reluctantly, because of a whooping advance sale, the Washington club's front office called off last night's series finale with the Red Sox 45 minutes before the game time when the rain was unrelenting.

It provided an extra day of rest for Walter Masterson, who was supposed to pitch against Boston and now will go to the mound against the Yankees today. Masterson did a tolerable job of it in his first start with a 3-3 effort against the Athletics in the seven innings he worked. Previous to that start his longest pitching stretch was a four-inning job in the South.

May Face Frank Shea

The Yankees are expected to start Frank Shea, their right-handed rookie ace of last year, who was whacked by the Red Sox in his first start this season.

But right-handed or left-handed pitching has meant little difference to the Nats this year. They've been shut out by both types—Right-hander Carl Scheib of the A's and Left-hander Mel Parnell, of the Red Sox.

One thing is evident about the Nats, who are something of a surprise this year with their five wins and three defeats thus far—when they get licked, they get licked good. Of the three games they lost, two were shutouts and in the other they took a 12-4 beating from the Yankees.

When last seen against the Yankees, however, they were pretty good, bouncing back from that opening-day defeat to take two straight from Bucky Harris' club.

McBride for Robertson

Manager Joe Kuhel has been on the point of shufling his batting order, and replacing Right Fielder Sherry Robertson, a weak nephew with the bat, with Tom McBride, a right-handed hitter. But with Righthander Shea pitching today, Robertson will be in the line-up.

Eddie Yost thus far has been the most potent guy in Kuhel's line-up with his consistent, and extra-base hitting . . . in the Yankees the Nats will be meeting a club strengthened, at least offensively, by the return of Catcher Yogi Berra from the injured list . . . his critics say Berra's catching is also offensive . . . it will be only a two-game series with the Yankees . . . it is expected that the Yankees will renew trade talk with the Nats in the next couple of days, with Pitcher Early Wynn the object of their bartering . . . the Nats won't have little Phil Rizzuto to contend with today. He hurt his leg, and Bobby Brown, the pinch-hitting hero of the last world series, is playing shortstop for the Yankees.

Browns Whip Newhouser in Eleventh, 9-8

St. Louis, April 27 (AP).—The surprising St. Louis Browns outslugged the Detroit Tigers, 9-8, in 11 innings today, with Outfielders Al Zarilla nicking Hal Newhouser for the decisive blow.

Zarilla's single with one out in the eleventh drove in Whitey Platt with the winning run. He sparked the Brownies' 15-hit attack with four safeties, including a double. George Vico homered twice and Eddie Mayo once for Detroit.

George Kell had put the Togers back int othe game with a two-run single which tied the score in the ninth and sent the game into extra innings.

Newhouser, who relieved Fred Hutchinson in the ninth, was charged with the defeat

He Relieves Drews, Cuts Down Macks

Philadelphia, April 27 (AP).—Karl Drews pitched five-hit ball to receive credit for the New York Yankees' 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today, but it was Lefty Joe Page who saved the victory for him.

The ace relief hurler arrived on the scene in the eighth inning with two A's on base and only one out. He struck out Ed Majeski, and after the next batter reached base on Bobby Brown's error, Page got Buddy Rosar on an infield pop.

Page walked two batters in the ninth withonly one out but retired Barney and Pinch-Hitter Rudy York on easy fly balls.

On Sunday, Page relieved Ed Lopa in the ninth and struck out two Red Sox to preserve the Yanks' 5-4 margin.

The Yankees won the game in the first inning when they combined five hits for three runs against Joe Coleman. Singles by Tommy Henrich and Charley Keller and a double by Yogi Berra accounted for the first two runs. Berra thne scored on Billy Johnson's single.

The Yankees scored again in the seventh on singles by George Stirnweiss and Bobby Brown.

The Athletic scored their first run in the second inning. Majeski slammed a 400-foot triple, and crossed the plate when Rosar bounced into a double play. Eddie Joost's second home run of the season gave the A's their second run in the third inning.

Central Wins In Tenth, 1-0

Fotis Karousatos squeezed Bobby Johnson across with two out in the tenth to give Central's Vikings a 1-0 victory over Charlotte Hall Military Academy yesterday at Mechanicsville, Md.

It was one of the best played games of the high school season, Charlotte Hall committing the only two errors of the game, and each team clicking off a pair of double-plays. Lefty Gene Million of Central, struck out 14 and walked 5 while limiting Charlotte Hall to a clean single by Bob Shook in the third inning.

Johnson opened Central's tenth with a walk. He stole second and third to set the stage for Karousato's safe bunt. The win gave Central a record of four wins, two losses and one tie. Charlotte Hall has won four out of six.

St. John's Pitcher Uses Both Arms

— By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

When Jack Jankowski was a youngster in swaddling clothes, and said he wanted to become a baseball player, his dad told him, "Learn to be versatile, and you'll make a go of it."

Jack took his dad at his word. And now, though he is only a freshman, the strapping 16-year old is already one of the most valuable members of the strong St. John's baseball team.

Not only does he play outfield, first base and pitcher equally well, but he does them all ambidexterously.

So far this season, he hasn't needed to take full advantage of his repertoire. He has appeared in three games for St. John's, all as a left-handed pitcher. But his coach, Joe Gallagher, is envisioning the time when Jack couthpaws his way into difficulty, warms up his right arm, and relief pitches himself out of trouble.

He has gone the route in two games, downing Roosevelt, 7—5, and Priory, 11—1.

His one inning of scoreless relief pitching against Central was of special satisfaction to Jack. His dad, Jan Jankowski, is athletic director and football coach at Central, and was sitting in the stands, his loyalty somewhat divided.

When he first took up baseball, Jack threw and batted right-handed. His dad taught him to toss left-handed just in case his right arm ever went bad. He tried batting left-handed, too, and found that he hit pretty well that way.

Can Hit From Either Side, Too

He was playing first base and outfield right-handed and swith-hitting .750 in 12 games for St. Anthony's Junior High last year, when the coach, Father Dressel, thought he saw Jack as a promising pitcher.

He taught Jack to pitch a curve with both arms. In his first few starts, Jack pitched successfully right-handed. Near the end of the season, Jack hurled a no-hit game against St. Martin's using his left arm.

He has the size to someday achieve his ambition, becoming a big league baseball pitcher. He stands 5 feet 10 inches and weights 165.

But he's worried about one thing. Since he started pitching, he has been hitting like a pitcher, "barely .300."

Mt. Vernon Wins, 1-0

Mount Vernon High won its tenth game in 12 starts yesterday by downing Fairfax, 1-0, in a contest held to five innings by rain. The only Mount Vernon run came in the fifth on two errors, a single and a walk with the bases loaded which forced Bob Flinchum across with the deciding score. The contest was played at Fairfax.

Eleven Horses Race Today in 'Graw Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 27.—Racing resumes at the Graw tomorrow with well-filled fields and not the slightest chance of a two-horse race which developed on Saturday. Daylight saving time will be in for the final 4 days of the 14-day spring meeting with post time set at 2:15 fast time. The race special from Washington will depart 11:10 a. m, Standard Time.

Tomorrow's card is featured by the Perry Point Purse with 11 highly regarded speedsters named overnight for the three-quarters dash. The Shamrock Stable of Art Rooney named Air Patrol and Westminster for the $3500 purse and the hard-hitting lentry wil probably go postward in the favorite role.

Air Patrol, a good stakes winner last year, and Westminster, who is better suited over a distance of ground, will be making their 1948 debut. The former has held his own with the best sprinters.

Air Patrol, winner of over $50,000 last year, was scratched from Saturday's Harford Handicap when an off-track turned up as was Pentagon Stable's The Doge. The latter is also making his 1948 debut in tomorrow's headliner, and the six furlongs will probably result in a duel between the twa sprinters.

The Doge won the Laurel Stakes last year in addition to the Valley Forge and Quaker City Handicaps in 1947.

Also named for the Perry Point are H. B. Cohen's Denagee, a stablemate of The Doge, Walter M. Jeffords Snow Goose, Mrs. Samuel M. Pistorio's Golden Bull, Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree, Cedar Farm's Lovemenow, J. H. Hammond's Butler, Mrs. Jerome J. Kate's Transair and H. E. Ortel's Play High.

Catholic Teams Compete Today

Catholic University's baseball and tennis teams entertain Washington College athletes in Mason-Dixon Conference play today at Brookland.

The baseball team, second in the conference with four victories in five games, plays a doubleheader with Washington's Shomen, starting at 1 p. m.

The netmen, winners of four matches in six starts to pace the conference, start competition with Washington at 1:30 p. m. Bill Thaler and Stan Levy, absent from the Cards' most recent match because of illness, will be back in the starting lineup.

Terp Gridders Play Night Intrasquad Game

Maryland University's football squad will wind up spring drills with its fourth and last practice game Saturday night at 8 p. m. in Byrd Stadium. Proceeds from the contest will go to the university band.

Elmer Wingate, sophomore wingman, will start at right end for the Old Liners against the Terrapins. Wingate, who has taken over the position held by George Simler last season, has shown up well in the previous practice games.

Escadru's Fast Finish Earns 2d

Louisville, Ky., April 27 (AP).—Calumet Farm's Citation, as expected, won the Derby Trial at Churchill Downs today, defeating three other candidates for the Kentucky Derby with little trouble.

William L. Brann's Escadru closed nicely to capture second, with Howard Well's Eagle Look third, and C. A. O'Neil, jr.'s Caledo last in the four-horse field.

The Calumet flier, winter book favorite, was content to let Caledo cut out the early pace in the 1-mile test from the chute.

Jockey Eddie Arcara, who will pilot Citation in the Derby on Saturday, sent the son of Bull Lea after the leader as they neared the turn on the backstretch, and the race virtually was all over.

Citation moved in front as they left the backstretch, increased his lead t otwo lengths as he swung in the home stretch running easily along the rail.

Escadru came up wel lin the stretch, with Arnold Kirkland handling the Maryland contender easily, to finish a length and a quarter away from the Calumet star Escadru's margin over Eagle Look was a head, while the tiring Caledo was a good 20 lengths further away.

Citation's time for the mile was 1:37 2-5. He paid $2.20 for a $2 win ticket, and there was no return o nother places.

Kenwood Takes Lead in Women's Golf

Army-Navy Takes 2d in District Play

Kenwood and Army-Navy took over the first and second spots in the Women's District Golf Association team matches by scoring decisive triumphs yesterday in the second week's play at Woodmont.

Kenwood crushed Congressional, 9-0, to keep its unscored-on record intact, while Army-Navy convincingly defeated Chevy Chase's highly regarded team, 7-2.

In the day's other match, Washington Golf and Country Club jumped into the victory column by downing Manor, 6-3, after having been shut out by Kenwood a week ago.

Kenwood's strong team, a heavy favorite to win the team title, was paced by Mrs. S. Crocker, whose 82 over the rainswept links was the lowest individual score reported.

Pacing the Army-Navy golfers was Mrs. Kay Ferriday, a newcomer to District play who has already established herself as one of the area's top shotmakers. Mrs. Ferriday carded an 83 yesterday.

With two weeks' matches having been played, the teams stand in this order: Kenwood, 18 points; Army-Navy, 16 points; Chevy Chase, 8 points; Washington, 6 points; Manor, 3 points; Congressional, 3 points, and Woodmont, no points.

Next week's match will be played at Army-Navy.

At Indian Spring

O'Malley, Fitzgerald Close Out Match With Three Birds

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

The old one-two punch is a term better known to boxing than golf, but if you don't believe it can be applied to the links, ask R. H. O'Malley and Eddie Fitzgerald of Indian Spring.

O'Malley and Fitzgerald were teamed against Dick Schattman and William McFerren in a four-ball match. The teams were all even going into the fifteenth hole.

Then it started. McFerren, a short way off the green, chipped in for a birdie three. On the sixteenth, Schattman chipped in for another birdie three. And to make it complete, McFerren chipped in for another birdie three on the seventeenth.

Schattman and McFerren finished with a best ball 62 to their rivals' 64. And to add another bizarre touch to this story, this is how the four-man finished. McFerren shot a 71, Schattman a 72, O'Mallery a 73 and Fitzgerald a 74.

Mrs. C. H. Stickel scored the first ladies' hole-in-one ever made at Fairfax when she dropped a three-iron shot on the 142-yard seventh hole. Her feat was witnessed by H. J. Ozara and A. W. Wittman . . . Mary Frownfelter and Ida Kintz, two members of the Prince Georges women's golf team, are also members of the Prince Georges bowling team that won the women's country Club League title. Other members of the team are Anne Brown, Kay Dyer and Alberta Burch . . . George Dorsey, jr., thought he was shooting pretty good golf when he posted a par 5 on the seventh hole at Kenwood. But of the other members of his foursome, George Wendt and Jim Martinson had birdies and Johnny Bradford notched an eagle . . . Mrs. Lil Brooks, Mrs. Hope Martin and Mrs. Lorain Cochran won the ladies day tournament at Manor yesterday with best nine-hole net scores of 38. Mrs. Adelaide Platt was second with 39 . . . Bill Crabbe is the new golf pro at Rock Creek, replacing Al Price, who was starting his twenty-first year at the public course. Price is now helping Roger Peacock at Sligo Park . . . Mrs. A. B. Bower caused some red faces among her male competitors when she toured the Indian Spring course in 40-38—78. The three gentlemen in her foursome couldn't come close to a score like that.

W.-L Beaten By Western After 7 Wins

Western High School's Red Raiders handed Washington-Lee of Arlington its first defeat of the season, 9-3, yesterday at W.-L.

In winning its sixth game against two setbacks, Western stepped out in the first inning on a three-run homer by Georgie Holmes.

Tom Darr's triple with two on accounted for W.-L.'s first two scores and Darr himself scored on an infield out in the third inning.

Jack Fogerty went all the way for the winners. He scattered five hits in his second victory.

Rain Stops Hoyas, GW, Tied at 4-4

A stalemate was the best George Washington and Georgetown University could achieve yesterday as the local collegiate rivals, after eight innings of play, were forced to settle for a 4-4 deadlock when the rains came to Griffith Stadium.

Both teams had a turn at leading. The Hoyas were out front the farthest by a 4-2 count as a result of their 3-run uprising in the seventh inning. But G. W. U. came right back with a 2-run spree of its own to lock up the chilly affair.

Pete King, G. W. southpaw, had the best of his hurling duel with Tommy Flynn, allowing only six hits to eight against Flynn. Three of Georgetown's safeties came in the seventh, featured by Pinch Hitter Lou Miller's terrific triple to center.

The teams are slated to meet again Friday, May 7, and their tie will be played off at a later date.

NOTES—George Schneiter, PGA tournament chairman, estimates more than three million people have taken up golf since 1940. Five million play the game today, Schneiter says . . . The pros will experience a banner financial year this season. They'll be shooting for more than $600,000 in prize money in the various coast-to-coast tournaments . . . Lew Worsham probably won't play in the National PGA next month in St. Louis. Lew's Oakmont, Pa., club employers want him to spend more time at the club.

New Commerce Chief Acts to Kill Rumors On Firings, Politics

Charles Sawyer, the Commerce Secretary nominee, is a former diplomat. That's fortunate for him. The Secretary will need his diplomatic charm to keep the department from bogging down.

Undersecretary William C. Foster, an able administrator, has submitted his resignation. He has asked to be released from his post on or before June 1.

Assistant Secretary David K. E. Bruce for Foreign and Domestic Commerce, also has submitted his resignation. He's expected to be the assistant to W. Averill Harriman, former Commerce Secretary, who is the ECA roving ambassador with headquarters in Paris.

It's also possible that Foster will join the Economic Cooperation Administration. Administrator Paul Hoffman would like to have him as an assistant. So would several other top Federal officials.

In addition t oFoster and Bruce, half a dozen other Commerce officials were threatening to quit their jobs. It seems that word had reached them that politics—Democratic politics—would become an important consideration under the Sawyer administratoin.

Sawyer, too, must have heard the upsetting rumor. He has acted swiftly to kill it. The nominee has talek with some officials and he has sent reassuring word to others along this line:

Tht he has no intention of firing anyone; that he wants everyone to stay and do his job; that he's concerned over the possible "raiding" of top Commerce personnel by the military services and ECA, and that he has offered to talk with any key employe who feels uneasy and wishes to quit.

Also, Sawyer made it plain that politics would not be a consideration in any of his policy or personnel decisions.

Asked if he would also offer his resignation, Dr. Edward U. Condon, Director of Commerce's National Bureau of Standards, said yesterday he had not intended to. He said he did not think it was customary for bureau chiefs in the department to submit their resignations on the appointment of a new Secretary.

NLRB: The National Labor Relations Board will be moved into the Railroad Retirement Board Building, which is now occupied by Federal Security units. Over-all, the board has about 1100 employes now. It won't come close to reaching its expected goal of 1800 by the end of June.

PEOPLE: His friends will give Joseph F. Gartland a dinner soon to celebrate his 50th anniversary in Government. An outstanding career man, Gartland is director of Post Office's budget and planning . . . John Anker and Donie P. Hatch are retiring this week from Civil Aeronautics . . . Harry B. Dyche, an assistant to the director of the Federal Supply Bureau, will retire today after 38 years of Federal service. He will go to his model farm at Luray. Dyche recently was elected Mayor of Luray . . . Harold R. Miller also retires today from Navy's Bureau of Ships.

ORDER: The President has asked Federal workers and military people to set a good example for industrial workers by participating in the payroll saving plan. He has appointed Treasury Fiscal Assistant Secretary Edward F Bartelt to be chairman of a committee to sign up employes to buy savings bonds.

PAY REPORT: New York City will give its employes a flat pay raise of $250 each. It isn't generally known, but this one city pays a larger number of its executives more than $10,000 than the entire executive branch of the Federal Government.

There is absolutely no significant news on the Federal worker pay legislation. Congressional leaders blow hot and cold on it.

UPWA: It's official now, the anti-Red rider aimed at CIO's left-wing United Public Workers. The House Appropriations Committee yesterday put a rider onto the Labor-Federal Security money bill which says no funds can be used to pay any employe who is a member of any union whose officers have not filed anti-Communist affidavits.

And the Rules Committee gave its approval to the rider which means it can't be knocked out on a point of order when the bill is debated on the House floor. If the rider is written into law, it will be extended to cover all other Federal agencies.

The jobs of an estimated 2000 UPWA employes in FSA and Labor are at stake under the rider.

NOTES: Representative Rees (R., Kan.) has filed a bill to grant military leave with pay to postal substitutes. . . . Government girls who would like to attend chaperoned dances should call Columbia 9735. . . . Republican members of Congress are among those who are backing Representative John W. Flannagan (D., Va.) to be Agriculture Secretary. . . . Isaac Fleischmann is chairman of the committee to arrange an election of a Patent Office employe to serve on the agency's efficiency rating appeal board. . . . Fred J. Lawton of the Budget Bureau, is the President's newest administrative assistant. The President couldn't have made a better choice. Lawton's Budget Bureau job will be held open for him.

Pedestrian Protection Award Won By District

AAA Recognizes D. C. Reduction in Traffic Deaths From 77 to 49

Washington has won the American Automobile Association's 1947 grand award in the ninth annual pedestrian protection contest.

The District, which trimmed its pedestrian traffic fatalities from 77 to 49 in two years, shared the Nation's top honors with Connecticut; was first in cities over 500,000, and topped all records submitted by 1482 cities, the AAA announced yesterday.

The Capital was second in the pedestrian competition in 1943 and 1946.

The awards are based on low pedestrian accident tolls, plus excellence of community programs and official measures taken to reduce pedestrian accidents. Washington scored 784 points out of a possible 1000, officials said.

Second place among cities in Washington's population class went to Cleveland; Detroit, first-place winner last year, was third and Pittsburgh received a special citation.

In the State groups, Delaware and Oregon tied for second place behind Connecticut and New York received a special citation.

Judges included Thomas H. MacDonald of the Public Roads Administration; A. W. Bohlen, American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators and Pyke Johnson of the Automotive Safety Foundation, all of Washington.

7 More Names Put on Fairfax Convention List

Seven more names were added yesterday to the list of candidates seeking election as delegates to the May 10 Fairfax County Democratic convention. They are:

Arthur I. Shaffer, Maurice W. Fox, William T. Finley, Guy R. McGlincy, Fred A. Moss, C. N. Cockrell and Charles E. Babcock.

W. Franklin Gooding, county Democratic committee chairman, said notices of their candidacy were mailed before the Monday midnight deadline and therefore were acceptable. Candidates now total 46.

The delegates will be chosen in precinct caucuses Monday in each of the county's six magisterial districts.

Charlottesville Levies New Taxes

Chalottesville, Va., April 27 (AP).—City council last night approved a 5 per cent levy on utility bills and a levy averaging about 5 per cent of amusement admissions.

Council tapped the two sources for an estimated $85,000 in new revenue to balance the $1,348,221 budget unanimously approved for operation of the city's government during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The action made Charlottesville the second city to tax both utility bills and amusement admissions. Lynchburg previously took similar action.

Taylor to Address Virginia Wallace Group

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—Senator Glen Taylor, vice presidential candidate on the third party ticket, will address a State convention of the Virginia Wallace-for-President Committee here June 26-27, George Elwood, chairman of the Virginia group, said today.

Elwood said Henry A. Wallace, the party's presidential aspirant, originally was sought as the convention speaker but could not be obtained.

Tulip Time at Chevy Chase Church . . .

FLOWERS FROM HOLLAND IN BLOOM—Margaret Daly (left), 10, and her sister, Mary, 9, both of 3322 Tennyson st. nw., admire a section of the 2000 tulips in bloom in the garden of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church on Chevy Chase Circle. The citizens of Hedel—a war-ravaged Holland town "adopted" last year by church members—sent the flowers to show appreciation

AB&W Lawyer Protests ICC 'Prosecutors'

S. Harrison Kahn, counsel for the AB&W bus line, charged at an ICC fare increase hearing yesterday that ICC examiners were acting as "prosecutors" in appearing as protestants against the fare increases proposed by his company.

The charge eame at the end of a second session on the AB&W fare petition as Examiner Henry C. Lawton continued the hearing until 9 a. m. May 6 so protestants would have a chance to study the company's exhibits before further cross-examining company officials.

In a reference to Thomas F. Kilroy, George F. Dahan and Isadore Friedson, ICC examiners who are among the protestants in the fare case, the attorney said it appeared "not judicious" for them to take an "active part" when they also "sit as judges in the disposition of carrier cases." Their action, he said, set a "dangerous precedent."

Examiner Lawton said the examiners were not appearing as prosecutors, but in their individual capacities.

George Snyder, AB&W accountant, said 96.66 per cent of the total profits earned by the company since 1935 had been reinvested in the firm, with only 3.34 per cent withdrawn by the stockholders. The reinvestment amounted to $1,593,398, he said. Under cross examination, he said he believed three of the five stockholders are officers of the company receiving salaries for services.

Current assets of the company have dropped from $714,805 as of December 31, 1946, to $334,724 on March 31, 1948, Snyder said, adding that an earned surplus of $1,593,398 is invested in assets such as plant and equipment.

Operators have asked the company for an increase in wages of 50 cents an hour, from the present $1.25, according to Beverly C. May, general manager.

The petition before the ICC would increase present 10 cent fares between District and Virginia points to 15 cents cash or tokens costing 12½ cents. Use of the 12½-cent tokens in the 15-cent cash fare zones, as allowed now, would be discontinued.

In Prince Georges

Police Radio Approved for Parole Agent

Purchase of a two-way police radio for Roy Bright, State parole and probation officer detailed to Prince Georges County, was voted yesterday by the county commissioners, meeting at Upper Marlboro.

Norman Collins, police commissioner, told the commissoiners the radio will permit prompt location of Bright when needed and eliminate placing of children in cells while police are looking for him.

Frequently Bright is on the road visiting homes of children in his custody and cannot be reached by telephone.

The commissioners voted to attend in a body the meeting of the County Commissioners Association of the Western Shore to be held at Hotel Alexander at Hagerstown, Md., on May 12.

Driver Stung by Bee Runs Car Into Tree

In a traffic accident yesterday, Miss Vivian Rabineau, 28, of 1441 Somerset pl. nw., an American Red Cross Transportation Corps driver, narrowly escaped serious injury when she lost control of her car after a bee stung her on the nose.

Miss Rabineau was passing the 16th st. entrance to Walter Reed Hospital when she was stung. Her car ran into a tree on 16th st. just south of Alaska ave. She was treated at Walter Reed for minor lacerations and released.

Remorseful Man Tells of 1929 Shooting

Walter McFadden, a one-time District resident who has been carrying Old Man Remorse on his shoulders for 19 years, was just a poor marksman, police believe.

Humble and repentant, the 55-year-old McFadden, now of Knoxville, Tenn., appeared before police yesterday with the information that he had shot to death a stranger here in 1929. The man was shot, McFadden told Precinct Detectives Lloyd Furr and J. P. Fox, when he interfered in an argument between MtcFadden and his wife in Locust ct. sw.

He left town, took the name of "James Reed," and stayed away from here, working in mines and coke ovens in West Virginia, he said.

Furr and Fox checked the records yesterday but failed to find anything to uphold McFadden's feeling of guilt. He left $130 with them with the explanation that he'd return today just to make sure the detectives hadn't overlooked anything.

Apples Damaged Little by Frost

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—Damage by frost to Virginia's commercial apple crop is believed to be light, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

The service in its weekly crop report said apple prospects were not materially altered by the freezes of April 18 and 19. It said also that fruit prospects were changed little from the outlook a week ago when some damage to peaches, pears, plums and cherries was foreseen.

Last week with a comparatively light rainfall was said to be the best of the season for farm operations.

Finn Rightists Warned Against Illegal Action

Helsinki, Finland, April 27 (AP).—Communist Minister of Interior Yrjo Leino warned rightists today not to take illegal action.

Police were alerted for "maintenance of order" last night. Premier Mauno Pekkala has said his cabinet will resign if Parliament tomorrow rejects the friendship and military assistance agreement drafted recently in Moscow.

Dalstrom To Face Fire Board Trial

'Certain Charges' Planned Against Superintendent Involving Arrest

Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department superintendent of machinery, will face "certain charges" before a Fire Department arial board as a result of his arrest for drunken driving in Prince Georges County April 11, the commissioners revealed yesterday.

Acting Chief Engineer F. G. Berry said specific charges are being drawn up against Dalstrom and a date for the trial probably will be set today.

Dalstrom was acquitted of a drunken driving charge April 19 in Hyattsville Police Court, but was convicted of reckless driving nnd fined $50 by Judge Arthur P. Owens.

The Commissioners approved a recommendation by Chief Berry that Deputy Chief J. A. Mayhew be designated a special member of the Trial Board for the trial.

"The regular member of the Trial Board holds the rank of battalion chief and as such, should he sit on the board, would create the undesirable situation of a subordinate officer passing judgment upon a superior officer," Berry explained.

Educator Warns Against Excessive Specialization

Roanoke, Va., April 27 (AP).—To teach a subject without relating it in the classroom to other allied subjects is not only difficult, it is dangerous, Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the University of Maryland, told Virginia division school superintendents today.

For instance, if history is taught with no reference to its economic and sociological aspects, he explained, the child gets a warped view of the world in which he lives.

"It used to be inconceivable that a course could be given in general science," Dr. Benjamin said. Instead, ornithology, astronomy, botany and other sciences were taught only individually.

Robert R. Young Urged As Presidential Nominee

Huntington, W. Va., April 27 (AP).—Robert R. Young, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., tonight was projected as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

R. J. Wilkinson, jr., former city councilman and unopposed delegate to the Democratic National Convention from the Fourth Congressional District, said he favored Young for the Presidency and Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) for the vice presidential nomination.

It will be the first conference of its type to be held in western Maryland. Delegates are to attend from Washington, Allegany, Garrett, Frederick, Carroll and Montgomery Counties.

Boos Greet Policeman

The George Washington history class was discussing Thucydides.

At the point where the Greek historian was being quoted, "We both alike know that into the discussion of human affairs, the question of justice enters . . ."

A policeman did. He wanted a John Monie, for what we don't know.

There were 400 in the class. No one would admit being "John Monie" and the professor could not identify him.

The officer of the law retired amid the boos and catcalls of the student body.

Office Manager Shoots at Dapper Bandit and Chases Him Into Park

A 6-foot bandit, who "looked too much of a gentleman to pull a gun," did yesterday—and robbed Landers, Inc., 7904 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., of $661.

The observation was that of Mrs. Marjorie O. Wells, 24, of Manassas, Va., the cashier on duty in the loan office about 12:45 p. m. when the well-dressed man demanded "all the cash in both cash drawers."

Although he flashed a black automatic to enforce his demands, he made no effort to use it when Mrs. Wells' scream brought Assistant Manager James H. Hendry out of a back room, pistol in hand.

Hendry, who lives at 29 Kensington pkwy., Kensington, Md., said he attempted to fire at the man as he sped out the door, but his pistol failed to discharge.

Hendry pursued the man for a short distance north on Georgia ave., but lost him when he ran through Jesup-Blair Park.

The police lookout described the bandit as about 30 years old, 6 feet tall, 155 pounds, jet black hair and mustache, wearing a dark brown suit. Police had information from a pedestrian in the area that the man is believed to have been in a 1939 or 1940 maroon-colored auto containing two other men.

Electricians Would Bypass District Test

Electricians who have failed in District examinations appealed to Congress yesterday for a bill that would restore their licenses without examination.

District officials, with backing from some organizations, opposed the bill.

The measure would make it possible for persons who have engaged in the electrical business for five years to get a master electrician's license without examination.

James H. Biscoe, attorney for several individuals who failed in the test, said the result of the present system is that many men successful in the electrical business for years now are substantially out of business.

Bennett commended J. Edward Wiltshire, clerk of Orange, for "very good order" in his 1947 accounts.

Bennett's reports showed 13,647 deeds recorded in Arlington Circuit Court, and 15,865 deeds recorded in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Adventists Plan To Send Teachers To New Guinea

Plans for sending hundreds of South Sea Island natives as Christian teachers into New Guinea highlands were made yesterday at the Spring Council of Seventh-Day Adventist officials in Takoma Park.

E. D. Dick, the church's general secretary recently returned from Australia, told delegates there is great demand there for the Christian young men who stood loyally by the Allies during the war.

The council approved a memorial from the Australian branch of the church, providing for an extension of the Australian branch's organization to keep up with rapid growth in membership and activities.

Educational needs of the church in China resulted in a council vote to send Miss Mildred Ostoich of Oakland, Calif., a specialist in elementary school work to assist in a summer training school for teachers in Chiaotoutseng, China, where 20 buildings totally destroyed by the Japanese are being reconstructed.

Tuck Snubs Request For Special Session

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—Governor Tuck replied today to a request that he call a special legislative session to repeal the "Anti-Truman" leection law and to provide more money for schools by saying, "My views in this regard are well known and it would appear unnecessary, therefore, to restate my position."

The Governor's reply was in a letter to Clarence E. Magee of Portsmouth, chairman of the Second District Committee for Democracy in Virginia.

Magee asked the Governor to have the new election law "erased from the books." He called it one of the most "ridiculous, unjust and undemocratic acts that have ever been forced upon the intelligence of the citizens of Virginia."

His Mother Held Opposing Match

Wiley Wanted Abortion, Not Marriage, Girl Charges

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

Harvey W. Wiley, jr., suggested an abortion instead of a wedding after his mother "objected very much" to his marriage plans, auburn-haired Samille Nowicki testified yesterday.

The attractive Capitol Hill secretary testified for the second day in her $150,000 breach of promise suit against the 36-year-old son of the late pure food crusader.

Wiley's mother had warned him "that if he persisted in this foolish idea of marrying me, she would disinherit him," Miss Nowicki said.

He came to her apartment the day they'd planned to be married and "asked me to sympathize" with his plight, Miss Nowicki asserted, saying he "stood to lose more by walking out on his mother than by walking out on me."

In that conversation, Wiley told her his mother had said something about "social equality" and that "perhaps I might be Jewish," Miss Nowicki testified. "Mrs. Wiley said I was a working girl."

Miss Nowicki, who was then several months pregnant, said Wiley told her that day that she'd taken him "too seriously" and that he had "no intention" of marrying her.

That was January 21, 1946, and according to Miss Nowicki, they'd been "secretly" engaged since August of 1945. She said they'd known each other since 1940.

The witness, once a free lance writer in Hollywood and a former employe of the Soviet Embassy, said, "Mr. Wiley told me that if I didn't go through with the abortion his mother was an important person in Washington . . . and she would brand me as a common woman."

When he "suggested an abortion," Miss Nowicki testified, "I told him to get out."

Subsequently, however, Wiley arranged a meeting between Miss Nowick, now on the secretarial staff of Senator Joseph Ball (R., Minn.), and his mother, a prominent Washington clubwoman and champion of women's rights, so that she could plead her cause, Miss Nowicki declared.

CAMILLE NOWICKI . . . .
Asks $150,000

Miss Nowicki said she and her sister went to the Wiley residence, 2345 Ashmead pl. nw., to see whether something couldn't be worked out. Mrs. Wiley suggested that "you see my lawyer," Miss Nowicki said, and "called me an immoral woman."

The slender woman, who described the meeting as "humiliating," said she told Mrs. Wiley—"you're trying to promote the equal rights amendment, what about my rights?" To this, she said heatedly, Mrs. Wiley replied:

"The law doesn't apply to you at all."

Miss Nowicki said Mrs. Wiley asked during the conversation whether Polish people "weren't Catholic" and she objected because "the question of religion shouldn't enter into a discussion of this kind."

During cross-examination of the witness, who was dressed in a simple white suit, Defense Counsel Arthur Hiland produced a letter from Miss Nowicki to Wiley in which she expressed admiration for Mrs. Wiley and described her as "the second first lady of the land." Miss Nowicki said she'd learned about Mrs. Wiley while working part time for the National Women's Party—which Mrs. Wiley once headed.

HARVEY WILEY, JR.
Named in suit

Miss Nowicki said that in the middle of January Wiley rented an apartment near Dupont Circle and that the night they went to look at it she "had relations wih him."

"I proested," she declared. "I said it wouldn't be more than a weke befor ewe were married . . . But he called me prudish and narrow-minded . . . H ecalled me Mrs. Wiley and made ardent love to me . . ."

"I really and truly and faithfully believed he was going to marry me," she said.

Miss Nowicki testified that Wiley has been helping support her 20-month-old son, whom she named Timothy Wiley. The child lives with her and her mother in an apartment at 1741 Lanier pl. nw.

Wiley, a real estate salesman, listened intently to the testimony.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. today before Justice Jennings Bailey.

New Commerce Chief Acts to Kill Rumors On Firings, Politics

Charles Sawyer, the Commerce Secretary nominee, is a former diplomat. That's fortunate for him. The Secretary will need his diplomatic charm to keep the department from bogging down.

Undersecretary William C. Foster, an able administrator, has submitted his resignation. He has asked to be released from his post on or before June 1.

Assistant Secretary David K. E. Bruce for Foreign and Domestic Commerce, also has submitted his resignation. He's expected to be the assistant to W. Averill Harriman, former Commerce Secretary, who is the ECA roving ambassador with headquarters in Paris.

It's also possible that Foster will join the Economic Cooperation Administration. Administrator Paul Hoffman would like to have him as an assistant. So would several other top Federal officials.

In addition t oFoster and Bruce, half a dozen other Commerce officials were threatening to quit their jobs. It seems that word had reached them that politics—Democratic politics—would become an important consideration under the Sawyer administratoin.

Sawyer, too, must have heard the upsetting rumor. He has acted swiftly to kill it. The nominee has talek with some officials and he has sent reassuring word to others along this line:

Tht he has no intention of firing anyone; that he wants everyone to stay and do his job; that he's concerned over the possible "raiding" of top Commerce personnel by the military services and ECA, and that he has offered to talk with any key employe who feels uneasy and wishes to quit.

Also, Sawyer made it plain that politics would not be a consideration in any of his policy or personnel decisions.

Asked if he would also offer his resignation, Dr. Edward U. Condon, Director of Commerce's National Bureau of Standards, said yesterday he had not intended to. He said he did not think it was customary for bureau chiefs in the department to submit their resignations on the appointment of a new Secretary.

NLRB: The National Labor Relations Board will be moved into the Railroad Retirement Board Building, which is now occupied by Federal Security units. Over-all, the board has about 1100 employes now. It won't come close to reaching its expected goal of 1800 by the end of June.

PEOPLE: His friends will give Joseph F. Gartland a dinner soon to celebrate his 50th anniversary in Government. An outstanding career man, Gartland is director of Post Office's budget and planning . . . John Anker and Donie F. Hatch are retiring this week from Civil Aeronautics . . . Harry B. Dyche, an assistant to the director of the Federal Supply Bureau, will retire today after 38 years of Federal service. He will go to his model farm at Luray. Dyche recently was elected Mayor of Luray . . . Harold R. Miller also retires today from Navy's Bureau of Ships.

ORDER: The President has asked Federal workers and military people to set a good example for industrial workers by participating in the payroll saving plan. He has appointed Treasury Fiscal Assistant Secretary Edward F Bartelt to be chairman of a committee to sign up employes to buy savings bonds.

PAY REPORT: New York City will give its employes a flat pay raise of $250 each. It isn't generally known, but this one city pays a larger number of its executives more than $10,000 than the entire executive branch of the Federal Government.

There is absolutely no significant news on the Federal worker pay legislation. Congressional leaders blow hot and cold on it.

UPWA: It's official now, the anti-Red rider aimed at CIO's left-wing United Public Workers. The House Appropriations Committee yesterday put a rider onto the Labor-Federal Security money bill which says no funds can be used to pay any employe who is a member of any union whose officers have not filed anti-Communist affidavits.

And the Rules Committee gave its approval to the rider which means it can't be knocked out on a point of order when the bill is debated on the House floor. If the rider is written into law, it will be extended to cover all other Federal agencies.

The jobs of an estimated 2000 UPWA employes in FSA and Labor are at stake under the rider.

NOTES: Representative Rees (R., Kan.) has filed a bill to grant military leave with pay to postal substitutes. . . . Government girls who would like to attend chaperoned dances should call Columbia 0735. . . . Republican members of Congress are among those who are backing Representative John W. Flannagan (D., Va.) to be Agriculture Secretary. . . . Isaac Fleischmann is chairman of the committee to arrange an election of a Patent Office employe to serve on the agency's efficiency rating appeal board. . . . Fred J. Lawton of the Budget Bureau, is the President's newest administrative assistant. The President couldn't have made a better choice. Lawton's Budget Bureau job will be held open for him.

Pedestrian Protection Award Won By District

AAA Recognizes D. C. Reduction in Traffic Deaths From 77 to 49

Washington has won the American Automobile Association's 1947 grand award in the ninth annual pedestrian protection contest.

The District, which trimmed its pedestrian traffic fatalities from 77 to 49 in two years, shared the Nation's top honors with Connecticut; was first in cities over 500,000, and topped all records submitted by 1462 cities, the AAA announced yesterday.

The Capital was second in the pedestrian competition in 1943 and 1946.

The awards are based on low pedestrian accident tolls, plus excellence of community programs and official measures taken to reduce pedestrian accidents. Washington scored 784 points out of a possible 1000, officials said.

Second place among cities in Washington's population class went to Cleveland; Detroit, first-place winner last year, was third and Pittsburgh received a special citation.

In the State groups, Delaware and Oregon tied for second place behind Connecticut and New York received a special citation.

Judges included Thomas H. MacDonald of the Public Roads Administration; A. W. Bohlen, American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators and Pyke Johnson of the Automotive Safety Foundation, all of Washington.

7 More Names Put on Fairfax Convention List

Seven more names were added yesterday to the list of candidates seeking election as delegates to the May 10 Fairfax County Democratic convention. They are:

Arthur I. Shaffer, Maurice W. Fox, William T. Finley, Guy R. McGlincy, Fred A. Moss, C. N. Cockrell and Charles E. Babcock.

W. Franklin Gooding, county Democratic committee chairman, said notices of their candidacy were mailed before the Monday midnight deadline and therefore were acceptable. Candidates now total 46.

The delegates will be chosen in precinct caucuses Monday in each of the county's six magisterial districts.

Charlottesville Levies New Taxes

Chalottesville, Va., April 27 (AP). City council last night approved a 5 per cent levy on utility bills and a levy averaging about 5 per cent of amusement admissions.

Council tapped the two sources for an estimated $85,000 in new revenue to balance the $1,348,221 budget unanimously approved for operation of the city's government during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The action made Charlottesville the second city to tax both utility bills and amusement admissions. Lynchburg previously took similar action.

Taylor to Address Virginia Wallace Group

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP). Senator Glen Taylor, vice presidential candidate on the third party ticket, will address a State convention of the Virginia Wallace-for-President Committee here June 26-27, George Elwood, chairman of the Virginia group, said today.

Elwood said Henry A. Wallace, the party's presidential aspirant, originally was sought as the convention speaker but could not be obtained.

AB&W Lawyer Protests ICC 'Prosecutors'

S. Harrison Kahn, counsel for the AB&W bus line, charged at an ICC fare increase hearing yesterday that ICC examiners were acting as "prosecutors" in appearing as protestants against the fare increases proposed by his company.

The charge came at the end of a second session on the AB&W fare petition as Examiner Henry C. Lawton continued the hearing until 9 a. m. May 6 so protestants would have a chance to study the company's exhibits before further cross-examining company officials.

In a reference to Thomas F. Kilroy, George F. Dahan and Isadore Friedson, ICC examiners who are among the protestants in the fare case, the attorney said it appeared "not judicious" for them to take an "active part" when they also "sit as judges in the disposition of carrier cases." Their action, he said, set a "dangerous precedent."

Examiner Lawton said the examiners were not appearing as prosecutors, but in their individual capacities.

George Snyder, AB&W accountant, said 96.66 per cent of the total profits earned by the company since 1935 had been reinvested in the firm, with only 3.34 per cent withdrawn by the stockholders. The reinvestment amounted to $1,593,398, he said. Under cross examination, he said he believed three of the five stockholders are officers of the company receiving salaries for services.

Current assets of the company have dropped from $714,805 as of December 31, 1946, to $334,724 on March 31, 1948, Snyder said, adding that an earned surplus of $1,593,398 is invested in assets such as plant and equipment.

Operators have asked the company for an increase in wages of 50 cents an hour, from the present $1.25, according to Beverly C. May, general manager.

The petition before the ICC would increase present 10 cent fares between District and Virginia points to 15 cents cash or tokens costing 12½ cents. Use of the 12½-cent tokens in the 15-cent cash fare zones, as allowed now, would be discontinued.

Police Radio Approved for Parole Agent

Purchase of a two-way police radio for Roy Bright, State parole and probation officer detailed to Prince Georges County, was voted yesterday by the county commissioners, meeting at Upper Marlboro.

Norman Collins, police commissioner, told the commissoiners the radio will permit prompt location of Bright when needed and eliminate placing of children in cells while police are looking for him.

Frequently Bright is on the road visiting homes of children in his custody and cannot be reached by telephone.

The commissioners voted to attend in a body the meeting of the County Commissioners Association of the Western Shore to be held at Hotel Alexander at Hagerstown, Md., on May 12.

Remorseful Man Tells of 1929 Shooting

Walter McFadden, a one-time District resident who has been carrying Old Man Remorse on his shoulders for 19 years, was just a poor marksman, police believe.

Humble and repentant, the 55-year-old McFadden, now of Knoxville, Tenn., appeared before police yesterday with the information that he had shot to death a stranger here in 1929. The man was shot, McFadden told Precinct Detectives Lloyd Furr and J. P. Fox, when he interfered in an argument between MtcFadden and his wife in Locust ct. sw.

He left town, took the name of "James Reed," and stayed away from here, working in mines and coke ovens in West Virginia, he said.

Furr and Fox checked the records yesterday but failed to find anything to uphold McFadden's feeling of guilt. He left $130 with them with the explanation that he'd return today just to make sure the detectives hadn't overlooked anything.

Apples Damaged Little by Frost

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—Damage by frost to Virginia's commercial apple crop is believed to be light, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

The service in its weekly crop report said apple prospects were not materially altered by the freezes of April 18 and 19. It said also that fruit prospects were changed little from the outlook a week ago when some damage to peaches, pears, plums and cherries was foreseen.

Last week with a comparatively light rainfall was said to be the best of the season for farm operations.

Finn Rightists Warned Against Illegal Action

'Certain Charges' Planned Against Superintendent Involving Arrest

Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department superintendent of machinery, will face "certain charges" before a Fire Department arial board as a result of his arrest for drunken driving in Prince Georges County April 11, the commissioners revealed yesterday.

Acting Chief Engineer F. G. Berry said specific charges are being drawn up against Dalstrom and a date for the trial probably will be set today.

Dalstrom was acquitted of a drunken driving charge April 19 in Hyattsville Police Court, but was convicted of reckless driving nnd fined $50 by Judge Arthur P. Owens.

The Commissioners approved a recommendation by Chief Berry that Deputy Chief J. A. Mayhew be designated a special member of the Trial Board for the trial.

"The regular member of the Trial Board holds the rank of battalion chief and as such, should he sit on the board, would create the undesirable situation of a subordinate officer passing judgment upon a superior officer," Berry explained.

Educator Warns Against Excessive Specialization

Roanoke, Va., April 27 (AP).—To teach a subject without relating it in the classroom to other allied subjects is not only difficult, it is dangerous, Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the University of Maryland, told Virginia division school superintendents today.

For instance, if history is taught with no reference to its economic and sociological aspects, he explained, the child gets a warped view of the world in which he lives.

"It used to be inconceivable that a course could be given in general science," Dr. Benjamin said. Instead, ornithology, astronomy, botany and other sciences were taught only individually.

Robert R. Young Urged As Presidential Nominee

Huntington, W. Va., April 27 (AP). Robert R. Young, chairman of the board of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., tonight was projected as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

R. J. Wilkinson, jr., former city councilman and unopposed delegate to the Democratic National Convention from the Fourth Congressional District, said he favored Young for the Presidency and Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) for the vice presidential nomination.

Boos Greet Policeman

The George Washington history class was discussing Thucydides.

At the point where the Greek historian was being quoted, "We both alike know that into the discussion of human affairs, the question of justice enters . . ."

A policeman did. He wanted a John Monie, for what we don't know.

There were 400 in the class. No one would admit being "John Monie" and the professor could not identify him.

Office Manager Shoots at Dapper Bandit and Chases Him Into Park

A 6-foot bandit, who "looked too much of a gentleman to pull a gun," did yesterday—and robbed Landers, Inc., 7904 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., of $661.

The observation was that of Mrs. Marjorie O. Wells, 24, of Manassas, Va., the cashier on duty in the loan office about 12:45 p. m. when the well-dressed man demanded "all the cash in both cash drawers."

Although he flashed a black automatic to enforce his demands, he made no effort to use it when Mrs. Wells' scream brought Assistant Manager James H. Hendry out of a back room, pistol in hand.

Hendry, who lives at 29 Kensington pkwy., Kensington, Md., said he attempted to fire at the man as he sped out the door, but his pistol failed to discharge.

Hendry pursued the man for a short distance north on Georgia ave., but lost him when he ran through Jesup-Blair Park.

The police lookout described the bandit as about 30 years old, 6 feet tall, 155 pounds, jet black hair and mustache, wearing a dark brown suit. Police had information from a pedestrian in the area that the man is believed to have been in a 1939 or 1940 maroon-colored auto containing two other men.

Electricians Would Bypass District Test

Electricians who have failed in District examinations appealed to Congress yesterday for a bill that would restore their licenses without examination.

District officials, with backing from some organizations, opposed the bill.

The measure would make it possible for persons who have engaged in the electrical business for five years to get a master electrician's license without examination.

James H. Biscoe, attorney for several individuals who failed in the test, said the result of the present system is that many men successful in the electrical business for years now are substantially out of business.

Adventists Plan To Send Teachers To New Guinea

Plans for sending hundreds of South Sea Island natives as Christian teachers into New Guinea highlands were made yesterday at the Spring Council of Seventh-Day Adventist officials in Takoma Park.

E. D. Dick, the church's general secretary recently returned from Australia, told delegates there is great demand there for the Christian young men who stood loyally by the Allies during the war.

The council approved a memorial from the Australian branch of the church, providing for an extension of the Australian branch's organization to keep up with rapid growth in membership and activities.

Educational needs of the church in China resulted in a council vote to send Miss Mildred Ostoich of Oakland, Calif., a specialist in elementary school work to assist in a summer training school for teachers in Chiaotoutseng, China, where 20 buildings totally destroyed by the Japanese are being reconstructed.

Tuck Snubs Request For Special Session

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—Governor Tuck replied today to a request that he call a special legislative session to repeal the "Anti-Truman" leection law and to provide more money for schools by saying, "My views in this regard are well known and it would appear unnecessary, therefore, to restate my position."

The Governor's reply was in a letter to Clarence E. Magee of Portsmouth, chairman of the Second District Committee for Democracy in Virginia.

Magee asked the Governor to have the new election law "erased from the books." He called it one of the most "ridiculous, unjust and undemocratic acts that have ever been forced upon the intelligence of the citizens of Virginia."

His Mother Held Opposing Match

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

Harvey W. Wiley, jr., suggested an abortion instead of a wedding after his mother "objected very much" to his marriage plans, auburn-haired Samille Nowicki testified yesterday.

The attractive Capitol Hill secretary testified for the second day in her $150,000 breach of promise suit against the 36-year-old son of the late pure food crusader.

Wiley's mother had warned him "that if he persisted in this foolish idea of marrying me, she would disinherit him," Miss Nowicki said.

He came to her apartment the day they'd planned to be married and "asked me to sympathize" with his plight, Miss Nowicki asserted, saying he "stood to lose more by walking out on his mother than by walking out on me."

In that conversation, Wiley told her his mother had said something about "social equality" and that "perhaps I might be Jewish," Miss Nowicki testified. "Mrs. Wiley said I was a working girl."

Miss Nowicki, who was then several months pregnant, said Wiley told her that day that she'd taken him "too seriously" and that he had "no intention" of marrying her.

That was January 21, 1946, and according to Miss Nowicki, they'd been "secretly" engaged since August of 1945. She said they'd known each other since 1940.

The witness, once a free lance writer in Hollywood and a former employe of the Soviet Embassy, said, "Mr. Wiley told me that if I didn't go through with the abortion his mother was an important person in Washington . . . and she would brand me as a common woman."

When he "suggested an abortion," Miss Nowicki testified, "I told him to get out."

Subsequently, however, Wiley arranged a meeting between Miss Nowick, now on the secretarial staff of Senator Joseph Ball (R., Minn.), and his mother, a prominent Washington clubwoman and champion of women's rights, so that she could plead her cause, Miss Nowicki declared.

Miss Nowicki said she and her sister went to the Wiley residence, 2345 Ashmead pl. nw., to see whether something couldn't be worked out. Mrs. Wiley suggested that "you see my lawyer," Miss Nowicki said, and "called me an immoral woman."

The slender woman, who described the meeting as "humiliating," said she told Mrs. Wiley—"you're trying to promote the equal rights amendment, what about my rights?" To this, she said heatedly, Mrs. Wiley replied:

"The law doesn't apply to you at all."

Miss Nowicki said Mrs. Wiley asked during the conversation whether Polish people "weren't Catholic" and she objected because "the question of religion shouldn't enter into a discussion of this kind."

During cross-examination of the witness, who was dressed in a simple white suit, Defense Counsel Arthur Hilland produced a letter from Miss Nowicki to Wiley in which she expressed admiration for Mrs. Wiley and described her as "the second first lady of the land." Miss Nowicki said she'd learned about Mrs. Wiley while working part time for the National Women's Party—which Mrs. Wiley once headed.

Miss Nowicki said that in the middle of January Wiley rented an apartment near Dupont Circle and that the night they went to look at it she "had relations wih him."

"I proested," she declared. "I said it wouldn't be more than a weke befor ewe were married . . . But he called me prudish and narrow-minded . . . H ecalled me Mrs. Wiley and made ardent love to me . . ."

"I really and truly and faithfully believed he was going to marry me," she said.

Miss Nowicki testified that Wiley has been helping support her 20-month-old son, whom she named Timothy Wiley. The child lives with her and her mother in an apartment at 1741 Lanier pl. nw.

Wiley, a real estate salesman, listened intently to the testimony.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. today before Justice Jennings Bailey.

Third Regiment Gets Short Man—Briefly

The little corporal peered timidly around at the giants and shook his head in bewilderment.

Here in this special coach en route from Fort Dix to Fort Myer were 54 strapping soldiers, all tower tall.

How did he, Arthur Gamble, 30, of Watertown, N. Y., a mere 5 feet, 6 inches, get into this tarzan outfit?

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the Military District of Washington, spotted the whey-faced wonder on Gamble's face and asked if he were ailing.

Gamble could muster only a choked little rattle in his throat—then found himself whisked away with the giants for a ceremony at Fort Myer.

He tried to hide in a rear rank—only to hear "to the rear march," which hustled him out front. Then, he could bear it no longer. He risked a direct approach to the first sergeant. The topkick riffled through orders, found Gamble was, in fact, ordered to another unit.

Now Gamble breathes freely in the 7001st Area Service Unit where a man can be 5 feet 6 and not feel like a freak. And the reactivated Third Infantry Regiment, Washington's new show outfit, is back at the height of glory—with nothing in the ranks short of an elite 5-feet, 9-inch requirement.

Postlude

Frank Edwinn Sings for Rybier Club

By Paul Hume

Frank Edwinn, bass from New York City, sang for the Rybier Music Club last night in the Arts Club.

Edwinn has patterned his singing after that of the reigning Italian bassos of the day. Unfortunately he often tends to swallow much of the voice in throaty production. This defect made his high tones small in size, while the low notes failed to obtain that resonance which one expects from a true bass.

Dorothy Radde Emery gave Edwinn beautifully proportioned accompaniments in standard songs by Peri, Durante, Bach, Handel and many more. The American songs listed were of the flimsiest material imaginable, save for the folk materials at the end of the recital. Edwinn, who is only 26, should find a singing teacher, avoid the concert stage for at least a year, and bring out what is a really fine voice. Then, with a mature, intelligent repertoire, he would be a good addition to the American scene.

Yesterday noon, Hilda Henderson, Washington soprano, now pursuing her studies in New York, sang for the Washington Music Teachers' Association.

Accompanied by Dorothy Radde Emery, who provided facile accompaniments on short notice. Miss Henderson presented familiar songs from classic, Italian and Russian sources, with two American songs at the close. Her voice is of a naturally velvety quality, produced easily, and with no trace of disagreeable sound.

As a student artist, Henderson confines herself to a monotony of mood and color. She should broaden her repertoire and technique, and eliminate a tendency toward breathiness. She has started on a long road over which she is well equipped to travel. Her apparent love for singing will no doubt stimulate her to the years of work ahead.

Some of the finest singing we have heard in months occurred in Michel's last night, when the Mozart Trio gave out reams of pure delight. Therese Nye, soprano, with John Yard and Joseph Collins, baritones, accompanied by Margaret Tolson, sang trios and duets of Mozart which cannot be surpassed for sparkle, beauty of line and instant appeal.

All three voices were perfect in sound and balance. This trio will be heard in future Washington recitals. Our advice is to hear them at every opportunity.

Jury Trial Granted

A 47-year-old electrical worker was granted a jury trial yesterday on a charge of assaulting a finance collector by the name of Finnance.

He was James J. Davis, 1770 Kilbourne st. nw., arrested on a warrant sworn out by Ernest N. Finnance, 29, of 2003 Gosnell st., Silver Spring, Md., an employe of the Consumers Credit Service.

Police said on April 1, Finnance approached Davis, who was at work in a store in the 1400 block of 17th st. nw. Davis hit him over the head with a pair of pliers, Finnance said. Davis maintained he had struck him only with his fist.

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy set the trial date for May 18 and continued bond at $300.

Other speakers to be introduced by Edmond S. Massie, jr., president, are Mrs. Edith Ronne, historian of the expedition; William Lataday, photographer for the group, and Sir Hubert Wilkins, veteran explorer.

Boys 'Wreck' School

"Boys with a terrible sense of frustration" took it out sometime Monday night on classrooms and offices at Ludlow School, 6th and G sts., like this:

They smashed piano keys by hitting them with a hammer; kicked out window panes; destroyed a set of records used in the music appreciation course; broke light globes in the ceilings; overturned desks and other furniture; threw records about the offices.

Said Mrs. Bessie Cramer, Sixth Division director of elementary schools, whose office was among those ransacked: "They must have needed to do something terribly exciting."

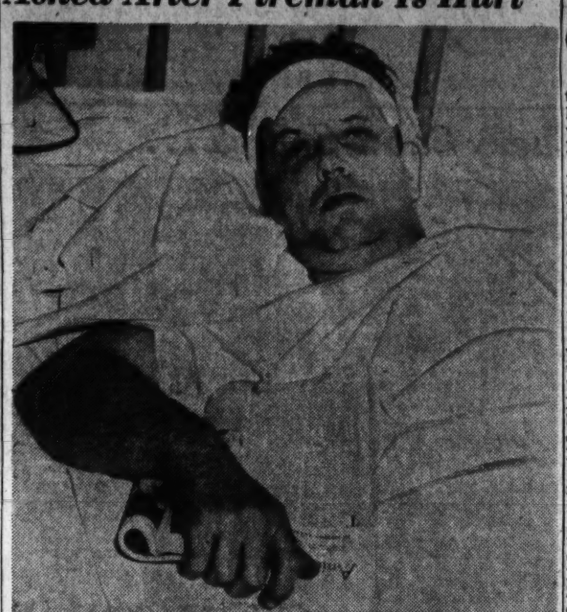
Jail Terms for False Alarms Asked After Fireman Is Hurt



The Washington Post

VICTIM—Pvt. Aubrey T. Felton, injured in answering a false alarm, recovers in Emergency Hospital

Jail sentences were advocated yesterday for persons turning in false fire alarms after a fireman was severely injured answering a sham call.

Pvt. Aubrey T. Felton, 40, of 1125 N. Taylor st., Arlington, Va., 14-year veteranw ith No. 29 Engine Company, suffered a possible skull fracture when thrown from a hose struck following a false alarm from the 4500 block of MacArthur blvd.

The plea for more severe penalties came from Acting Fire Chief Frank G. Berry.

"In addition to possible loss of life and injury to firemen," he said, "there is always the possibility that every time fire equipment is away from its station the immediate area has less protection.

"The sounding of false alarms could be voluntary manslaughter!"

The District had 1256 false alarms last year, Berry stated, and 1363 in 1946. There have been 214 so far this year.

Maximum penalty for turning in a false alarm is a fine of $100 or six months in jail, or both. In most cases, Berry said, the violator draws only a $50 fine.

Knudsen, War Output Chief, Auto Pioneer, Is Dead at 69

quired a Danish-accented English—the consonantal diphthong "th" never crossed his lips—the formal handle of "William S.," the nickname "Bill," and the job of department head in an up-and-coming bicycle factory.

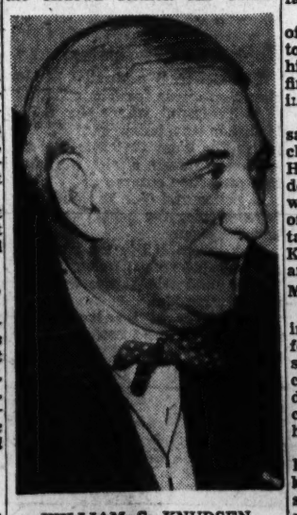
By 1911, when he was 32, the bicycle factory was in the auto parts business and Mr. Knudsen was superintendent. An upstart in the auto industry named Henry Ford bought out the factory and retained Big Bill as an executive. Ten years later, in 1921, he was one of Ford's $50,000-a-year men.

Then there was a disagreement over the policy of laying off men during the 1921 depression. Knudsen quit or was fired.

In a few months, Mr. Knudsen was working for General Motors. He raised Chevrolet production from 200,000 cars in 1922 to 480,000 the next year and to 1,180,000 in 1927.

Settle Sitdown Strikes

An executive vice president of the huge concern in 1937, he was management's central figure during the sitdown strikes. His settlement of those troubles boosted him to the GM presidency, at $300,000 a year.



WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN
Cerebral hemorrhage fatal

Without dissenting voice he was known as America's greatest production genius. Because of that reputation, President Rosevelt appointed him commissioner of defense production in the National Defense Advisory Commission in May, 1940.

Mr. Knudsen's reputation was exact, but the word "production" was not. In retrospect, it appears that his appointment reflected a mistake in semantics.

No man was his equal in production, in the sense of laying out a factory assembly line and moving raw materials in at one end and finished products out the other. But war production was "production" of a different kind.

Roosevelt Handed Him Cruel Blow

Criticism of Knudsen's handling of it began late in 1940. On January 7, 1941, he was made director general of the Office of Production Management. Complaints grew in volume. They centered on Mr. Knudsen's failure to plan for adequate expansion of raw materials production and to force the conversion of peacetime factories to war work.

On August 29, 1941, OPM was overlaid with a new agency, the Supply, Priorities and Allocations Board, with Donald M. Nelson as its operating head.

The arrangement ended on January 16, 1942, with the creation of the War Production Board. Nelson was the boss. President Roosevelt, in effect, fired Mr. Knudsen. But the latter found out about it first by reading a news ticker. It was one of the cruelest blows ever handed out in a cruel period.

Kept Loyal to Roosevelt

A dozen anecdotes about that event best illustrate the character and integrity which gave the Great Dane stature. When he first came to Washington he wanted to know only one thing: who was his boss? Once he was assured that it was F. D. R. and only F. D. R., Mr. Knudsen's loyalty remained steadfast—almost blind.

The day after he was ousted, one of his aides came into his office to shake hands and congratulate him on the way he was taking his firing, without bitterness, recrimination, or public outburst.

"The President," Mr. Knudsen said, "he is my commander in chief. I do what he tells me to." He rose from his desk and looked down over the Mall. A sentry was walking to and fro in front of the office building. "If he tells me to take a gun and a bayonet," Mr. Knudsen continued, "and march up and down, I do it."

Made Lieutenant General

F. D. R. corrected the mistake in semantics after WPB was formed. He appointed Mr. Knudsen as a lieutenant general in charge of War Department production. It was the first and only catapulting of a civilian to such a high military rank.

General Knudsen was back in his element—production of the kind he understood. His work and schedule were fantastic. In four months he visited every major arms plant producing for the Army. He went over them, production line by production line, machine by machine, blueprint by blueprint.

Robert P. Patterson, then Undersecretary of War and not given to exaggeration, said he lifted military production by 10 per cent through his trouble shooting.

Lately Headed Hupp Corporation

After the war, during which he also toured combat theaters, he returned to Detroit and became a director of General Motors and president of the Hupp Corp., makers of auto parts.

For all his hardheadness and tough business attitude, he was naive and warmly sentimental. His deepest emotion was his feeling for America. "Why shouldn't I do everything I can for it," he used to say. "It's been so good to me."

His wife, Clara Elizabeth Euler, whom he married in 1911, and his four children, one son and three daughters, were at his bedside when he died. Funeral services and burial will be on Thursday.

In Memoriam

HARRIS, JAMES E.—In tribute to the beloved memory of JAMES E. HARRIS, who departed this life one year ago today, April 28, 1947.
His cherished memory will ever guide us in our endeavors toward a fuller and freer life. Since he's gone first, and we remain
For battles to be fought,
Each thing he did to help us on
Is hallowed in our hearts.
We'll hear his voice—
We'll see his smile—
Tho blindly we may grope,
The memory of his helping hand
Will buoy us on with hope.
Since he's gone first, and we remain
To finish with the scroll—
No lengthening shadows shall creep in
To keep us from our goal.
We've known so much of comradeship,
We've had our pains, our joys.
And memory is one gift of God
That death cannot destroy.

Hand-Picked Audience Attends Benefit Film

WITH MRS. TRUMAN and her daughter, Margaret, among the handpicked audience at the new Playhouse, last night, the National Symphony's Orchestra's sustaining fund went over the top at the benefit showing of the film, "The Search."

It was a sellout performance, for which credit must go to Mrs. George Mesta, chairman of the executive committee in charge of the benefit, and her aides, Mrs. Fred Vinson, Mrs. Edwin Watson, Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Mrs. H. Chapman Rose.

Miss Truman released the lever which rolled back the curtain at 9 p.m., but before that Maj. George Howard and his Air Force Band, played for an hour outside the theater. Meyer Davis, "Maestro of the White House," opened a concert at 8:30 inside and just before the film was unreeled Jarmila Novotna of the Metropolitan Opera, and featured player in the film, stirred the audience with her singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Dinners Precede Film

Dinner parties by the dozen were given before the performance and afterward. Mrs. Mesta entertained at a reception at her home on S st. for the opera star.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson were guests of Miss Meredith Howard and Mrs. John MacCoatay at dinner, and also in the company were the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the South African Minister and Mrs. Harry Andrews; Lawrence Tibbett, opera star, and Mrs. Tibbett, here from New York; Senator Harry Cain, Admiral Neill Phillips, Capt. Robert Berry and Mrs. Marjorie Rainey of California.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet dined with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and also having dinner parties were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blake, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe.

All these and many more came on to Mrs. Mesta's reception. The hostess, in an electric blue taffeta gown with wing back drapery, was assisted by her sister, Mrs. George Tyson, who wore a gown of heavy black lace made with off-the-shoulder neckline. There was more music during the evening with Sidney and his orchestra, and champagne for everybody.

The buffet table decorations carried out the musical theme with a miniature grand piano and opera singer of Dresden china atop a mound of spring flowers.

Miss Truman came on to the reception and Louis Bromfield, the noted author, was there. Others were the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Wellington Koo, the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert Lovett, Senator and Mrs. John McClellan, Representative and Mrs. John Cabot Lodge, and the Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann.

Mrs. Mesta entertained at luncheon at the Carlton yesterday for Mme. Novotna, having as other guests Mme. Bruggmann, Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe and Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller. M. M.

Headdress Prizes to Be Given At Friday Evening Bonus Dance

By Marie McNair

ALL SORTS of possibilities loom up for members of the Friday Evening Supper Dances at the "bonus dance" this Friday at the Sulgrave Club.

This last party of the season—a dividend because the group actually made money this year—is to be a headdress dance, with prizes to be awarded to the six most ingenious members of the club. The female with the cleverest arrangement on top of her head will get a prize, so will the one with the prettiest.

The "most unattractive" headdress to be worn by a man—and this should make for fun—will also be awarded something nice, and the male who wears the cleverest concoction will be in on the win.

Two couples will be singled out for prizes, one for the cleverest pair of headdresses, the other for the "most terrific."

Prizes are to be kept a secret, but it's leaked out already that one is to be a really good hat.

Gen. and Mrs. Mathenet Entertain

GEN. MAURICE MATHENET Military Attache of the French Embassy, and Mme. Mathenet entertained at a cocktail party for over 100 friends yesterday afternoon. A number of officials from the War Department attended, as well as military attaches of foreign missions.

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet and the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann were among the guests. Others included the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, Gen. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Haislip, Gen. and Mrs. Willard S. Paul, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon R. Young, Gen. and Mrs. A. W. Kenner, Gen. and Mrs. L. L. Lemnitzer, Gen. and Mrs. R. S. McLain, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dewey, Mrs. David G. Barr, Col. and Mrs. R. W. Weaver, and many others.

Women in Novel Business Head Shop Social Register; Spring Cleaners Aid Sought

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

POPULAR Mrs. Robert Gordon McKay and Mrs. William DuBose are joining forces in a novel and undoubtedly profitable business venture. They're heading up a Washington edition of a social register of shops, an exclusive but immensely practical directory, which will be published simultaneously next autumn in all our big cities. The directory will list every kind of shop specialists and hard-to-find tradesmen, such as upholsterers and plumbers, people who do odd services like teaching knitting, matching chintzes. In addition, such places as art galleries, airways, railroad stations, garages will be included. There'll be innumerable addresses—sewing women, zipper repairers—all of whom are known and recommended by friends of Mrs. McKay and Mrs. DuBose. The directory's cover will be identical in all cities, and women who've used it at home will look for it when traveling. It's a wonderful idea, and we can hardly wait to have minor household irritations solved by dipping into such a handy Who's Where.

Wit—Since Bogota

SINCE Bogota the town's wisecracking gentry have bent wit with gleeful inhibition against our intelligence service. Mildest to date is the far from scintillating paraphrase: the Central Intelligence lads couldn't see the haystack for the needles.

To Remember as You Clean

SPRING Cleaning Note: Troubled with moths of every imaginable and unimaginable variety, our feverish closet cleaning is less altruistic than practical. And now, as an additional clothing ration cut faces Britain, those too-short dresses, pinching shoes, unbecoming evening dresses, faded slip covers can be put to wonderful use. Toss them in a pile, then dial Hobart 2812 and Mrs. R. W. Urquhart, wife of a British Embassy Minister, will have them picked up. Evening gowns, which most organizations thumb down, are being collected for a touching cause. They'll go to trained nurses in British hospitals, who have hitherto been unable to manage a bit of glamour on their rare evening dates. The slip covers will help brighten blitzed homes.

White Russian Benefit

THERE'S been so much talk about red Russians we've almost forgotten over two million White Russians fled from the 1917 revolution and many, who settled in the satellite countries, are again refugees. To help support a White Russian orphanage in France, a tuberculosis sanitarium in Austria and the famous Tolstoy Foundation in this country, the White Russian Women's Organization of Washington is staging a party May 8 at cocktail time in the United Nations Club. It is headed by Mme. Illarion Mistowt, wife of a former czarist naval attache, and Russian-born Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, whose hats are such a constant amazement. (Her latest, awash with flora, and, for all we know, fauna, inspired an astonished spectator to gasp, "It makes me feel like laying an egg!") The Tolstoy Foundation, founded by the great author's daughter, Countess Alexandra, runs, among many other things, Reed Farm, up the Hudson River, as home for the aged; a temporary refugee resettlement center and summer camp for children of Russian descent. Some years ago we visited there as guest of the son of a former czarist foreign minister. He, with some distaste, was chaperoning a flock of chickens, but doing it well. The son of a former Ambassador was in charge of the cows, a careworn princess helped in the huge kitchen where White Russians, aristocrats and the humbler, ate together. An Orthodox priest blessed the meal, the widow of a Russian Ambassador to France, in a shabby suit, removed a pair of impeccable gloves as she sat down.

Thrift Shop To Entertain At Tea Today

This afternoon, from 4 to 6 p. m., the Society of the Cincinnati is opening its headquarters, 2118 Massachusetts ave., for the annual Thrift Shop White Elephant Tea which Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, ladies of the Cabinet, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson are attending.

Star of the afternoon is Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera tenor, who will sing two numbers, Tschaikowsky's Pilgrim's Song and a selection from Verdi's "La Traviata." Yesterday Mr. Tibbett flew down from New York to attend last evening's National Symphony benefit at the Playhouse. Prior to the premiere he was honor guest at a small dinner which Meredith Howard, chairman of the entertainment committee for the Thrift Shop party, gave at her home in Georgetown.

Provision has been made by Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, president of the Thrift Shop board; Mrs. John Allan Daugherty, benefit chairman; Mrs. Benjamin B. Cain, in charge of arrangements, and others on the committee, for plenty of chairs to accommodate guests. The Thrift Shop annually divides thousands of dollars among six children's organizations, bringing added comfort to sick and convalescent children.

Just a bundle or a contribution will admit guests to this afternoon's tea. Mrs. Barry Mohun and members of her committee will be at the door to receive both.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

WIVES of delegates attending the four-day conclave of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States held a special luncheon all their own yesterday in the Shoreham Hotel. Purpose was to thresh out women's responsibility in today's world. Among the distinguished group at the head table are (left to right) Mrs. Truman, guest of honor; Representative Frances P. Bolton of Ohio, guest speaker (standing at microphone); Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, former First Lady; Mrs. Hazel R. Ferguson, vice president of Butler Brothers of Chicago, guest speaker

Women Blamed for Refusing To Take Political Leadership

By Genevieve Reynolds

Don't blame the men for the paucity of women in Congress, State Legislatures and other elective positions. The fault mostly lies with the "gentler sex" for refusing to assume responsibilities or risking necks politically. This is the X-ray analysis of Representative Frances P. Bolton of Ohio and Mrs. Hazel R. Ferguson, vice president, Butler Brothers of Chicago.

Guest speakers at a luncheon yesterday given by the wives of delegates attending the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the two women leaders charged their American sisters with the responsibility of using their potential power to create a better world.

Mrs. Bolton pointed out that American men still protest against women's advancement politically and economically, whereas, in France, the men gave their rather apathetic women not only the right to vote but a proportionate number in the government. "Here we still have unfailing opposition on every hand," she explained.

The Congresswoman reminded the audience that throughout the world women are looking to American women for leadership, courage, hope and understanding.

Specifically Mrs. Bolton placed upon American women's shoulders these responsibilities, in addition to being politically active—to see that newspapers, magazines, movies and radio programs be constructive force; to protect schools from the false doctrines that have been insinuated into them by the enemies of freedom that the women of other lands have to contend with; make home a place of security and love.

Mrs. Ferguson told the some 500 women present, "more and more women need to translate talk into action. World needs are beyond the conversation stage. We're at the cross roads between war and peace. Confidence in women flourishes. Women of America can carry this nation through the danger period."

Microscoping the American woman's current influence and power, she concluded, "Women can make the kind of nation they want. . . . Can send anybody to Capitol Hill they make up their mind to. . . . Government is woman's responsibility as well as man's. . . . More women should go into politics. . . . Of the 17 million women gainfully employed, 6 million double as homemaker and careerists. . . . Women should interest themselves in the competitive capitalistic system of our country. . . . 30 million women have membership in some club. . . . Women's clubs still unsounded reservoir of potential influence. . . . Home and family still constitute woman's widest influence."

How to Clean Toy Animals

How can I wash or clean a toy white lamb which is covered with a plush-like fabric? I have used soap and water and the animal's coat turned brown. Bleach does not remove the brown color. I have a toy black and white bear in the same material and hesitate letting the baby play with it until I know how to keep it clean. H. L.

When you washed the toy with soap and water, probably the water penetrated the plush and soaked the filler, which in turn faded onto the outside covering, turning it brown. When this happens, there just doesn't seem to be anything which will remove this stain. However, it usually is possible to wash plush toys satisfactorily if you wash with only the suds, working quickly so that the filler does not become wet. Of course, this is taking for granted that the color of the plush is fast.

Before you wash the toy bear, be sure to dampen a small spot of black and dab it with paper towel. If any black comes off on the towel, the animal shouldn't be cleaned by washing. If you find the black to be fast, prepare a soap jelly by dissolving one cup mild soap flakes in two cups water. Let stand until cool and jellied, then whip with an egg beater until you have a stiff froth. Now, apply the suds only to the plush with a brush, working with a circular motion. When suds become soiled, remove with a blunt knife and use fresh suds. When clean, remove suds and wipe with a damp cloth, rinsing and wringing the cloth out of clear water frequently. If you work quickly in this manner the filler should not become wet. When clean, rub the animal with a dry cloth to hasten drying. Hang in the sun and breeze to thoroughly dry, brushing occasionally to fluff the nap.

In reading your column of April 2, I noticed a query from a reader regarding the long, narrow vacuum cleaner attachment that she was using to clean corners and overhead light fixture. From her description, I feel sure that her tank-type vacuum cleaner is the same make that I have. I thought she might like to know that the salesman from whom I bought mine—as well as my instruction book—say that the attachment she mentions is a radiator tool, to be used along the top of the baseboard at the bottom of walls. A wall and dusting brush, provided with rubber bumpers to eliminate wall marks, also come with the cleaner and should be used for cleaning wall and fixture. J. R. P.

I am planning to give my 1-year-old daughter a birthday party. The children will range from 1 to 3 years of age. What will be the best food to serve? And how shall I arrange the seating? I would like to give a little gift to each child; what would be proper? M. B.

Fruited jello in molds or vanilla ice cream with angel or sponge cake would be "partyish" refreshments which children as young as a year-old could eat. Or, you could serve fruit juice and not too rich cup cakes. For seating, seat the little guests on the floor at card tables which are lying on the floor, legs folded. Or just spread paper napkins in a circle on the floor, seating each guest in front of the napkin. By seating the guests on the floor you do away with improvising high chairs and the danger of the children falling from them.

Picture books, balloons, tiny purses, rubber balls or paper hats would make appropriate and proper gifts.

Rep. Douglas Markets for Talk Material

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (R., Calif.) went shopping for speech material yesterday with a market basket. The speech, about the high cost of living, will be made in the House today.

Mrs. Douglas did her marketing at a chain grocery store on Capitol Hill, while reporters and photographers tagged along. Filling the market basket was an expensive proposition. The actress-lawmaker held up an onion.

"Look at onions, 17 cents a pound," she protested. "And more than 20 cents for two scrawny cucumbers."

At the meat counter she priced round steak. It was 92 cents a pound.

"And veal cutlets are 98 cents a pound," said a gray-haired shopper beside her.

"Isn't that something?" Mrs. Douglas sympathized.

The neighborly shopper identified herself as Mrs. William Gibson. She said she wished Mrs. Douglas "could do something about these prices."

The Congresswoman told her she plans to make a speech about them in the House today and would use the groceries in her basket as exhibits.

"I'll be there to back you," Mrs. Gibson promised. "After you buy meat you don't have any money left, and a working man has to have meat."

While the checking clerk was tallying Mrs. Douglas' purchases she interrupted to exclaim:

"Good heavens. Stew meat has gone up since yesterday."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride Is Stymied by Husband's Resentment Of Her Parents' Authoritarian Good Works On Her Behalf; Who's Wrong, He or Family?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For a short time after we married, Dick and I lived with my parents cost-free, until we got ourselves a home. In that time Dick seemed resentful, and now that we have our own place still seems resentful, of things my parents do for me, or for us.

There have been so many things, fomenting a peculiar situation with me in the middle, not wanting my parents to think I'm ungrateful, yet not wanting Dick to resent them. For example:

His first grievance was over a silver dish we had mother get for us with some of our gift money. We wanted it engraved with our monogram but when the dish arrived it had my maiden initial only; and mother explained the monogram was so costly that she decided on one letter and the clerk said my maiden initial would make the prettier engraving.

Wife Foregoes Her Own Wishes

HIS NEXT was about a weekend when we had plans to go out together, but mother was having some guests at the house and was quite upset by the possibility that we wouldn't be there, as she had counted on. So we canceled our plans for her and Dick didn't like it.

Then after we got our place, father brought us a bush and planted it beside the house, which I much appreciated but Dick resented,—not the fact that Dad brought us the bush, but that he planted it without consulting Dick's ideas.

Dick is very opinionated, while I am not. I have opinions, of course; but rather than cause discord I am inclined to go along with what others want, and the things which vex Dick seem to me of such trivial importance.

However, he claims I should take a stronger stand in these matters; but I've always had so much done for me by my parents, which I've always appreciated, that I don't want to hurt them now. They feel Dick is overly sensitive, that he must have some sort of complex, while he feels they don't respect him or his ideas. Which of them is wrong? Or am I at fault?

V. E.

Parents Treat Pair as Puppets

DEAR V. E.: Your parents are treating your marriage as if it were their play house, figuratively speaking. They go over your head and Dick's, as if you were puppets, to "fix everything nice" according to their taste; and in general, by application of emotional suasion, pull and haul the pair of you into courses of action they select.

Thus their attitude is wrong: blindly, obstinately, selfishly wrong; and Dick is quite right when he rasps that they show him no respect.

At best they are treating him as a stepchild, as a companion acquired by (and for) their "little girl;" and if (from their view) he is a good boy, your faithful echo, who gratefully accepts the overflow of their proprietary "doing" for you, surrendering all initiative and claim to adult autonomy in process, they're ready to pat him on the head and tell you he's fine. Otherwise they'll talk him down by innuendo and poison your mind against him.

This is the significance of their nasty insinuation that Dick is overly sensitive and "must have a complex" at the roots of (1) his healthy resistance to their authoritarian busybodyism and (2) his outspoken attack on your infantile assumption that this aspect of their behavior is magnanimous and worthy of gratitude.

Parents Block Girl's Growth

THE ESSENCE of their attitude is a determination that your marriage shan't alter their relationship to you in the slightest; and as you say in your long letter here condensed, they have "babied" you all your life,—not so much to nurture as to enslave you: to selfishly keep you primarily dependent on them always for love and bliss.

It seems they've well-nigh succeeded in this, for look: though you say you "incline to go along with what others want," to prevent discord, basically you're compulsively disposed to do as your parents want, lest you "hurt" their feelings or seem guilty of "ingratitude." That's why you're not Dick's discerning advocate in the imbroglio they've precipitated.

In refusing to be bamboozled and bought by them, Dick shows intelligence, integrity and courage, if little patience and no diplomacy; but it is problematic whether he can win you to a mature performance as his helpmeet, with your parents pitted against the idea. His chief antagonist is your mother, of course, who works through you and your dad, as well as directly, in trying to get the best of him.

1812 Daughters Indorse Moves For Strong National Defense

Delegates to the fifty-sixth associate council of the national society, United States Daughters of 1812 concluded their four day conclave by unanimously indorsing two national security resolutions, donating historic furniture and lamps to headquarters and setting up a voluntary fund for continuation of the organization's news letter.

In one of the motions, the group urged "Congress to enact legislation" for the maintenance of an adequate Army, Navy and Air Force, complete with equipment to meet any emergency.

The resolution's preamble contended "the present world situation calls for a military establishment commensurate with the responsibilities this country has assumed in world leadership."

Another resolution alerted the Society's Daughters to subversive elements of "those who speak or write or in any way appeal to the intellect or emotions of our citizens, whether it be by textbook, radio, press or from the platform."

During the afternoon session Society members voted to establish a voluntary fund in order to continue publishing the "Newsletter" which has been hampered by high printing costs.

Valuable gifts from Daughters throughout the country were presented to the National Society for its headquarters here. State presidents gave a typewriter. Thirty-five dollars was contributed to a "beautification of headquarters" for boxwood trees.

Earlier in the day, delegates heard Comdr. Eleanor Grant Rigby, U. S. N., outline plans for the 150-year-old frigate Constellation, which the society previously had voted to support by contributions.

There are 32 actual daughters of a War of 1812 fighting man who are members of the society. Mrs. Mary Jane B. Metz, 89, of Berryville, Va., a charter member of the Capt. James Gibson Chapter of Charles Town, W. Va., was the only one present at the convention.

Mrs. Joseph W. Marshal, 88, who organized the Dolly Madison Chapter in Pittsburgh in 1897, was the only other charter member present. An honorary national vice president general, she claims to have attended every annual council meeting.

QUICK-ON-THE-TRIGGER New Yorkers immediately went into a huddle when the National Society United States Daughters of 1812 passed a resolution to mark all the States and counties named for 1812 heroes. Voters' League Discusses U. N. Problems

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Delegates to the national convention of the League of Women Voters went to work today on their top-priority problem: Support of the United Nations.

The question was first introduced to the convention by Mrs. Allen C. G. Mitchell of Bloomington, Ind., a member of the league's board of directors.

Listed as item No. 1 on the agenda, the U. N. debate is expected to be held during the next three days before definite action is taken by the delegates. Specifically, the topic for discussion was "strengthening of the functions and procedure of the United Nations and specialized agencies under the charter."

Dr. Paul Appleby, dean of the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship at Syracuse University, told the league today that despite apparent obstacles in the U. N. "We are making progress just by trying."

"The problem begins for us with our separation of powers," he said.

Appleby pointed out that it was difficult for the United States to be united on foreign problems because of the distribution and "extraordinary lack of integration of the executive branch with its specialized agencies."

He placed responsibility on the State Department, also, for "its own lack of unity and political understanding."

Mrs. Oscar Ruebhausen of New York City, an official observer for the U. N., described its workings to the women voters.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 27.

Delegates to the national convention of the League of Women Voters here this week won't be permitted to wear hats to business sessions.

"High and fancy hats prevent proper visibility for action on the floor," explained President Anna Lord Strauss, announcing the ban at yesterday's opening session.

Md. Defends Man's 2d Trial And Conviction

Annapolis, Md., April 27 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond said today that "there is no provision in the constitution of Maryland forbidding double jeopardy."

He asked the Court of Appeals to uphold the conviction of a man who claimed he had been tried twice on the same charge. Double jeopardy means two trials for the same offense, he explained.

"The entire doctrine of that ancient rule is recognized in the State solely by virtue of the common law," Hammond argued. "The Legislature may alter, or even abolish the common law rule against double jeopardy," he said.

Hammond asked the court to deny the appeal of John E. Robb of 1263 Evarts st ne., Washington, D. C. Robb last May was found innocent by Justice of the Peace Arthur P. Owens on a charge of manslaughter by automobile.

The State's attorney appealed. After a non-jury trial in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, Judge Charles C. Marbury gave a verdict of guilty. He sentenced Robb to 12 months in the Maryland House of Correction.

Hammond said the State has a right to appeal from decisions of justices of the peace. He referred to "the right of the Legislature to permit appeals in behalf of the State unless forbidden by express constitutional provisions against double jeopardy."

Robb was arrested March 19, 1947, after the death of Lewis Sylvested Carter, 1003 V st. nw., Washington, D. C., March 13 in a traffic accident.

Text of Vandenberg's Warning to Communists

Following is the text of Senator Vandenberg's talk last night to a Michigan Chamber of Commerce dinner, at which he denounced communism:

Above everything else tonight, America and the civilized world want peace—thus far largely denied to anxious humanity by the attitudes of Soviet Russia and her satellites. It is a universal prayer which rises in countless different tongues from every family hearthstone round this globe—including, I am sure, the great Russian people themselves. The heart of the world cries out for peace!

But it must be peace with justice and with honor or it is nothing more than another armistice with new aggression. It must be peace which stabilizes human rights and fundamental freedoms or we have lost every objective for which we fought two world wars, and for which—though God forbid!—we could be forced to face a third, though never, never, never through our voluntary choice.

It cannot be a Munich peace—because appeasers merely precipitate the very disasters from which they seek to flee. It cannot be a Yalta peace—because unwise and complacent compromises start chain reactions which are dangerously misread as tokens of weakness and surrender. It cannot be a Wallace peace—let's be quite frank about it—because Communistic fraternity sooner or later produces but one kind of unity—the kind that Jonah enjoyed when he was swallowed by the whale.

But it can be peace based upon the reborn pledges of the Atlantic Charter to which we all faithfully subscribe in a bond of blood. It can and must be peace stemming fromm the revitalized obligations of the tortured United Nations Charter which bears all our signatures. It can and must be a peace which proposes to "live and let live" according to the free choice of free men in a free world. This emphatically includes the Russians. It can and should be peace which guarantees the Soviets the same protection against hostile conspiracies which we require in kind. It can and should be peace which safely releases the Soviets to concentrate upon that same internal, progressive rehabilitation which they so greatly need and which, in turn, is equally the need of their presently terrorized neighbors. It can and must be peace on a two-way street. I continue to believe that this is not impossible—if we make our own position immutably plain and if we give effective leadership and cooperation to the non-aggressive forces of democracy elsewhere which ask only the independent privilege of ordering their own lives.

What, then, is our position? I conceive it to be this:

FIRST. We do not covet an inch of alien territory or a dollar of alien raparations. I say it proudly; no aggression by us is feared by any other people, though this is the most powerful Nation in the world. We are not imperialists by any stretch of the imagination. On the contrary, we have given ample evidence of prodigal unselfishness in our devotions to the dignity and the freedom and the brotherhood of man. We still want and we still pursue a peoples' peace.

SECOND. We are selfish only in that we recognize our own stake in the indivisibility of peace and world stability. Therefore, the peace and the stability of others—the maintenance of independent nations which live by self-determination—the integrity of collective security among the peace-loving peoples of the earth—the survival of democracy—even more intimately, the survival of western civilization—these are of direct concern to us. They are the direct concern of peace.

THIRD. We respond, within necessary conservation of our own resources, to those who strive to help themselves in pursuit of these objectives. Thus, for example, the great European recovery program aids 16 independent nations to remain independent and to integrate their common restoration of self-reliance and their common defense of the peace-hopes by which men live. The continuity of our aid is dependent upon the continuity of their progress. This is a blueprint for peace. Italy has just demonstrated some of the wholesome possibilities.

FOURTH. We aim no aggression at anybody. We have chosen no foes to fight unless they first choose us. Despite bitter aggravation upon occasion, we cling tenaciously to the council table as preferable to the battle field. It will not be our fault if this option is withdrawn. We want universal limitation upon armaments, dependably protected against bad faith. We would strengthen and revitalize the United Nations which is still the world's greatest peace potential despite the terrific strains which have been put upon it before it has even yet been allowed, thanks to Russian intransigence, to perfect its contemplated peace machinery. We have not yet even scratched the surface of the possibilities of its regional arrangements, as exemplified in the Rio treaty. There can be vital progress in this procedure—and I venture to predict there will.

FIFTH. Meanwhile, we are realists. We do not propose to be isolated in a world that has been communized by conquest. We do not shut our eyes to the cold, hard facts that there are those in the world who respect nothing else but force. We shall adequately prepare ourselves, for any such argument if there still be those who mistakenly think of us as pacifists-at-any-price. And we are suicidal fools if we do not root out and destroy any treason at home which may dream of bringing world revolution to the United States.

In conclusion, I think I would say this to Marshal Stalin tonight:

1. Something is wrong with your diplomacy or with ours—or with your objectives or with ours—if we cannot find a formula for world peace instead of world war in an atomic age which makes the price of victory too great to pay.

2. You should understand, with complete conviction, that we greatly respect the great Russian people and their inalienable right to rule themselves to suit themselves, precisely as we insist upon this right for ourselves and others.

3. You should understand, with complete conviction, that we are just as determined as you are (in respect to your feads of Axis resurgence) that military aggression from any source, and no matter what guise, shall never curse the earth again, and we are enlisted in this cause for keeps.

4. You should understand, with complete conviction, that we are prepared for enlightened, progressive cooperation with every land which invites and deserves our mutual good-will.

5. You should understand, with equal conviction, that we cannot be driven, coerced, or pressured into positions which we decline voluntarily to assume; that we will not bargain in human rights and fundamental liberties anywhere on earth; and, underlying everything, that we shall not surrender to Communist conspiracies in the United States.

Aide of Wallace Says Supporters Were Intimidated

Charleston, W. Va., April 27 (AP). The Rev. Clive Knowles, State campaign director for Henry Wallace, charged yesterday that Logan County officials had illegally confiscated nominating petitions, taken credentials from circulators and intimidated signers into removing their names.

Knowles said formal protests had been filed with Governor Meadows, State Attorney General Ira J. Partlow and U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark. Partlow confirmed receipt of the protest, but said he had not yet had time to study it.

In one instance cited by Knowles, a law-enforcement officer of the southwestern West Virginia county took a petition from William Pinckney of Lorado and, "accompanied by two other armed men, then proceeded to the homes of people who had signed the petition and intimidated them into removing their names."

Virginia Phone Company Asks Action on Rate

Richmond, Va., April 27 (AP).—The Virginia Telephone & Telegraph Co. asked the State Corporation Commission today for speedy action on its request for telephone rate increases.

The company is asking staggered increases which amount to an average of about 75 cents a month for business subscribers, and 50 cents to residential subscribers in the 23 western and southside Virginia communities it serves.

H. A. Hanson, general auditor of the Virginia company and its parent, the Central Telephone & Telegraph co of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., told the commission at the opening of the hearing that increases in wages and operating expenses made the rate hike necessary at this time if the company hoped to expand and improve its service.

Revenues Are Cited

Financial statements showed the company had total operating revenues in 1947 of $967,719 of which the net operating income remaining after operating costs was $57,908. From this figure Hanson subtracted six charges which left an income balance of only $16,095.

Lyttleton Waddell, city attorney of Charlottesville, where the Virginia T & T has its principal offices, opposed the rate hike. He said the Charlottesville city council adopted a resolution opposing the increases at present or until the company provided better telephone service.

Communities Served

The Virginia Telephone & Telegraph provides toll and exchange service at Altavista, Blackstone, Brookneal, Burkeville, Crozet, Charlottesville, Crewe, Dillwyn, Farmville, Front Royal, Halifax, Ingram, Kenbridge, Luray, Palmyra, Rustburg, Scottsville, Shenandoah, South Boston, South Hill, Stanardsville, Victoria and Washington, Va.

A sample of the proposed new rates would boost private business lines at Brookneal from $3 to $3.50 a month and residential from $2.25 to $2.50. However, business lines for single service at Burkeville would jump from $2 to $3.50 and residential from $1.50 to $2.50.

Charlottesville would show a big jump in private business lines—from $4.65 to $5.75, and $2.90 to $3.25 for home phones.

THE DISTRICT LINE — by Bill Gold

Local Traffic 'Jams' Furnish Food for Thought

The Board of Trade's Traffic Committee says that Washington's traffic lights should be better coordinated; otherwise, it feels that the local situation is fairly well in hand.

I disagree. I doubt whether the Board of Trade or anybody else can materially improve the synchronization of the lights in our tangled web of streets, avenues and circles.

If the critics have a better plan, they should submit it. If they do not, they should bear in mind that lights cannot be synchronized in all directions simultaneously. When the north-south street gets priority, the east-west street takes what's left—and vice versa.

Traffic Director Keneipp and his gang are constantly on the alert to improve the existing system wherever possible. But they invariably bump their heads against the inescapable fact that expediting traffic in one place tends to slow it in another.

However, there are many other points on which the Board of Trade would have been justified in "viewing with alarm."

For example, our traffic lights are entirely too low. A motorist who is following a bus has a hard time finding out what the signal shows at the moment. And a driver who is following a truck often finds that the truck is higher than the traffic light.

One has a choice of stopping short of the intersection (thereby impeding traffic) until the truck has cleared the light, or following the truck blindly, and hoping that the light hasn't already changed.

Another trouble maker is the green arrow which points straight ahead. Sometimes it means "through only," sometimes "through and right," and sometimes "through and left." That's just plain silly.

Then, too, we have some particularly dangerous intersections—such as the one at Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. nw.

Eastbound traffic on Constitution crosses southeastbound traffic on Pennsylvania—with both streets getting the green light at the same time.

If you don't think it's a mess, try it some time during the rush hour.

No doubt these situations can't be corrected without giving birth to fresh problems. I'm not condemning Keneipp just because he inherited a traffic pattern which is badly planned for modern vehicles.

But I do believe we ought to think about these things, rather than limit our dissatisfaction to "bad synchronization" which doesn't permit every auto to avoid every red light.

DOUBLE CALAMITY

Milwaukee's brewery workers and New York's furriers have called strikes which could easily make this a tough summer for both men and women.

The men find that a glass of cold beer gives them a lift on a hot August day, and the women get the same reaction from a new fur piece.

Flimsy dresses, sheer hose, open-toed shoes—and furs! And then they wonder why men can't understand them.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I am trying to organize a library of classical recordings, for the use of music lovers and students.

There has been sufficient response to my efforts to lead me to believe that such an organization would serve a very useful purpose in Washington. I hope that interested District Liners will contact me.

At present, I am trying to find an old coach house or barn which could be converted into a clubhouse. I'll even consider keeping the horse in my apartment, in exchange for permission to convert his stable into a headquarters for our library.

Kathleen Fowler,
4434 Garrison st. nw.

Dear Kathleen:

The idea for the library seems novel and worthwhile. But keeping a horse in an apartment is old stuff.

I've moved from several apartments where the people upstairs had the same idea.

Bill.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Dozens of streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital have come in recently accompanied by almost identical notes:

"Look what I just found in the back of a desk (or bureau, or dresser, etc.) drawer. It's a good thing I get around to spring housecleaning once a year."

Tokens have been received from: Mrs. A. E. Miller, 2002 N. 15th st., Arlington, Va.; Mrs. H. J. Cohen, 4405 S. 36th st., Arlington, Va.; R. S.; Mrs. R. L. Clark, 1502 N. Utah st., Arlington, Va.; E. O. M. (plus cash); Walton F. McDaniel, Berwyn, Pa.; B. M. S.; Karl Nations; the Bernsteins, 5316 4th st. nw.

Lieut. O. B. Andrews, 1802 N. 13th st., Arlington, Va. (cash, too); John W. Conover, 1640 Foxhall rd. nw.; Alfred Peter Banash, 216 Reynold st., Plymouth, Pa. (war stamps, too); Mrs. J. S. Rogers, 4 Clermont pl., Garrett Park, Md., and Mrs. Henry W. Edgerton, 2853 Ontario rd.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

This time it's The Washington Post which gives the wisecrackers a chance to have some fun.

The other day we quoted Congressman A. L. Miller as saying that "the high cost of loving makes it necessary for many mothers to work."

Comments Hugh Glassberg, 1121 New Hampshire ave. nw.: "I thought the best things in life were free. What is this—inflation?"

Replies Fred L. McHargue, 4600 Jones Bridge rd., Bethesda, Md.: "A perfectly normal situation. The cost of loving has never been low."

Concludes Metropolitan Police Inspector Milton D. Smith: "I'll take your word for it. At my age, I don't know much about the current 'high cost of loving'."

NEW YORK.—Former Maj. Eddie Byron, the radio producer, tells of a colonel in Australia, a martinet who'd demote and send to New Guinea anyone who deviated, even slightly, from the terms of an order. He had a complex about the proper care of his vehicles, and would send to the jungle any driver who'd park a car improperly, or whose car was damaged — no matter the excuse . . . One day the colonel suddenly collapsed, and told his aide: "Phone the hospital. Get some adrenalin here by motorcycle." . . . The GI's who received this order got the adrenalin. The ambulances were available, but they remembered that the colonel had specified a motorcycle. They therefore walked to the motorcycle pool, 11 blocks away, drove to the colonel's office, spent more time finding a safe parking space where their vehicle couldn't be damaged, and finally delivered the adrenalin—too late.

Howard Hughes dropped his negotiations with a West Coast public relations firm when they made their first stipulation — that Mr. Hughes should keep his name out of the newspapers for at least one year.

The arrangement between the N. Y. Herald Tribune and Gen. Eisenhower for the publication of his memoirs provides that they're to be published no matter what happens — specifically, whether or not he's nominated, or nominated and defeated, or nominated and elected.

Louis Bromfield's secretary, George Hawkins, who died this month, left an unpublished manuscript—a Hollywood satire which he wrote in collaboration with Bromfield. They refused all bids for it, explaining "We wrote it only for our own amusement."

Texan Moves to Save War Plants

By Drew Pearson

Copyright, 1948, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

The inside story of how President Truman continued to sell United States war plants while he was demanding the draft, UMT, and huge Army-Navy appropriations, is one of the most amazing in months.

PEARSON

Despite his speeches about a war emergency the President had gone right ahead demobilizing the Nation's industrial power and allowing war plants to be sold tool by tool on the auction block—until, finally, alert Congressman Lyndon Johnson of Texas pin-pricked him with a couple of stinging notes.

At first the President wouldn't listen to Johnson; would not even admit the error of selling war plants. However, the persistent Texan kept after him and, in the end, Truman ate his own words.

After receiving Johnson's first letter warning that war plants should not be demobilized while men were being mobilized, the President blandly replied:

"The matter . . . has been taken care of by the contracts under which these properties have been sold to private individuals. In case of emergency they immediately revert to the Government."

This, however, was not the fact, and Johnson knew it. Anyone who had taken the slightest trouble to check the facts would never have written such a letter. Moreover, the letter obviously was written by the President himself, for it included some purely personal references.

Texan Rebuts

Congressman Johnson didn't exactly like to argue with the Commander in Chief, who is supposed to know all about defending the Nation. Nevertheless, he wrote back to Truman, bluntly disputing his letter.

"Plants have been and are now being sold without any provision for Government recapture," the Texas Congressman warned, "notwithstanding the fact that you have information these properties immediately revert to the Government."

Johnson then listed nine categories of World War II property being sold piecemeal that the Government could not recapture. These included such vital works as shipyards, aircraft factories, iron and steel plants and air bases.

Next day, Johnson called upon the President personally, urged him to step in before the Government frittered away all its war surplus.

Belatedly, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, War Assets Administrator Jess Larson, Munitions Board Chairman Thomas Hargrave, and National Security Resources Board Chairman Arthur Hill held an emergency meeting.

Hargrave was president of Eastman Kodak, director of the National Association of Manufacturers, and was appointed chairman of the Munitions Board by Forrestal because he was supposed to be an expert on industrial mobilization.

Hill, another Forrestal appointee, was chairman of the Greyhound Bus Corporation and its far-flung subsidiaries, and was made head of the Resources Board because he was supposed to be an expert on industry.

But, though the Administration had bombarded Congress with plans of manpower mobilization, these two men reported they weren't ready with any recommendations on war-plant mobilization. However, they did agree to freeze war plant sales for 30 days.

These are the men supposed to be guarding the Nation's war power, but who still would be selling war plants had it not been for the persistence of one defense-minded Congressman.

Stassen's Campaign Fund

Harold Stassen's backers are passing the hat among small businessmen for campaign contributions up to $1000.

However, in their eagerness to raise money, the Stassen boys sent one of their form letters — believe it or not — to Senator Theodore Green of Rhode Island — who happens to be a Democrat. Furthermore, Green is a member of the Senate Rules Committee which keeps an eye on Presidential-campaign expenditures. In fact, Green was chairman of the committee which examined the 1944 campaign books.

So, in reply to the Stassen letter asking him for money, Green politely requested a complete report on how much money Stassen had raised and from whom it came.

No More Wheat Rust

So much emphasis is placed on atomic energy for military purposes that we don't hear much about its peacetime possibilities.

Scientists working with the Atomic Energy Commission have been irradiating wheat rust and successfully changing the genetic pattern of the rust's growth. They have actually found a means, through the irradiation process, whereby the fungus attacks ragweed and other weeds, instead of attacking wheat.

Man of God

He is a man of God on earth . . . Who sacrifices all . . . And lives in princely poverty . . . To heed his church's call . . . Who ministers to all the needs . . . Of both the rich and poor . . . And guides them in the struggle and . . . The strife they must endure . . . He teaches them to think of God . . . Instead of worldly gain . . . And why the sun must share the sky . . . With clouds that carry rain . . . He undertakes to heal the sick . . . To help the blind to see . . . And show the lame the way to walk . . . In love and sympathy . . . And when he does his duty well . . . He sanctifies the sod . . . And by his good example proves . . . He is a man of God.
